Editors Announce

The new editors of the Progress, Larry Stanley and Charles Klonne, begin their duties with this issue. They have planned some definite changes in the format and policy of the paper for the coming year.

The size of the paper has been increased from a four column to an eight column paper. The number of pages has been reduced from eight to four. This new format will enable the paper to give more comprehensive coverage to a great-er number of news events.

Publish Weekly

The editors also announced that Eastern will have a weekly paper for the first time in the history for the first time in the history of the college. The paper will be circulated every Thursday, The new paper will feature: (1) more news coverage; (2) literary, dra-matic, and music columns; (3) more accurate and timely sports news; and (4) items of national and state-wide interest. Humor, fashions, guest editorials, and student opinions will also be a part of the "new" Progress.

EDITORIAL POLIC

In bringing forth the "new" Progress, we, the edifors, would like to make this statement of policy conerning editorials and news coverage:

It shall be the primary concern of the staff to reort all the campus news, and the best way to provide uch coverage is with a weekly paper. Campus organzations and departments are urged to do their part y co-operating with the paper and letting the staff know of their activities.

We will, in our editorials, discuss issues concernng the college and the student body, by affering contructive opinions and advice. If any member of the college community agrees or disagrees with the editorials, we shall be glad to publish his opinion in our "Let ters to the Editors" Column.

The main purpose of the paper will remain that of erving the Eastern student and not deriding the college administration.

PROSPECTUS

Eastern taday stands at a crossroad. The college can look back proudly to a childhood that has been steadied by able past administrators and we can look forward toward a lusty adolescence that will be guided by a firm and energetic hand. One look at the campus is proof of this statement.

The changes that have been brought about are remarkable—the increased enrollment, the new building program and an energetic guiding spirit—can all be traced to one man, President Robert R. Martin.

To the freshmen entering Eastern, opportunities could not be brighter. The administration is doing its President: Arthur Lee Potts. part to keep high the college's standards and reputatien but each student must do his own share.

Contrary to some opinions, the main purpose of a college is not to have a plast for one semester and flunk out. Dig in and hit those books! Then, after that is taken care of, go out and support the campus organis taken care of, go out and support the campus organis taken care of, go out and support the campus organis taken care of, go out and support the campus of varsity

In an attempt to handle the record-breaking enrollment this fall and the tremendous increase in enrollment expected in the next few years. Eastern has begun a building program for housing and class-room facilities unequaled in its history.

President Robert R. Martin, who instigated this program, said, "By the time the snow flies, we will have buildings and facilities under construction valued at $8,000,000." This is more than the present value of the college place at $8,000,000."
