EKTC Receives Gift of Horses

Dr. O. F. Hume, Richmond physician and member of the Board of Regents of Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, last week presented Eastern with four saddle horses. The gift makes it possible for the college to offer horseback-riding as a part of its curriculum.

The horses were sired by King's Genius, a stallion which sold two years ago for $10,000, and died within a few weeks after the purchase.

The horses are being kept on the college's 150 acre New Steland Farm where the bridge path will be. George Gumbert, of the college faculty, is the trainer.

Eastern is the only college in Kentucky that offers horseback riding in connection with its physical education department.

Y RETREAT AT POND CHURCH

Eighty Attend Annual Fall Retreat at Church

VISITORS ATTEND

The annual YW and YMCA fall retreat was held at the Pond Christian Church on the Barnes Mill Road last Sunday. Approximately eighty attended including students, sponsors, ministers, alumni, and other visitors.

The morning session was given over to worship and special study. Miss Nora Mason, former YW president and Eastern grad, was the special speaker. Others on the program were Madalyn Wheatley, Suzanne Malott, Mildred S. McHenry, Elsie Rigby, Madeline Cornman, Evelyn Tritsch, Dr. F. P. Giles, and Mabel Criswell. Herbert Searcy, president of the YM was presiding officer.

Both the noon and evening meals were served by the social committee of the YW.

A business session and recreation hour were held in the afternoon. Evelyn Tritsch, president of the YW introduced each of her cabinet members and the sponsors, who told briefly the work of their committees and the Y as a whole.

Following the supper an inspirational candlelight service was held for the installation of the officers, the cabinet, and all the members. Special music was furnished by Dr. F. P. Giles.

Those officers installed were: YWCA, president, Evelyn Tritsch; vice president, Martha Davis; secretary, Suzanne Malott; and treasurer, Norma Raybourne; YMCA, president, Herbert Searcy; vice president, David Frey; secretary, Neil Roberts; and treasurer, Leslie Combs.

The Madrigal Club

"Glee Club, Glee Club, how we love thee, Glee Club. With thy chorus of silver voices and thy love for pretty noises—Glee Club, Glee Club, how we love thee, Glee Club." No, that's not Marky Livingston, but an old member talking, but she might at least have had the decency to use the right name for the Girl's Glee Club. It's the Madrigal Club—and she knows it, especially if she's been to one of the initiation banquets held by the Madrigal Club each year.

And they're really going to have a big initiation this year—they have fifty-six members. That's at least 3/2 of last year's membership, and what do I mean by that? That they have as many members as they had last year plus one third the old membership. Confusing, isn't it? But since we have so few men on our campus they have to make up for their singing volume by greater numbers of women's voices.

The first public appearance of the Madrigal Club this year was on Monday, when they sang for a luncheon meeting of the Men's Clubs of Richmond with the Commission formed to locate a site for a Tuberculosis Hospital in Richmond. They opened the season with two numbers, Gianina Mia and This is My Country.

Other plans for this year include participation in the production of Handel's Messiah, the special Eastern Program, at least one chapel program, and the Spring Concert, the newest addition to the Madrigal Club program. Mrs. Seever, sponsor, is expecting great things of the group—for it shows as much promise as any other group she has trained.

YMCA President Names Members of Cabinet

On October 15 the YMCA officially installed the officers and cabinet for the coming year.

The officers are: president, Herbert Searcy; vice president, David Frey; secretary, Neil Roberts; treasurer, Leslie Combs; and reporter, Frank Manning.

The social committee is composed of Leslie Combs, Jack Esham, John Roberts, and Charles Spicer. Publicity committeemen are Frank Manning, James Morris, and Jim Reffett.

The YMCA is sponsored this year by Dr. F. P. Giles.

EASTERN WOMEN RECEIVE LETTER IN APPRECIATION OF FILLING BUDDY BAGS

The following letter was written to Mrs. Emma Y. Case by Mrs. M. C. Kellogg, member of the Richmond, D.A.R., concerning the receipt of thirty-six Buddy bags, which were filled by the girls of Burnam Hall.

"My dear Mrs. Case: As the Writing Member of the D.A.R., I'm confronted with the impossible task of trying to thank those girls of yours for their unflinching help whenever called upon. The Buddy Bags were 100 per cent plus. I only wish the weary, footsore, wounded, or sick boys that get them might have seen the fillers—a war romance would surely have budded and blossomed right there.

Please thank them and let them know how their youthful enthusiasm and cooperation helps those of us to carry on despite the tragic ravages of age. To you and them, our very deep appreciation. Most gratefully yours, Louise B. Kellogg."

ASSEMBLY AT COLLEGE HELD

G. I. Bill And Nurses Corps Are Explained

Provisions of the G. I. Bill of Rights for educating veterans of this war were explained by M. E. Mattox, chairman of the Veterans' Advisory Committee, Eastern State Teachers College, at the regular college assembly hour Wednesday morning in Hiram Brock Auditorium.

On the same program Miss Margaret Zoa Smith, of the Nashville University nursing staff, Nashville, spoke briefly representing the National Nursing Council for War Service and the U. S. Public Health Service, which administers the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps.

Mr. Mattox, in discussing the veterans' bill, said: "We are not giving these G. I. boys and girls anything, we are only granting them what they so rightly deserve."

The bill provides that any serviceman or woman who has served at least 90 days is entitled to at least one year of training in the educational institution of his choice. Mr. Mattox said, and in addition if the person was 25 years of age or under at the time he entered the service, the time will be extended for the length of time he was in the service.

The serviceman or woman may apply for educational training any time within two years after discharge. The bill provides also that persons over 25 years of age when they entered the armed forces may take advantage of the time in addition to the one year if they can prove their education was interrupted by military service. The government pays fees, tuition, books, and supplies and in addition gives $50 monthly to each veteran without dependents and $75 to those with dependents.

Other members of the Advisory Committee at Eastern, who were introduced by the chairman at the assembly Wednesday, are Dr. D. T. Ferrell, Meredith J. Cox, W. L. Keene, and Dr. P. M. Grise, members of the college faculty and veterans of World War I.

Miss Smith, in her talk on "Nursing As a Career for College Women," urged young women to complete their college work and then turn to nursing as a career. "Nursing gives you a purpose in life," she said. "I know of no career that can give you more satisfaction in service to others than in nursing."

She described provisions for training through the U. S. Cadet

Miss Slade Teaches in Rural School

Miss Ethel Slade, Covington, Kentucky, who graduated from Eastern last June, has assumed the position as teacher of the Rural Demonstration School, which is affiliated with the college to serve as a laboratory for those students who plan to teach in one-room rural schools and desire to secure practical experience. The school contains all eight grades, has been in existence since 1929, and is located on highway number 52.

Miss Katherine Evans, who formerly taught at the school, is now working in Pineville, Kentucky, in connection with the college.

Mrs. Story Dies

Mrs. E. F. Story, mother of Miss Virginia Story, second grade teacher at the training school, died at her home in Ashland on October 6, following a heart attack. Funeral services were held in Ashland on the following Monday.

The "Y's" would like to impress and instill in every person on this campus the desire to attend the weekly Vesper Services in the Little Theater, Thursday evening at 6:15.

Vesper service is a forty-five minute period of devotion, singing, and Christian fellowship for everyone. The programs are varied from time to time. Sometimes they are in the form of round-table discussions, where various problems and questions are discussed. The ministers from down-town often conduct series of talks on subjects that appeal to the college student and meet his need. There are programs that are devoted wholly to music. Frequently students are called on to conduct programs themselves. The president and faculty members are among our frequent guest speakers.

We hope you will make Vespers a "must" on your list to attend.

The "Y" observed its seventh annual Fall Retreat, October 15, at the Pond Christian Church. This is the third year for the retreat to be held there. The attendance was good. There were about eighty members present.

Discussions were led by our sponsors, Miss Mary F. McKinney and Dr. F. P. Giles. Plans were made for this year's work. A former YWCA president, Miss Nora Mason, delivered the keynote address on Prayer and Meditation. A delightful lunch and supper were served.

The most impressive events of the day were the candlelight installation service in the twilight, of the cabinet members, and recognition of all "Y" members. We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the YWCA sponsor, Dr. Frederick Giles.

YE FRESHMEN . . .

You've been the best sports we've seen in many days. Now that you have undergone initiation, we, the upperclassmen, welcome you into our midst.

We are sure you had fun. We did. Just in case you didn't, there's the consolation that next year you'll be upperclassmen, and there'll be other freshmen. If you went before the cat court or rat court, remember, it can't happen to you again.

So, to one of the best freshman classes we have ever seen, "You're O. K."

A number of Eastern students have been spending two hours each week folding bandages in the Red Cross room downtown. These students have been folding on Monday night, but the room is open every day from 9:30 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. and Tuesday night from 7:00 to 9:00 in addition to Monday night. Workers for the Red Cross are needed.

The worth of this work is not questioned. The only doubt is whether or not college students, who are kept extremely busy with classes, studying, and other campus activities, have time to spend two hours each week at the Red Cross.

However, if there are students who feel that they have the time to spend two hours each week folding bandages, the Red Cross needs them.

HELL WEEK

As Seen by
An Upperclassman

By JULIE HOFFMAN
So you're interested in learning about Hell Week, hm? That's nice. So am I. I'd like to hear about Hell Week from the point of view of an impartial bystander who would be capable of giving his impression of what occurred during that remarkable era involving the passage of time for the week of October ninth to October thirteenth, in the year of our Lord 1499—I mean, 1944 (Columbus Day influence—did you know that Columbus Day was Thursday the twelfth?).

Around here everyone is prejudiced, I believe, although by conducting a thorough and intimate search it might be possible to discover an unbiased viewpoint of the whole situation, but it is extremely doubtful that the search could reveal such favorable results. Prejudice abounds no end among the students of Eastern—for if you're an upperclassman you're prejudiced in favor of the upperclassmen—if you happen to be a member of the lowly freshman set, you're prejudiced in favor of the lowly freshman set. If you happen to be a visitor to the campus you're prejudiced in favor of sending the whole koo-bottle to an institution for the mentally deranged, after viewing the haughty upperclassmen putting meek (?) freshmen through initiation to the Eastern way of life; after viewing freshmen dressed like fantastic ghouls in, for example, on Monday, no make-up and "Frosh" written across their foreheads in red lipstick letters and patched skirts and what else we won't mention—it'd take too long. But that they wore on Monday if they were little boys and in odd shoes, pants rolled up three rolls, shirt and tie with tie neatly tied—back of the neck—if they were little boys. But Tuesday was most horrible, if one excludes Friday which saw the campus strewn with colored odd socks fallen off the edges of skirts and mustaches worn with veiled hats by the young ladies, for on Tuesday the sweet young things, both male and female, blossomed out in bath towels worn Hindu fashion around the head. (Lo, the poor Indian!), and house slippers for the girls and bathrobes (mostly of the variety usually worn by women), complete with trouser legs rolled above hem of robe, for boys. (Posty, old girl, Eastern hath need of thee in such hours!)

Come Wednesday, a lovely time was had by all viewing the pictures of boy-friends carried by the poor little girls—the boys are best left unmentioned, and heaven help us all—the tie for belt, belt for tie. Nor shall we mention Thursday with the boys on stick horses.

The sixth day of the week found around merrily wearing pajama tops for shirts and for blouses, with the gals appearing in the aforementioned veiled hats, et cetera. All of this while the boys exposed their socks in a different manner, i.e. by rolling up one trouser leg to knee. Which isn't all, for in addition to the monstrosities of dress, hapless freshmen when spoken to had to reply with various slogans as designated per day; and of course, when asked by an upperclassman had to praise their political party's candidate for president. Those praised with verve and vigor included Dewey, Roosevelt, and Norman Thomas. All in all each day presented such a pretty sight (pronounce that last word with emphasis, please. Thank you), that the impartial visitor to the campus would be inclined to go quietly nuts if he were not careful. But then he might also realize

A Freshman

By KATHERINE MULLINS
We freshmen came to Eastern a few weeks ago—"College at last!" we thought. College filled with serious classes, etiquette practiced to the nth degree, and most of all, we looked forward to sophisticated styles. A little class would be nice after high school, featuring sloppy joes, mocs, un-artistic hair-do's, and any other eerie idea some brainstorm produced.

All went well, exceptionally well, until out of a very composed period, brightly colored posters were hoisted to intercept the freshman view. Pictures of treacherous cats, hideous devils, accompanied by pitchforks, and destructive flames everywhere.

What could this be? Closer attention, please. Oh, the Freshman Hell Week. Yes, but slowly, we freshmen grasped the idea revealed by those menacing posters. But, college couldn't be undignified, so why worry, we thought. Probably some minor distinction between freshman and upperclassman. Merely a well-made name plate—we kept thinking—

Ah, but this is where the story changes. Pajama party! Sounds mild enough. Attendance requested very politely. Party was grand, but alas, as we prepared to return to our calm secluded environment, some sheets of paper were passed to the freshmen who gallantly took them. We read and re-read—you mean we do this—in COLLEGE?—was written in every frosh face.

We did do it in college. Through Hell Week one could see drowsy freshmen with hair rolled unbecomingly on rags, suit cases and laundry bags being toted to class, patched skirts predominating attention. Then pig-tails standing independently from the head, house slippers dragging monotonously through the hours of the day, towels heavily draped around the head, and, may I add, NO hair showing. These are only a part of the week for freshmen, and this shall be all, as I don't want to embarrass the sensitive freshmen.

A final note: We freshmen came through that Hell Week with flying colors!

ize that with us, initiation is a tradition of the sort that somehow, when kept all in the spirit of good wholesome fun, comes to mean a lot to the student of Eastern the more he advances in school and in years and in ideas; that somehow the person who has missed out on the rigors of Hell Week almost inevitably comes to realize how much he has missed, for really, initiation is a sort of formal acceptance into the college group, into the social life of the campus.

Honestly, now, there's nothing like it. Just as honestly it was swell the way our freshmen bore up under the ordeal of Hell Week and seemed to get a lot of fun out of complying with the rules and regulations and demands of the upperclassmen and generally met the situation in such a manner as to win the observer's utmost approval and admiration; for if a person can go through Hell Week and prove himself a good sport he has proved a lot about himself as an individual. Which reminds me. We were interested in an impartial view of Hell Week, weren't we? Impartial or not, the average student of Eastern is inclined to think it was a lot of fun, although he may not so adamantly or so audibly admit it at all times. Freshman week rather draws out the poetry in one's soul. To quote: . . . but . . . oh, oh-kay, I'll go quietly. Don't rush me now . . . hey! Quit pushing! . . . But you'll have to admit that Hell Week . . .

Social Committee Entertains Student Body

The Social Committee of Eastern sponsored a weiner supper last Saturday, October 14 at 5:00 p. m. to be held in the amphitheater. But, as last year, it rained enough beforehand to necessitate moving all the paraphernalia indoors to the recreation room of Burnam Hall. All the teachers and students were invited; many came.

Soon after 5:00 the guests began to arrive. They entered Burnam Hall by the front basement door to the left of the main entrance and were served from two long tables laden with all manner of good things. Then they proceeded into the main recreation room to eat to the tune of the latest numbers played on the record player. Dancing started about six o'clock.

The menu consisted of weiners on buns, potato salad, whole tomatoes, milk, cokes, and apples served in true picnic style. There was plenty for all, in fact everyone was urged to take second and even third helpings.

All the arrangements were made by the Social Committee which is made up of eleven members of the faculty, and six students, two from each class. The faculty members serving on the committee are Mrs. Case, Mr. Burns, Mr. Cox,

Another Hell Week has come and gone—thank goodness for that. Let's not bring the matter up anymore—whatcha say? Thanks up a n y m o r e — whatcha say? Thanks pal.

No, Dumb Dora, the Canterbury Club is an English club and not a riding club.

By the way, have you heard the news? Four beautiful saddle horses have been given the college by a very good friend. I only hope he knows how much we appreciate them. Thanks bushels.

Seems there were quite a few alumni on the campus this weekend. It surely is great to see the old gang drifting home again.

By all the grunts and groans, it was easy to tell just who went on the Y retreat. They musta had really a huge time—Did you?

OFF THE BACKBOARD

By Jim Wade

The nation's gridiron dreadnaughts are ploughing into heavy mid-season seas this week, but here at Eastern we are more interested in matters concerning basketball. Your Maroons at this writing have about sixteen ball games lined up for this cage session. Included in the list are Western, Murray, Milligan, Berea and more than a dozen others.

The question of the week is—Have you seen the basketball floor since Messrs. Rankin and Hughes undertook their face lifting job? It really looks flashy... a sparkling, clean floor set off by a dark maroon border, and in the center is a big white E on a maroon field.

If the Eastern basketballers can only play as well as the Gym looks, we will win all our ball games...

The team is hard at it now. Coach Rankin has the group drilling on a sharp new defense that is going to cause a lot of woe in the camps of the enemy. Its tricky and requires a lot of timing and fast ball handling, but Coach Rankin has a gang of lads that we believe can do the job.
