Governors Combs and Clement To Address CKEA

Eastern Bonds Are Purchased

Board Of Regents Hold Meeting

The Eastern State College Board of Regents announced Tuesday afternoon that Blyth and Company, Inc., of Louisville and Chicago, purchased $2,000,000 in series A bonds for the consolidated educational building project on the campus. Included in this project are the new laboratory school, the addition to the Fitzpatrick Arts Building and new maintenance building.

The low bid was $1,960,000, with accrued interest at the rate of 4.05 per cent over the 30 year period.

The board also approved the recommendation of President Robert R. Martin to completely reorganize the business department of the college, and approved the naming of two dormitories and the 80-unit married students' housing project, all of which are now under construction. From the successful execution of the functions of their divisions.

"The business department is established," said Dr. Martin, "to provide the services, facilities, and equipment necessary for the academic program of the college to be carried on. It seeks to perform this function in the most efficient and economical manner coincident with sound business practices."

Brook Agent

Officials of the business department are: G. M. Brock, business agent, and head of the division of purchases and stores; Ralph Conlee, director of buildings and grounds; Charles A. Ross, director of the division of accounting and budgetary control; James O. King, director of the division of auxiliary enterprises and services, and Walter R. Gattis, director of the division of internal audit. King was added only recently to the staff at the college. He has served as budget analyst in the Kentucky Department of Finance and has recently been in charge of administrative services for the state department of parks.

The new men's dormitory, which is scheduled for completion next March, will be named Mattox Hall, in honor of the late Mattox, registrar of the college. M. E. Mattox, who has served the college since 1924 and has been its registrar since 1925.

Dean Since 1932
The women's dormitory, also expected to be completed in March, will be called Case Hall, honoring the Eastern dean of women, Mrs. Emma V. Case. She has served on the staff since 1925 and has served as dean of women since 1932.

The married student housing project will be known as Brockton in honor of Marshall Brock, who has served Eastern for 42 years. He has been the business agent since 1923.

The board also approved the employment of part-time faculty members to teach evening or Saturday classes during the fall semester. These were needed due to the tremendous increase in enrollment.

William E. Adams and Miss Ruth Ford, both of Richmond, Ezra A. Mattox of Lexington, and Gerald May, of Stanford, will teach in the commerce department; Mrs. Case in the education department; Mrs. Louise McIlvaine, Richmond, and Mrs. Geneva W. Owens, Stanford, English; Mrs. Elise Sams Patrick, Booneville, and Dan Shinklehower, art; Mrs. Opal Patterson, Richmond, science, and Henry Pryse, Harrodsburg, health.

More Bids Sought
Dr. Martin announced that advertisement for bids for a complete electrical distribution system and street lighting system will go out on Sept. 27 and bids will be opened on Oct. 20. Advertisements for bids for the addition to the Fitzpatrick Arts Building and a new maintenance building will go out Oct. 17 and opened Nov. 15.

1960 Cheerleaders Chosen

Eastern's varsity cheerleaders for 1960-61 were chosen last Wednesday, September 21. Eight girls, including five sophomores and three juniors, were elected from the field of thirty-eight that participated in the tryouts.

The sophomore girls chosen were Linda Wood, commerce major from Austin; Judy Sheehan, physical education major from Ashland; Shirley Morgan, commerce from Warsaw; Mary Beth Hempfling from Hebron, and Sharon Bergman from Loyal.

Ann Stanley Johnson, Winchester; Barbara Rose, Berea; and Elaine Norris, Richmond, were the junior girls selected. The cheerleading tryouts gave the freshman a chance to hear some of the Eastern cheers which will be yelled at the games. Kyma Club sponsored the tryouts and election.

Playboy Wants Campus Rep.

Playboy is accepting applications for a student to represent the magazine at Eastern. The Playboy College Bureau recently announced. More than 500 such campus representatives at colleges across the country regularly do public relations work for the magazine, such as conducting subscription and campus retailer promotions, pretesting clothing and other merchandise for national advertisers, and serving as liaison men at campus Playmate appearances.

Interested students should clip this notice and send it with name and address to the Playboy College Bureau, 232 East Ohio Street, Chicago 11, Illinois.

She is the retiring president of CWENS, the sophomore girls honorary society, a member of the Baptist Student Union, the Biology Club, secretary of the YMCA a Big Sister, secretary of the junior class and former president of the freshman and sophomore class. Besides her many activities, Evelyn has maintained a scholastic standing of 2.5.

Evelyn will represent the Corps at the annual Regimental Drill Meet of the Pershing Rifles, along with the Pershing Rifles sponsor, in Ohio this May.

O'D To Advise

Dr. W. F. O'Donnell, President-Emeritus of Eastern Kentucky State College since his retirement June 30 has an office in the Library where he is doing some writing and some research. He will prepare a history of his administration, which extended over a period of nineteen years. He has a student secretary who works with him ten hours a week.

Pres. Monitors Appointed

Quentin Keen, Dean of Men, has released the names of men appointed by Pres. Martin as Presidential Monitors. The monitors by dormitory are as follows: O'Donnell Hall, George Beckett, Harry Campbell, Alan Coleman, Thomas Henderson, Frank Longley, Larry McMillan, and Herman Tucker; Keith Hall, Ronald Crosbie, David Downing, Larry Stanley, and Harvey Turner; Miller Hall, John Prall; Beckham Hall, Dwight Eastridge; McCreary Hall, Donald Roak; Telford Hall, Ronald Addison; Lancaster House, Clyde Stapleton; and the Richmond Hotel, Theron Goolsin, David Johnson, Davis Stuart, and Max Young.

Dean Keen stated that the monitors are responsible for maintaining discipline in the men's dormitory area. Any student causing trouble or having trouble with a monitor in performance of his duty will be in serious difficulty. The Dean called for a strict adherence to all rules and regulations. The dormitories are to be places of study, relaxation, and rest; they are not to be considered areas of recreation and to insure this, a stricter enforcement of rules will be carried out.

Kennedy To Tour State

Senator John F. Kennedy, democratic presidential nominee, will open his Kentucky campaign with a 5:15 P.M. rally in front of the Jefferson County Courthouse in Louisville on October 5. Later that evening he will address a $50-a-plate dinner at the Fairgrounds.

Speaks in Lexington

The next day Thursday, October 6, Sen. Kennedy will fly first to Bowling Green, speaking at Court House Square; then he will fly to Lexington, arriving there at 1:00 P.M. He will parade through town and speak in front of the Administration Building at the University.

Completing a busy day, the senator will go to Covington, making a speech there in the late afternoon at the public square. Morehead and Mayfield, originally included in Kennedy's tour, were dropped when it was discovered the Kennedy party's DC-6's could not land at these cities.

Martin Honored By Reception

A reception honoring President and Mrs. Robert R. Martin was held last night in Walnut Hall from eight to ten o'clock. The faculty and administrative staff, together with their wives and husbands, helped make this a memorable night.

The faculty members were in groups according to the department in which each one teaches. Standards bearing the departmental names were located at various places in Walnut Hall so that it was easy for the students to locate and greet their professors. The staff grouped at eight o'clock and stayed together long enough to greet all the students.

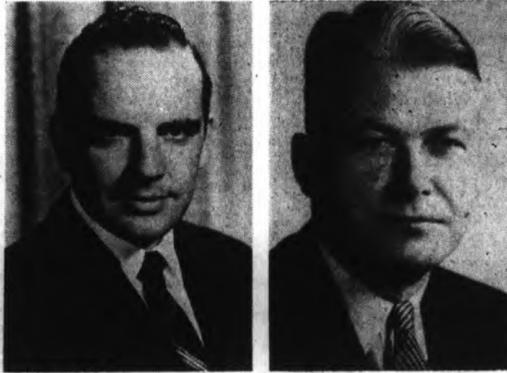

Everyone had a most enjoyable time. All the students enjoyed meeting their professors out of the class room for a social visit.

P. R.'s Choose Robb

Miss Connell Robb, sophomore from Nicholasville, was elected sponsor of Company R, National Society of Pershing Rifles.

Connell will represent Eastern, along with Miss Evelyn Craft, corps sponsor, at the Regimental Drill Meet in Ohio this May. Connell is a member of the Baptist Student Union Young Democrats, and Big Sisters.

Former Gov. Frank Clements Governor Bert T. Combs

Martin Addresses Assembly

President Robert R. Martin outlined, in rather general terms, some of his plans for Eastern in the next few years at the first assembly of the year, Wednesday, September 21.

A capacity crowd, about 1,800, heard Pres. Martin announce that parking in front of the girls' dormitories would no longer be permitted; and that the ample sidewalks available would make walking on the grass unnecessary.

Pres. Martin said that he planned to consult with the student governing body on many matters that concern the student body. He seemed to indicate that effective student government may be on its way.

Accomplishments

The president also pointed with conceivable pride to the many accomplishments of his administration. He gave a report on the building program, now under way, and announced further projects to come. The maintenance department, under Mr. Ralph Conlee, also was praised for its work on the campus beautification program now under way. In his speech, Pres. Martin reaffirmed his conviction that the enrollment will reach 6,000 before the end of the decade, and the final choice in making Eastern an even greater institution rests with the ability and dedication of the student body.

"Do not feel," he said, "that because you are only one in 3,400 that you can not make a contribution to the future development of Eastern." The president stressed participation in all college activities, a attendance at athletic events, and more school spirit all around.

Open Door Policy

Pres. Martin also announced an official "open door policy" at his office. "I want the student to feel that he can always receive a fair hearing in my office and I urge you to let me know how you feel about campus problems." The president plans to set aside one day a week to hear student views on any subject relative to the administration of the college.

Inauguration Planned

Dr. Moore, dean of the college informed the assembly that plans are now being made for the inauguration of our first president in fifteen years. Dean Moore expects the event to be one of the most spectacular ever held on the campus.

Ministers Presented

Leading ministers of Richmond churches were also on hand to extend a welcome to Eastern students. Drs. E. N. Perry of the First Baptist Church; Frank Tindler, First Christian Church; W. H. Moore, First Methodist Church; and E. L. Ferrell, head of the education department who spoke for the Presbyterian Church, each expressed the hope that all of Eastern's students find a church home.

Young Democrats Organized

Twenty-three new members joined the ranks of the Young Democrats Wednesday, Sept. 21. The following temporary officers were appointed at that time: President, Tom Isaac; 1st vice-president, Jerry Calmes; 2nd vice-president, Linda Reed; 3rd vice-president, Roy Martin; 4th vice-president, Jim Peters; publicity chairman, Julia Ann Pollard; secretary, Elizabeth Lee Taylor; treasurer, Janet Walton Smyth.

The club is making plans to attend the State Convention of Young Democrats to be held in Louisville, October 5 and 6. Future meetings of the Young Democrats will be held each Wednesday at 7:00 P.M., in Room 201 of the Student Union Building. All Democrats are invited to attend.

Seniors Choose Candidate

Miss Connie Swan, senior from Louisville, has been chosen by the senior class as its candidate for Homecoming Queen.

The seniors, meeting for the first time, also dedicated the Milestone to their sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Larance. Joella Logan, Joy Graham, Charles Klomne, and Larry Stanley were elected as Student Council representatives from the senior class.

Senior class officers are Leonard Jefferson, president; Dave Grosheder, vice-pres.; Frank Whalen, treas.; and Barbara Hines, sec.

KYMA Plans Homecoming

Jim Williams, Kyma president, announced 1960 Homecoming instructions at a meeting of organization presidents held Wednesday, September 21. The meeting was held in order to encourage campus organizations to take a more active part in making the 1960 Homecoming the biggest and best in Eastern's history.

In his instructions to the group, figure, posture and grace, and end Mr. Williams announced that no oral appearance. The presidents group met with the Homecoming festivities unless the Kyma organization again last less she is riding on a parade night to formulate further plans float. STUDENT GOVERNMENT

With the greater enrollment and the sight of a much larger one in the future, Eastern has begun to expand its college plant to meet these demands. Greater enrollment, however, demands from the student body, greater regulations. Our administration, an aggressive and energetic one, has made many helpful and needed changes.

Eastern now, more than ever before, needs and demands the best possible student government. The purpose of student government is to help represent the student rights and help carry the spirit of the student body to the administration.

The government of a student body is a serious and noble essential that every college needs. But let's clarify the point. It is government, not an over-glorified special committee only interested in presenting itself as an elite cliche. It's duties lie in the fact that it is a mature body of students, chosen because of leadership which does not entail their cleverness at building floats. These persons are there for one purpose—to make Eastern a better institution.

Let me make it clear there is no institution that is perfect or is there any that is free from error. But student government is there to make sure that a minimum of effort be made against the student body.

For this reason we urge YOU, as members of clubs, fraternities, and most especially the student body to help your representative know what you consider crucial issues. Without this help, student government will fail and with it any chance of any student representation. We give you the choice, the student government or social committee.

VIEWS ON THE NEWS

(REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON AND ELSEWHERE)
By Barry Wade Brennan

The repercussions resulting from the recent Kennedy-Johnson Congressional fiasco will have, or will seem to have, shuddering effects in the relatively few weeks remaining until the Presidential election. The K & J ticket was harmed more than it was helped by the post-convention meeting of Congress. The two party leaders were absolutely unable to control the Congress. Even though it was under Democratic control (i.e. leadership).

What the brief session did seem to prove was that no matter who wins the election of November 8th, the Congress will be conservative. In other words controlled by a rather effective coalition of Republicans and conservative southern Democrats.

Another interesting side-light was the effective way in which Nixon and Eisenhower outplayed Kennedy and Johnson at their own political game. The frustrating thing about the whole congressional mess was that tax payers had to sit by and watch a three ring circus being staged with public monies. No wonder the critics of Congress suggest drastic revamping of the whole ludicrous system.

At any rate, THE U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT is compulsory reading until the elections are over. You can read TIME, too; it's always a good way to keep up the biases.

Right now Jack Kennedy is way out front in the all-important electoral vote. He can count on many of the states in the South. Nixon, starting with nothing promised, has a harder job. But Kennedy has lost some ground. Nixon gained some. The congressional session, already discussed, helped Nixon. Hurt Mr. Kennedy.

The fiery, vodka-swilling Khrushchev, now at the UN, may help Nixon. We doubt that either side wants the fat commie's seal of approval, but Kennedy will probably get it for what ever it's worth.

Kennedy and Johnson have not yet met the red ring-leader in close combat. Cabot Lodge and Nixon have. This may be an advantage for the Republicans.

Kennedy plans to take the North (gobs of electoral votes); he can count on labor; and can figure on some farm discontent which, we could add, is considerable.

Nixon intends to play to the southern civil rights discontent which, we could add, is considerable. He will count on experience, world events, and some support from non-committed voters.

Who will win? Of course, no one knows, but if we were backed into a corner, it would no doubt be Nixon.

Anyway, Congress has a mind of its own and the chief executive can expect to take a back seat for 2 to 4 years. And, oh, yes, Norman Thomas, irrepressible successor to Eugene Debs and socialist candidate for president, relates the following piece of optimistic news: That Russia and the United States now have, in their arms stock piles, enough TNT to distribute ten tons per person to every human in the world. Oh, well! Remember kiddies, sleep tight, your National Guard is awake.

We Think That . . .
Norman Thomas has the courage of his convictions.
President Eisenhower should be glad to retire.
Mrs. Roosevelt should sit in one spot at National Conventions.
Earl Long was a shame.
Harry Truman was a better president than a piano player.
Castro is really the 15th reincarnation of Hitler.
John Sherman Cooper would make a better Democrat.

. . . Of State Interest
The constitution is under fire again, and justly so. Did you know that under our present constitution our governors must promise never to fight a duel with deadly weapons?

This writer feels that all intelligent students and voters should favor the limited constitutional convention that is now being proposed. Governor Combs' sales tax, coupled with the veto bonus with which he had little to do, promise to make him a rather unpopular chief executive. Some of us have buckets of pennies to prove that this feeling is founded on fact rather than fiction.

Personally, we believe that the benefits of the sales tax justify the inconvenience. The Courier-Journal says that Clements and Chandler have patched up their long-standing feud. That's nice.

Don't Forget To . . .
Register for an absentee ballot.
Support the party of your choice with a little long green.
Remember, if you do give a dollar, don't expect to be appointed ambassador to Great Britain. It's your patriotic duty.
Wear a lapel pin, or something. Take some sort of a stand, for gosh sakes!

TOUCHE'

Anatomy of A Freshman Beanie

(Former Title: I Went to College on the GI Bill)

By Dave Adams

Synopsis of preceding chapters: Brasting with pride, young Bill Tomuch (by his own admission the smartest freshman at Weather Vane College) accepts a bid from his favorite (and the only) fraternity on campus—Alpha Pi Epsilon. Shocked that he will be unable to put the initials on his car, he attempts suicide but succeeds in merely getting a severe and permanent headache. Beseet by Pain and Agony and other girls that he had wronged, Bill is forced to do something drastic. He asks a faculty member for advice! Aardvark Plink, professor of education, astronomy and physiology and half blind to boot, is no fool. (Though he is married.) When asked to give advice, he remembered his silent partnership in a local tavern and advises Bill to take up drinking to excess to forget his worries. Smarter than the last time, Bill remembers to remove his head-light hat and to wash off the coal dust before going to the tavern, as minors aren't allowed (English is not one of Bill's strong subjects). To hide the fact that he had used THREE dabs of a popular hair cream and to keep away the fruit flies, Bill borrows his roommate's lead-lined Freshman Beanie. (The action so far took 32 chapters, the next 528 deal with 528 vain attempts to remove the Beanie from Freshman Bill's head.) The story is continued as Bill hopefully asks Professor Plink for advice on how to remove the beanie.

Chapter 561:

"Professor Plink, could you give me some advice on how to remove the Beanie from my head?" asked Bill hopefully with great feeling.

"No," replied Professor Plink with greater feeling.

"You're lying," cried Bill with sudden hatred in his voice.

"What if I am?" replied Professor Plink with liquor on his breath.

"Then I'll report you to the faculty club," said Bill hotly.

"Really?" replied Professor Plink coldly as he idly scratched Bill's arm with a poisoned needle.

"Yes," replied Bill collapsing to the floor.

"Please don't, Bill," said the Professor with tears in his eyes as he bent over the prostrate form of Poor Bill Tomuch cut off in the prime of life.

(Author's note: I am tired of this character, so I'm getting a new hero for this serial. I'm sorry if I have shocked anyone.)

"Turn, Aardvark Plink, you dog," said Fencing-master, Herbie Phillips tonelessly.

"Horrors, I am apprehended," said Plink tonelessly.

"Surrender or die, Aardvark, old buddy," said the Fencing-master with tears streaming down his cheeks (he had just heard the Ball Score).

"I'm not too good with multiple choice questions," Plink cried furiously as he lunged in an attempt to grab the F-M's sword.

"Opps—Ah—Er, I mean—TOUCHE'," exclaimed the F-M as Plink impaled himself on the sword.

"Ahh—gh," gurgled Plink as he slid to the floor.

"My hero," uttered Belvedere Tomuch, Bill's sister, who had been hanging on the wall disguised as a pictured frame.

go on, muttered Aardvark Plink with his last dying breath.

"Words," muttered F-M Phillips as he staggered to his office to bring his diary up to date.

"My hero," repeated Belvedere to nobody in particular as she disengaged herself from around the picture of Whistler's Daddy and fell to the floor head first, cracking the concrete floor. (continued next year).

Will Belvedere survive the fall? Will Bill get a decent burial? Can Aardvark Plink's wife collect Social Security? Will Weather Vane College give up football just because the stadium has been turned into a lake? Will Jack and Jackie move into the White House? Will the United States survive a Nuclear War? Will Red China get in the U. N.? For the answers to these and other questions, see the next installment of this series—Don't hold your breath!

Pictured above is the latest addition to Eastern's campus, a large orange water tower. The tower when completed will have a 400,000 gallon capacity and will supply sufficient water pressure for the campus area.

Book Review
Literary Value Questioned

Catcher In The Rye, by J. D. Salinger (Little, Brown and Co., Boston. Available at Eastern Library)

One of the most controversial books of our time is Catcher In The Rye, by J. D. Salinger. The comments that may be heard about it range from, "It is an attempt to sell an idea by appealing to the taste for filth and pornography shown by many people today," to "Every intelligent teenage boy can associate himself with the book" and "No other book so well expresses the thought and speech of today's American youth."

Other opinions may be worse or better but those above were expressed by Eastern students.

Catcher In The Rye is about Holden Caulfield, a 17-year-old boy who hates "phonies"—this classification includes practically everyone, "crumbs" and "preverts." He wanders around New York for several days after flunking out of his third boarding school, looking for someone who isn't a "phony" with whom to talk.

The language Holden uses is frank (filthy is the term some people use.) A high school teacher in Louisville created quite a furor when he put the book on his students' recommended reading list; and a much discussed question about this book is whether the language Salinger used is just to sell it or is actually justified in developing the character.

Maroons Meet 'Breds Friday Teams Lost Last Week-End

Eastern Kentucky's Maroons, 28-7 losers to a strong University of Louisville in their last outing, open conference firing Friday night when they host a Murray State Thoroughbred team regarded as the strongest fielded at the western Kentucky school in recent years.

Both the Maroons and the 'Breds are recovering from losses suffered last week-end. Murray dropped a 20-15 decision to Florence State at Alabama last Saturday, while Eastern lost to U. L. on Friday night.

The schedule of the two teams made it possible for the opposing coaches, Don Shelton of Murray, and Glenn Presnell, of Eastern, to scout first hand the other team. Presnell and aids, Glenn Gossett and Don Daly, returned from Florence State with a report that this Murray team is very swift and aggressive. "This is certainly the finest Murray team I have seen in several years," said Presnell. "They are a fine hustling club and we (the coaches) were greatly impressed by their desire and team work."

Loss Disappointing The Maroons' loss to the U. L. Redbirds was disappointing, especially since the Cards scored three touchdowns and monopolized play the entire second half. Presnell said his young Maroons were man and pile driving fullback Sammy Incavido sat out much of the contest with injuries, especially in the second half.

So you see, sports fans and Eastern rooters, there were many bright spots in an otherwise disheartening defeat. With two tough games under their belts, the Maroons meet a rugged Murray team under the lights Friday night at Hanger Stadium in a "must" game for both teams in the O.V.C. race.

From all indications, the Eastern-Maroons are going to be an exciting team to watch in 1960. Don't miss a home game!

Let's Talk Sports

with Larry Wetenkamp

Well, the season has been going on roughly for two weeks and already you can see who has the good teams, and who hasn't. This year, Syracuse, Mississippi, Illinois, and Washington, again appear to be very powerful. Some other good teams to watch are: Notre Dame, Southern California, Kansas, Northwestern, and Ohio State. If we were to make a top ten list it would be as follows:

TOP TEN

1. Mississippi
2. Syracuse
3. Illinois
4. Washington
5. Notre Dame
6. Kansas
7. Northwestern
8. Tennessee
9. Ohio State
10. Alabama

We know this won't agree with some people's choice but everyone to his own pick. What's yours? Coming up this week-end are two real tough games to watch: Syracuse vs. Kansas — Ohio State vs. Southern California. Our picks are Syracuse over Kansas, and Ohio State over Southern Cal. Also we pick Kentucky to upset Auburn. Keep your fingers crossed.

This week-end our own Eastern Kentucky Maroons take on Murray State Thoroughbreds. The game is scheduled for Friday night at Richmond, so come out and see the game. The hard luck Maroons after a tough break game with Louisville will be gunning for their second victory. We think they will get it Friday night. Support your Maroons!!

LOUISVILLE DOWNS MAROONS, 28 - 7

By LARRY KNARR

After dominating play for the first 30 minutes last Friday night, the fighting young Eastern Maroons collapsed completely, suffering their first defeat of the season at the hands of a larger Louisville Cardinal eleven.

The Cardinals impressed the Memorial Night crowd of 3,100 by taking the opening kickoff and driving straight down the field for a quick touchdown. A 20-yard pass play from Walker to Starnes climaxed the drive. The conversion try was no good.

From then on in the first half it was all Eastern. Once they finally got their hands on the football they seemed reluctant to part with it. The Maroons came bounding back into the scoring column in the second quarter when fullback Sammy Incavido blasted over from the one to cap an 80-yard drive.

David "The Toe" Hatfield added the extra point and the Maroons led 7-4 with intermission still eight minutes away.

Later in the period, the Big E again launched a drive, gaining a first down inside the Cardinal 5. The Louisville line held fast, however, and the Maroons had to give up possession scant inches from the goal line. A touchdown here might conceivably have broken the back of the Louisville team and assured an Eastern victory. Instead it proved to be an incentive for the Cardinals, who acted like maddened bulls the rest of the game.

The Maroons, slowed down by numerous injuries to key players received in the Ft. Campbell game, left the field at halftime a badly bruised and battered bunch. At game time three-fourths of Eastern's first-string backfield was on the injured list. Quarterback Jim Conley wasn't even in uniform for the game. Another damaging blow was the loss of a terrific end, Harvey Yeary, for the balance of the season.

Whether the injuries were too much for the Maroons or not, they were plainly not the same team in the second half as the fired-up Cards made it a rout with three touchdowns in the final half. Eastern's fourth-ranked and fumbled while Louisville capitalized on every break.

Defensive specialist Carl Howard gave the Eastern fans a chance to yell late in the final stanza when he intercepted a Louisville pass in the end zone and rambled what appeared to be 103 yards and a touchdown. The play was called back to the U. of L. 41 on a questionable clipping penalty, however, as the final seconds ticked away.

Impressive performances were turned in by sophomore guard, Kenny Goodhew, who continued to be in the middle of everything; sophomore backs Elvin Brinegar, Carl Howard, and Bill Elkins; freshman tackle Phil Angeli; sophomore center Willy Davis; senior guard Scaddy Adkisson; and freshman halfbacks Jim Chittum and Richie Emmons.

Quarterback Tony Lanham played a very fine game, proving he could run the ball well when called upon. Everyone already knew Tony was a fine passer, but his tricky options were very impressive. Lanham was the Maroons' leading ball carrier with 34 yards in ten attempts.
