B. S. U. Convenes

By ARTIE WELLS

On Friday, October 29, at 5:00 a Black Brothers bus rolled up in front of the Student Union Building and about thirty-two Baptist students got on it. They were on their way to Georgetown where they would be among approxi-mately a thousand other students who were registered for the annual Baptist Student Union Convention. Most of Kentucky's col-leges and two hospitals were represented there.

We were greeted at the bus and shown where to register. The line was a line, but you were served punch while you had to

The Keynote of the Convention was "Christ, The Way, The Truth, The Life." This was written in The Life." This was written in large letters and placed in the background of the stage where it could be seen at any angle or in any part of the building.

On Friday night the keynote message, "Christ, The Way and The Truth," was delivered by Dr. W. O. Vaught, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, Little Rock, Arkensag After the message the Convention was led by Mr. Ira Prosser, State B. S. N. Secretary of Oklahoma City. If you have ever heard a thousand students singing, you will know what is meant by saying that the music was wonderful. Special music furnished by the different colleges was given during the services.

The Saturday morning mesasge was delivered by Tucker Callaway a returned missionary from Japan, while the remainder of the mornwhile the remainder of the morning was devoted to conferences conducted by college pastors. At the afternoon session the state officers for the coming year were elected. Kenneth Massey of Eastern was elected State Magazine Representative.

The highlight of the afternoon was a messagee by Dr. Cornell Gaener, professor at Southern Baptist Seminary. He outlined the mission needs of the world.

When this was over, you were ready to eat; and to satisfy your desire they had a buffet supper ready. Between this and the next

"Post Road" Presented Sixteen Students

The Little Theatre Club presented its first production of the year last night at 8 o'clock in the Hiram Brock Auditorium before approximately 600 people. Perhaps the best performance of the evening was given by Jane Thomas in the leading role of Emily; although, Walter Green, as George, provided many moments of pure enjoyment.

The cast consisted of: Jane Thomas, Emily Madison; Marinella meeting which consisted of a play. Thompson, May Preble; Walter "The Lost Church," and a concert Green, George Preble; Leon Pear-"The Lost Church," and a concert by the Georgetown concert choir you had about two hours. If you were not ready for bed, you went to town and hunted for something more to eat.

On Sunday morning each heart was lifted by students telling experiences they had had for Christ followed by the closing message, Joanne Joyce, a young couple.

The plot of "Post Road" centered around Emily, the old-maid propri-eter of a tourist home. Emily rents for his campus shortly after this her house to a doctor whose pat-messagee. THE BYSTANDER

BY NOSMO KING

While standing by, Old Nosmo noticed that: A young beautiful coed remarked to her dancing partner, "This floor we're dancing on is certainly slippery."

"It isn't the floor we're dancing on, honey," the boy replied, "I just had my shoes shined."

The hard-studying college student threw down his pencil in disgust and pounded on the wall separating his room from another. "Hey, I can hear that radio as though it were in my own room." A voice came back, "Then would you care to help pay off some of the instalments?"

A certain boy with the initials D. H. remarked to his good friend "I've been driving a car for four years and never had a wreck."

"That's nothing," J. D. said, "I've been driving a wreck for ten years and never had a car." He laughed and patted gently the tin you love to touch.

Why do people have wrecks? Is it because they are careless? A professor asked this very question in a certain school only last week. "Why do we have wrecks? Why are there more automobile wrecks than train wrecks?"

An eager student (there seems to always be one) jumped to his "I can answer that, sir," he said with vigor. "Very well. Proceed John."

"It must be because the enginer never kisses the fireman."

Speaking of kisses old Nosmo happened to be strolling leisurely by a certain campus edifice one star-lit evening when he heard muf-fled voices. As my companion and I walked closer the voices became audible.

"You'll really marry me, darling?" exclaimed the love-struck freshman. He went on: "And when we are married, the black clouds will roll away, the sky will . . "

"Don't make it a weather forecast—kiss me," said the practical girl. I happened to be reading a little pamphlet last week. It's Fun To Live In America" was the title of it. I'd like to quote parts of it here. In the upper left-hand corner is a picture of a boat sailing across the sea. And one would only have to look once to see that across the sea. And one would only have to look once to see that that boat was sailing toward a vast, free, scarcely known land.

"When Peter the Pilgrim came to America with his papa and mamma some three hundred years ago, he knew that his folks were thrifty folks, because rgiht away Papa Pilgrim set up a little shop and went into business for himself. At the same time, a reverend by the name of Smith built a church. A man by the name of Jones started a farm, and Carpenter Wright began to build ships."

"Years passed. Thousands of people came to America—Tony the Italian; Pat the Irishman; Sven the Swede; and Abraham the Jew. THEY CAME FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD. Tony's people are big produce people now, Sven's are Minnesota farmers, Abe's are in the clothing business, while Pat's are policemen and builders. Shure and it's only a shtroy,' ye say. Well, perhaps so, but IT IS THE STORY OF AMERICA! Why Begorra, there are more people living in their own homes, farming their own farms, and operating their own business here than anywhere else in the world! In the U. S. A. there are 27,300,000 homes. In England there are 9,123,000, there are 27,300,000 homes. In England there are 9,123,000, in Denmark 96,990. Russia has no available figures for private property was confiscated long ago in Russia. Only a few scattered one-man farms and businesses, a small home here and there, exist." All of the above adds up to this-our thrift and saving enables us to have more advantages than any other people on earth. Yet at the same time it enables us to help others. We're the "volunterringest" people on earth. Here are a few examples: The Red Cross, Community Chest, Polio, Tuberculosis, Heart, Cancer. So, we cross, Community Chest, Polio, Tuberculosis, Heart, Cancer. So, we believe in the voluntary way.

And yet, there are people, I repeat, who are trying to tear to the ground everything America has ever stood for that is good.

"They paint quite a picture; 'big business' is always the 'villian' they say; then they try to tell us that the government should run the railroads, telephones, schools, electric light plants and even our doctors." Why? Only in rare cases are these measures advisable.

Let's remember that Russia has been exercising complete gov ernment control for thirty years, and as a result, abolishing personal initiative and thereby the vitality and intelligence of their nation. Now they don't know right from wrong because they have accepted a conglomeration of theories that may look good on paper, but in a conglomeration of theories that may look good on paper, said in reality just won't work.

"The U. S. still believes that when Tony traded his pushcart for a vegetable truck, he became a capitalist, wisely investing his capital so he could produce more good things for his little Tony and Maria. We still believe in PRIVATE enterprise; in GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE, AND FOR THE PEOPLE."

SANGUINE SAGE

By DR. I. N. STEIN

The same idiot who asked me a question in the last issue of the Progress must have influenced one of his imbecilic acquaintances to send to the dear doctor another equally moronic puzzl.e After several hours of attempting to at least read the scribbled writing, I finally realized what the intended question was. The hollow-head's note is as follows:

Dear Dr. Stein: I know something that you don't know. (This fellow is indeed out of his mind.) I know how many angles can sit on the point of a nedle. (I assume the peasant is referring to angels). Do you know the answer? (How silly of him to even mention such a notion.)
(M. BESIL)

Answer: I have argued this point with some of the most learned men of the world. There seems to be no definite merging of opinions concerning it. Of course, I know the answer, but I honestly doubt that anyone else does, including you, Mr. M. Besil. Professor Nick O. Teen of Turkisputin University claims that as many as 471 angels can comfortably sit on a needle. But I disagree with him on that I do not believe that they could all "comlieve that they could all "comfortably" arrange themselves on so pointed an object. Another colleague, Dr. Bale Ofay of Bagle Research Labortary is positive that only three and one-half of them could perch atop the pin. Once more I am at odds with the so-called experts in that such an an gelic division would be highly im-probable and somewhat impractical.

Other noted scientists and philosophers have varied opinions which I will not bother to list. But they are all definitely in error. My theory is the only true and logical one. No other "angels-en-needle" expert can make that statement. Exactly 4,326 angels can seat themselves on the needle. Note that I did not use the term "comfortably," as I firmly believe that some 3,987 of them would be in a rather touching position. In fact the entire matter is a rather ticklish something and the least that may be said of it, the better for all concerned. By the way, the figures arrived at are the result of extensive correspondence and research work.

ACES EDGE VARSITY 7-0

Evansville College's Purple Aces Hughes is a 19 year old end were the victors of a 7-0 "mud from Pekin, Illinois. He weighs battle" staged here in Hanger 210 and stands 6-1. He was an all-Stadium on November 6. The Eastern loss was the first home ern.

Evnasville's Richard Bauer plunged over from the 1 after a 12 yard pass and a 15 yard penalty set the stage for the score. Don Galey kicked the placement to give the Aces their 7-0 victory margin.

With their speedy offense stalled in the mud, the Maroons failed to score on two opportunities.

Fish Fry

By PAUL DUNCAN

"The Society of the Plow," Eastern's new and rapidly growing agriculture club, marked one of the social highlights of the season here last week in a festive outdoor fish fry. The open air banquet was staged on the college farm with more than one hundred and twenty students and faculty members enjoying the event.

Festivities began when the tasty morsels were served out in the cool autumn air near warming bon fires. The chefs responsible for the preparation of the delicious foods were Mr. N. G. Deniston and Mr. A. B. Carter.

The enjoyment did not end with the serving of the food for the "Society of the Plow" presented some enjoyable music in the melodies furnished by the Harmony Swingsters, led by Rex Osborne. Honored guests for the evening were Dean and Mrs. Moore.

The ag club's officers are; Goebel Spurlock, president; Alton Parson, vice president; James Ingram, treasurer; and Blane Lakes, secretary. Bob Bory acted as chairman of the arrangement committee.
