MILESTONE OFFICERS CHOSEN

Two Christmases

On December 25, 1941, the United States had just entered the most terrible war in history.

But the news reporters have not returned to giving prominence to sports events and gangsterism—daily we hear accounts of British killing Japanese, or the converse; and whether the United States should aid the Chinese Nationalists in their fight with the Communists is a common topic for small talk.

It is in such an atmosphere as this that the United Nations organization is to be launched. Although this organization was formulated only a few months ago, current world questions, that of the atomic bomb chief among them, have already shoved it into the background.

The Wolf and the Dog

A hungry wolf came upon a dog and said to him, "Good friend, I am so hungry that I can't sleep, while you are sleek and fat. Where do you get so much to eat?"

"I live very poorly," moaned the wolf. "Day and night I roam through the fields and forest, hunting in vain for food for my family, I can stand it no longer; my wife and children are dying from hunger. Could I, therefore, become a servant of your master and guard his house?"

"Dear brother," said the wolf solemnly, "Hunger is hard, but a chain is harder. I wear no chain, and will never wear one. Rather would I starve with my wife and children. Return alone to your master. It is better to be hungry than fat; it is better to be free than to wear a chain. Farewell."

Y Christmas Party

An annual event of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. is the traditional Christmas party. The first party of this type was held in 1910 for a group of children who were living on the college farm at that time.

In 1943, the "Y's" decided to furnish the materials for the party, and since the WAC's were to be here on Christmas Eve, it was decided to let them give the party for the children.

Last year the party was not held on the campus because there was some difficulty in getting the children transported to and from the school. Due to this difficulty and others which were encountered, the "Y's" used their fund to sponsor a party out at the rural school, and also to give a party for the children at the Trachoma Hospital.

Elizabeth Osborne In Series Of Lectures

The male influence can be read on the faces of American women from border to border, and from campus to campus, says Elizabeth MacDonald Osborne, consultant in personal development, Dorothy Gray Laboratories, New York.

Most American college girls, and their mothers and sisters, were letting their appearance go a little to seed just before the war ended, Miss Osborne observed. Now, with men returning from service, the girls are primping once again and dressing up.

"Last year many of the great co-educational institutions were virtually girls' schools, and I found many deans worried about the students' lack of interest in their appearance."

"It wasn't just the well-known dungarees and flapping shirtrails. It was the fact that many girls were not taking care of their hair, their faces and their posture."

A great part of Miss Osborne's work, she says, is in convincing her audiences that beauty, good grooming and an attractive personality are all the result of good daily habits, and cannot be achieved overnight, in time for a Saturday dance.

Miss Osborne has lectured in many outstanding colleges and universities such as Randolph-Macon College, Pembroke College, Northwestern University, Pennsylvania College for Women, University of Michigan, Ohio State University, and over seventy other well known colleges and universities in the United States.

Her first lecture at Eastern will be given in assembly Wednesday, December 6th, and she is going to speak on the subject, "The Impression We Leave." This lecture is to be sponsored by the House Council of Burnam Hall.

On Wednesday evening of the same day at 7:00 p. m. in the Little Theatre, the Home Economics Club will sponsor another lecture at which time she will speak on the subject, "An Attractive Personality."

The sophomore sorority, Protia Decca, will sponsor a lecture on Thursday evening at 7:00 p. m. in the Hiram Brock Auditorium. Her subject at this time will be "How To Achieve The Right Look."

She will speak to the Freshmen girls' sociology classes at 2:00 p. m. Wednesday afternoon. Sophomores are also invited to attend this meeting.

The remaining time is divided into conferences. Each of these conferences is one hour in length, unlimited in size and is an individual checkup. Each member of the group is checked on at least two traits and hears constructive criticism of the others.

Miss Osborne is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, Massachusetts. Her experience includes teaching, art designing, and fashions. For some years she was a member of the staff of the Woman's Home Companion. Once she became established as an authority on personal development, her work was in demand by colleges, girls' schools, women's clubs and training organizations.

15th Annual Messiah To Be Presented

On Sunday, December 9, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. "The Messiah" will be presented in the Hiram Brock Auditorium. This great work of George Frederick Handel, written in 1741, is such magnificent music that it has become symbolic of the spirit of Christmas.

Mr. James E. Van Peursem first organized the Messiah chorus when the music department of Eastern was small and those interested in "The Messiah" few. For the past fourteen years this program has been given in conjunction with Berea College.

This year's chorus will be sung with the usual excellent quality, although comparing to the largest of choruses in previous years about half. Outstanding out-of-town soloists will help to make the rendition of this great oratorio more enjoyable.

Everyone is invited to attend. Those who are new to the campus are especially urged to attend. One who has not heard "The Messiah" cannot afford to miss such an opportunity.

News For Vets On The Campus

On the basis of a study of the different veterans' programs in the other states, the Veterans' Committee of Eastern is working out a plan for the veteran students of Eastern.

Mr. M. E. Mattox, chairman of the committee, has arranged with the Veterans' Administration of Lexington to have here at Eastern an office through which veterans may receive allotments and transact such business that is connected with their discharges.

As regards the pre-fabricated houses to be erected for veterans and their wives, there are now twenty reservations. The engineers have already laid off the new street on which these houses will be located.

By spring it is expected that there will be sixty such houses filled.

Students Voice Opinions

Eastern has been dubbed the "Suitcase College" by the administrators. This is an undeserving title that has been applied to the student body for taking the week-end off and going home.

If he stays on the campus for the week-end, he finds that the social program is lax. The logical argument for the converse would be that he should spend his time studying, but there is supposed to be a day of rest in every week.

We are vitally interested in presenting the students' opinions in order that the administration and the faculty might take their views into consideration when they determine what measures are to be taken. Our observation and research have proved to us that those people who are active and outstanding resent this offensive imposition.

The students who were interviewed were asked to pass their judgment on these three major issues: (First) Should there be a limited number of cuts, a just basis for determining the amount would be a definite number for each quarter or for each credit hour.

"Hanging Of The Greens" Walnut Hall Sunday

The "Hanging of the Greens," an annual Christmas program sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A., will be given Sunday, December 9, at 4:00 p. m. in Walnut Hall of the Student Union Building.

The main features of this program include the beautiful and impressive candlelight procession and the decorating the hall with the typical Christmas greens. Also the usual Christmas carols are sung, and the traditional Christmas Scripture is read.

The "Hanging of the Greens" was instituted in 1931, and was held for several years in the basement of Burnam Hall. In 1941, the program was held in Walnut Hall of the Student Union Building, where it has been held each year since.

Approximately one hundred girls participate in the candlelight procession and carrying of the greens, and several of the boys assist with the hanging. In previous years a great amount of work was required in making the greens from cedar, but now the wreaths and decorations are made of the Christmas laurel rope.

At various times faculty members have spoken at these programs: At other times, it has been presented wholly by students. Last year Dr. Warrington, of the American Youth Foundation was the guest speaker, and this year Dr. Robert Miles, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Lexington, Kentucky, is to be the guest speaker.

ASHMORE RESIGNS

Ben Ashmore, principal of Model High School for the past three and a half years, has resigned his position effective at the end of this quarter to enter business with his brother in his home town of Madisonville. A graduate of Eastern in the class of 1935, he taught in Mason county eight years before coming to Richmond. Mr. and Mrs. Ashmore and their son, Jimmy, will leave December 14. The college and the community regret to lose this popular young couple, who have been active in civic and social affairs in the community.

HURT, Assistant Editor

Y Community Center

Jean Crutcher, chairman of the Social Service Committee of the Y. W. C. A., is in charge of the work being done by the Y at Telford Community Center. Each Friday night since November 9, the program for the evening was under the direction of students from Eastern, aided by Jane Johnston and Mrs. W. H. Cosby.

The program lasts from 6:30-9:30 p. m. Games, both active and quiet, are played, and folk dancing is taught. Later in the evening, refreshments are served, sometimes including cookies and cocoa, or a spaghetti supper.

The children who attend these parties consist mostly of boys between the ages of five and fifteen. The largest number of persons present at any time has been 47.

The Social Service Committee is planning to have a Christmas party for the children on the Friday before Christmas. The program will be taken care of mainly by girls who live in Richmond.

Anyone who is interested in this worthwhile project may contact Jean Crutcher or Jane Johnston in Burnam Hall.

Three Progress Staff Members Hold Top Positions On Annual

At a call meeting of the senior class, November 19, held in the Little Theatre, Herbert Searcy, Carrollton, was elected editor of this year's Milestone. Searcy is an English major and is now copy editor of the Progress. Last year he was editor of Belles Lettres, the literary publication of the college sponsored by the Canterbury Club.

Elected to work with the editor was Laura Hurt, Lynch, as assistant editor. Laura is a transfer student from Georgetown College where she had experience in this type of work on their yearbook. She also holds the position of assistant business manager of the Progress.

Tina Tyler of McRoberts, who at present is a news reporter for the Progress, was elected business manager. This position requires a great deal of work and carries with it an unlimited amount of responsibility.

A letter was received by James Smith, president of the senior class, from President W. F. O'Donnell complimenting the class on their wise selection and saying, "It is an excellent staff, and it will be a pleasure to work with it."

This group has begun its work and plans to let out the contracts to the various business firms before the first of the year. The balance of the staff will be chosen next quarter.

The fee for the yearbook will be charged to the student body when they enroll for the winter quarter. It will be the customary five dollars, which will include the cost of one copy of the book and the student's picture with his class.

World Student Service

Miss Phyllis Greife, traveling secretary for the World Student Service Fund, will be on the Eastern campus Thursday, December 6.

Miss Greife will be presented to the student body at Vesper Services that evening and will be present at the Y cabinet meeting.

The work of the World Student Service Fund will be explained by Miss Greife, who organized an outstanding W S S F campaign at Ohio Wesleyan. Her undergraduate work was completed at Ohio Wesleyan University in 1944, and followed by graduate work at the University of Chicago. She combined her graduate study with work in a settlement school in Chicago where she worked full-time during the past summer.

While at Ohio Wesleyan, Miss Greife achieved many distinctions. She is a member of Phiho Society, and received a prize for work in Sociology. As a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, the Century Club, Mortar Board, and the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Miss Greife was a leader on the campus.

of classes to make it possible for the student to have the week-end free.

(Third) A provision for a more enjoyable week-end for those students who remain on the campus and at the same time creating an interest for those who leave the campus to seek diversion.

Nina Herndon, (Freshman)—"I definitely endorse all this and you can underscore that." Besty Tandy, (Freshman)—Yes and No. I think there should be three cuts per class. The recreation is immaterial to me as long as there are the concerts to go to on Sunday afternoon.

Lucille Brandenburg, (Senior)—Amen! I think we should be allowed to go home upon good reason, but I just don't believe that classes should be deliberately cut without any excuse that is sincere. We are able to use reason in our actions, and as college students we are adults. As for the recreation, I definitely am of the opinion that something on that score should be done promptly.

Edward Creech—As president of the freshman class I wholeheartedly support this action. Proctor Stapleton, (Freshman) I vote in the affirmative that this be brought to the attention of the administration. Also, I believe the Student Union closes too soon on Saturday night, and ought to be open, that is the grill, and the "juke box" on Sunday afternoon, or change the movies from Tuesday night to Sunday, anyhow something should be done.

Rosamary Bruner, (Freshman)

—Although I am a Richmond resident, I think I should make a comment on the recreation facilities, there just isn't enough of anything to do.

Marilyn Hope Bellenby, (Freshman)—No, Saturday classes are almost a necessity to some students and the load or subject they have. Recreation, assuredly, but because this is the most boring campus as regards to recreation I have been on or ever expect to, and I think there should be a variety of activities other than the dances.

Martha Johnson, (Junior)—The plan is good, and if time is not allotted to the students, they will take off regardless, so not. That would stop a lot of the foolishness which goes on that disrupts the classes.

Janet Thompson, (Freshman)—Putting a ban on something works on humans contrary to what is desired to be achieved. If students were given Saturday off, it would create more interest in their week day work, because this Saturday class is too new to most, and it just takes too long a time to become adjusted to it.

Joy Jones, (Freshman)—I don't think the student should be allowed to go home just whenever he feels like it, once a month may seem a lot, but I think three cuts per quarter would be enough. Of course, there are times when it is necessary to go home, things like that are understood. I would like to work in town on Saturday, and I know there are others who feel the same, five days ought to be long enough to get the same amount of work done that we do in six. Something should be planned for EVERY Saturday night that we would enjoy and make us more able to mix, not pair off to sit and look so bored or downhearted.

Ruth Ann Twinn, (Freshman)—Buddy, I agree! I really do think there should be a limited number of cuts, and the facility should be permitted by the administration to excuse emergency leave of absence. I think there would be more co-operation that way. Six days seems an awful long time, and by the time Thursday rolls around one is plumb tired out and wants something to do, some kind of entertainment.

Marbeth Winkler, (Freshman)—Yes, but not if there are too many cuts, I think a student can use his judgment in knowing how many classes he can afford to miss. Sure, there will be some who will over-do it, that then is up to the teacher, but if a set regulation is installed everyone is going to have an equal chance.

Jean Moyer, (Freshman)—I think it's silly to have Saturday classes but when there is no system anything is liable to happen. You know, that would help all of our dispositions, five days of school and something worthwhile for entertainment for the week-ends. Three cuts per quarter (Continued on Page 5)

AS WE SEE IT.....

THE STUDENT UNION GETS A PREFIX

Whenever a public building is monopolized by one organization to the extent that it hampers the activities of others, it no longer serves its purpose. And unless equal opportunities can be extended to all groups, there will be inevitable chafing. Such a condition now exists on our campus!

Next quarter it will be imperative for the senior class to have many call meetings to take care of small but important items concerning graduation. These meetings will have to be held after supper and before the other campus activities that ordinarily begin at seven o'clock. As it is now, the class would be unable to find a suitable meeting place in the Student Union Building. The only opposition they should have should be the Little Theatre Club which would be meeting in its own Little Theatre.

There are other rooms in the building for club activities and for groups that have few members. This auditorium should not be scheduled on the calendar for a regular meeting of any organization and above all not every night of the week!

PEACE AT LAST?

On December 7, 1941, a country that we never seriously considered as an enemy attacked our island possessions in the Pacific with such astonishing force that we were nearly knocked out of the war before we were in it.

Japan had little in the way of raw materials so she had to get them outside of the homeland. She begged tons of scrap iron and other materials from the United States and other countries . . . begged because she was financially incapable of carrying on trade with cash. But with everything against her, she raised one of the most formidable navies in the world and an army that could by no means be considered ineffective.

American people were shocked that little peace-loving Japan, who was butchering China for sport, should attack a big strong country like the United States . . . why, she didn't even declare war . . . they can't have done much damage to Pearl Harbor—it's impregnable . . . if China can fight them with rocks and green walnuts for years, we can whip them in two weeks with our huge navy and army . . . American soldiers training with tomato cans and stove pipes, cursing at the inadequacy of their equipment . . . crows' masts of the Pacific fleet peeping out of the water in Pearl Harbor . . . the Air Force in the Hawaiians burning . . . faithful houseboys and servants turn on their masters . . . a country goes to war.

December 21, 1941—our two weeks are up and we haven't whipped the Japs yet . . . Wake Island taken by the Japanese . . . January 11, 1942—Japanese going strongly into the Netherland East Indies . . . how did she do it? She has nothing but inferior material . . . why, she even copies our designs for airplanes . . . she has no ingenuity . . . December 4, 1942—Tokyo says that the mopping up operations in the Philippines have been completed . . . a long two weeks!

And now, four years later, December 7, 1945, Japan has given in . . . the world has gone back to the restful recreations of revolutions and diplomatic duels and wondering when the next war will be.—JT.

PARBISHABLES

We see many items in the papers that commentators could use as subject matter. We do not feel capable of voicing our opinions, but we would like to call your attention to them. We will start on the first page and take column one—we see the Chinese are fighting a civil war without either side having a Chinaman's chance—the Dutch find their Java too hot for breakfast and have accepted British tea—the automobile production is still in low gear—Goering and the rest of the Germans are in a mell of a Hess—the occupation forces in Japan are finding more than one worm in the Japanese imperial cocoon—Russia wants the atomic, but not the way Japan got it . . .

ADIEU YES I DO

This is the last of our issues this year. Perhaps, it's five issues too late But we tried to put something in here To make this column rate.

But where does this column rank? You'll probably agree with the rest That of all, it is the most rank Even when it's at its best.

A VISIT FROM THE UNINVITED*

"Twas two weeks before Christmas, in old Beckham Hall Not a student there standing, could see the yon wall. The beds were a mess, the desks all a clutter And all that was heard was a bacchannalian mutter. The fellows all wrestled and grabbed at their heads As little pink elephants danced on their beds. I was in my room in bed like a sap, I had settled my brain for a pre-exam nap— When out in the hall there arose such a clatter I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter. The Dean had arrived, and with all his might He took aim and reared back and "kissed" them good-night. *Submitted for publication in the Second Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

AMUSEMENTS

By EMMA NASH BEVACQUA

Watch for Ray Milland to be one of the top contenders for the Academy Award, after "The Lost Weekend" hits the theatres. His portrait of a man whose vice in alcohol stacks up as one of those performances that can't be forgotten.

Not cause and effect, but mere co-incidence that shortly after Van Johnson appeared with Sonja Henie at the Ice Follies, she hinted at separating from Dan Topping.

Time Marches On: Freddie Bartholomew is co-starring with Anne Revere in a local Little Theatre production of Candida, Shaw's play about a college boy who falls in love with his professor's wife . . . And Jane Withers entrained for New York the other day unchaperoned by any adult. A girl friend went with her.

Fourteen-year-old Barbara Whitling, who played the irrepressible "Fuffy" in "Junior Miss," hasn't stopped being a demon movie for now that she's in the movies herself. She is but mad for Peter Lawford. She has 378 different photos of him pinned on her bedroom walls, and her frantic family is threatening to redecorate the room with bulletin board material. Her prize possession is an autographed photo inscribed: "To Fuffy—I'm sure you'll go for, and if I had the time I'd go with you. Peter Lawford."

With the honeymoon over, Shirley Temple is about to start a new picture, "Suddenly It's Spring." Her bridegroom has no objections to her continuing her career—at least while he is in the Army. Afterward he may have other ideas. And so may Shirley. She is already showing symptoms of an intention to live her own life. She is living in her former playhouse, situated 100 feet behind the Temple mansion. The playhouse has been remodeled and enlarged into a "honeymoon house." Shirley's wedding trip was the first trip she had ever made without one or both of her parents.

SOME HISTORICAL SIDELIGHTS ON THE GROWING SLACK PROBLEM

By HAROLD MCCONNELL

The classroom is very often the best place to find material for a newspaper feature column and this article is a prime example. This made its first appearance in Miss Buchanan's English class. —Ed.

Our first information concerning women's slacks may be traced back to the early Neolithic era according to Dr. Hansford Ledbieter, eminent Swiss anthropologist who made a startling discovery along this line. It seems that one day he was exploring the inner regions of a particular remote section of Tibet, about 75 kilometres from Lassa, when he accidentally stepped into a manhole. At first Dr. Ledbieter did not think much about the incident, but when he started plummeting downward at a terrific rate, his curiosity began to get the better of him. At length he came to rest in the interior of a secret subterranean chamber which he presumed to be the High Lhama's boudoir. He was not injured because he luckily fell into a pile of soft limestone which helped break his fall. Then (according to Dr. Ledbieter's notes) he immediately helped himself to a quantity of rancid tea, spiced with one pat of Yak butter, which he found conveniently waiting in a nearby automat. Whereup he set out to see what manner of place he was in. Not the least of Dr. Ledbieter's discoveries was the large, but crude, drawing of a prehistoric female on the wall of the room. She was dressed in slacks, which, according to Dr. Ledbieter, were the horizontal pleat variety, peculiar only to that particular region of Tibet. Dr. Ledbieter further noticed that the drawing was traced crudely with a piece of charcoal made from the charred limb of a Baobab tree which undoubtedly had come from Mozambique, South Africa. In his haste to peer closely at the label on the slacks which, incidentally, read: 5th Avenue Saks or "Saks' Slacks") he neglected to wonder how a charred limb of a Baobab tree came to be in the High Lhama's boudoir, near the city of Lassa, Tibet. Dr. Ledbieter, on studying the drawing more closely, concluded definitely that it dated back to the Neolithic Era. This discovery, of course, was tremendous in its repercussions throughout the world. The famous Boxer Rebellion, for example, was instigated because a group of women boxers attempted to appear in the ring in slacks. The referee, who was one-eyed and near-sighted, a fellow by the name of Harris or Benuti (I'm not sure which) made the mistake of saying, "You gentlemen shake hands and come out fighting." Needless to say they were not gentlemen.

Shortly after Dr. Ledbieter's famous discovery, numerous riots broke out in Tibet because it was revealed that the High Lhama, whose name was Agluk, had been hiding in his subterranean palace in an effort to escape the attention of his slack-bedecked female citizenry. Unfortunately this noble personage was discovered in his hideout and subsequently killed by the riotous mob, who afterward in a moment of remorse decided to honor his posthumously. (By unanimous vote of the Tibet National Parliament "Yak-Yak," Lha/Lhassa's in the Cold Cold Ground' was adopted as the new national anthem.) Dr. Ledbieter's drawing, however, which shows a prehistoric woman clad in slacks and her husband looking at her with his tongue stuck out, survived and now reposes in the British Museum of Natural History.

Other records of the development of women's slacks are rather scant. Confucious, or as he is better known—Kung-fu-tse, had this to say in 521 B. C. "Man's doom inevitably arises from the lamentable situation proximately to an insubordinate fidelity of wills. Ceaseless vigilance must be maintained at all time, lest our enemies scatter insurmountability to the four winds." And the learned Dr. Kung-fu-tse concluded with this statement: "Another thing that is wrong with this country is too damned many women wearing slacks."

Another learned man of the Fifth Century B. C., Siddhartha Gautama, otherwise known as Gautama Buddha, went so far as to establish the Buddhist creed as a protest against the growing menace of women wearing slacks. His contention was that women should not wear the pants in the family since the men who worked in the fields were often mistaken for their wives and vice versa. And this led to many unusual and interesting complications. (Reference, see Braxton, History of Asiatic Polyphonic Endeavor, Vol. 1, pg. 217).

Even Mohammed's famed Hegira, or flight from Mecca to Medina, was based on the increasing menace of women in slacks. It seems that Mohammed was running for Alderman or Magistrate of Mecca, when various admiring women clad in slacks mistook him for Frank Sinatra and started to mob him. At this point the eminent Moslem leader describes the furor: "multitudes of slack-clad women, sighing, moaning, screaming, swept forth in one monstrous horde until at length they were upon me." He concludes melodramatically: "It was a terrible occasion. Allah hast not given unto Tyranny what women in slacks demanded of me on that day." (See "Koran").

By 476 A. D. the Goths and Huns could no longer stand seeing the Roman women dressed in slacks so they invaded that city, looted it and burned every pair of women's slacks they could find. (This is known as the famous "Slack of Rome.") This marks a turning point in history because thereafter the fight against this obnoxious garb of women was more open.

In France by 1791 the situation had gotten so bad that the National Assembly met to discuss means of curbing the growing menace. However, it so happened that the Assembly Hall was being remodeled by order of King Louis XVI, so the assembly dispersed to a nearby Tennis court where Marie Antoinette and Madame Roland were engaged in a championship—Rue de la Ouvert Fenetre' vs Lower Versailles Road.' As usual Madame Roland was wearing shorts but Marie came dressed for the occasion in a pair of purple slacks which, unfortunately, had "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" written across the back in bold letters. Whereupon a French patriot and Jacobin in the crowd, Danton by name, rose, shook his fist and shouted these immortal words: "No outrage has even been perpetrated heretofore in all the annals of infamy to equal this. Tyranny can go no further." He concluded with this profound observation, "Ou est mon chapeau?" This famous incident is known as the Oath of the Tennis Court, at which time there were several oaths uttered. The game, incidentally, was called off—Madame Roland was given the title by default on Marie's part for failure to observe the rules of the game.

This, of course, is ancient history now. We have seen many evidences of the growing conflict in recent years. Hitler's rise to power was a product of the dissatisfied German women who sought to intensify the slack movement, resulting of course in the great war we have just witnessed. But, as Dr. Ellesworth Dripittle, the famous British sociologist, recently said—gloomily—"We shall fight on the beaches, in the streets, on the landing fields, in the hills—to the last outposts of civilization against this ever-growing menace."

"What makes you always so popular?" He asked the speedy young spark. And she said with a grin, As she powdered her chin: "I keep all the boys in the dark."

Soph: What'll we do. Senior: I'll spin a coin. If it's heads we go to the movies; if it's tails, we go to the dance, and if it stands on edge we'll study.

"Have you made up your mind to stay in?" "No, I've made up my face to go out."

He: May I call you by your first name? She: By your last name if you wish.

Lets Play Brigade— The young man led for a heart, The maid for a diamond played, The old man came down with a club, And the sexton used a spade.

Sporty One: "What makes that red spot on your nose?" Grind: "Glasses." Sporty One: "Glasses of what?"

1st Student: "What are your ideas about the new Professor's Union?" 2nd Student: "Absolutely grant them shorter hours at once—"

Finals, finals, everywhere With drops and drops of ink; But never a Prof. who'll leave the room And allow a man to think.

Presenting the Home Ec Department

These pictures are scenes of the work in the Home Economics Department. The girl at the sewing Machine is Martha Hisie. She is at work in the clothing laboratory Sarah Dann Walker and Georgia Ramsey are shown in the kitchen of the Home Management House. The other group are members of a cooking class and are shown in the cooking laboratory.

Eastern has reason to be proud of her Home Economics Department because it is representative of good workmanship and planning.

The general classroom and laboratory work is carried on in the Arts Building. Another unit is the Home Management House, where the girls live to take the laboratory course in home management.

The home economics faculty include Miss Mary Burrier and Miss Evelyn Slater. Miss Burrier teaches the cooking classes, and Miss Slater teaches sewing classes. Miss Slater also has charge of the Home Management House.

The classrooms for the home economics courses are located on the first floor of the Arts Building. These rooms are well equipped to serve their purpose. There are three kitchens, a dining room, textile laboratory, clothing laboratory, cooking laboratory, and a sitting room.

The three kitchens are the pride of every girl in the department. These kitchens are distinguished according to the type of stove found in each. They are all different. The first kitchen is called the Martha Washington kitchen and it has a wood stove. Next is

La Cocina, and from the name one could guess it is decorated with a Spanish design. It contains a kerosene stove. Lady Eastern is the kitchen every housewife desires, one that has all modern conveniences—an electric stove, refrigerator, and dish washer. Work in this kitchen would certainly not be called drudgery.

Their dining room is beautifully furnished with a Dutch cabinet, buffet, table and chairs, and a tea wagon. In the clothing laboratory are found two metal sewing machines and four electric sewing machines. At the entrance is a small living room or sitting room where the girls may go to relax and study.

The Home Management House is located in front of the Arts Building. It is a two story, seven room house which was remodeled last year for use of those students in the Home Economics Department who wish to take the laboratory course in Home Management. Here the girls live and work together for twelve weeks, planning their meals, marketing, entertaining their guests, and making a pleasant home for themselves.

The Home Economics Department sponsors the Home Economics Club. Members of this club take an active part in providing for the social events on the campus. The club will be represented at the Kentucky Home Economics Association in Louisville, December 7. Four representatives from Eastern will attend the conference.

RHYTHM RIPPLES

By "MART" NOTERMAN

Dear Gates,

These new current releases are especially for you so set the beat, swing out, and let's go!

Benny Goodman swings out with "I Got Rhythm" featuring the Benny Sextet at a terrific pace. The reverse is "Man I Love," an old waxing but better than ever with a Helen Forest vocal.

T. Dorsey supplies the hepsters with "At the Fat Man's," a tune by Sy Oliver about a chicken shack that Ethel Waters started in Harlem a few years ago. Buddy Rich puts plenty of zip into "Chloe" on the back.

Hoosier Hot Shots provide laughs with a novelty, "Dummy Song" and "Some Days You Can't Make a Nickel." You'll hear their own brand of slide whistles, bulb horns and just plain corny music.

Harry James sets good dance tempos with "I Can't Begin to Tell You" and "Waitin' For the Train to Come In." The first opens with strings instead of his usual blast and then an attractive vocal by Ruth Haag. The last tune jumps in the familiar James' routine.

Freddy Martin gives us a good blend with "Symphony" which really isn't what it says. Clyde Rogers takes a vocal in "Middle of May."

Duke Ellington's band blows a couple of hot horns with "Come to Baby, Do" and "Tell Ya What I'm Gonna Do." The latter has a typical Ellington background, nice and mellow.

It wouldn't be Christmas without Frankie singing "White Christmas." The other platter "Mighty Lak' a Rose" is exceptionally fine and completely different.

Paul Weston's orchestra supports Andy Russell with "Love Me" and "I Can't Begin to Tell You." Russell fans will undoubtedly call these his best. "Love Me" comes from Andy's first movie, "Stork Club."

BEHIND THE MIKE:
Artie Shaw retires once again and gives up his hand to take it easy... Mickey Rooney is planning on backing a big ork... Stan Kenton is appearing in the film, "Duchess of Broadway"... Lionel Hampton completed his volume, "Swing Book" and plans to establish a scholarship fund for talented youths... Buddy Rich, former T. Dorsey drummer, has formed a new band of his own... Count Basie is on his way to tour Canada... Artie Shaw recently married Ava Gardner, former wife of Mickey Rooney.

An old master of jazz swings in for the Maroon "E" this issue. None other than Jess Stacy, former Goodman pianist.

Born in Cape Girardeau, Mo. forty-one years ago, Jess spent his youth playing Dixieland jazz up and down the Mississippi. After playing with B. Goodman and Bob Crosby for a number of years, he now has his own jazz outfit, starring his wife, Less Wiley as vocalist.

A composer of hot-jazz classics, like "Ec-Stacy," "Rambler," "Barrel House," and others, Jess likes his classical recording at home. Frank, his seventeen year old son, is his pride, especially since he has organized a small band in Chicago and is headed for a career as great as his father's.

Stacy's rule of success is "to melt with the band." They don't come any better.

Good Listenin' Gang!

Saturday classes since the second month I was here, and truly, I think it a wise plan for this kind of school. If it were a place where there were sororities, or things of that kind, Saturday classes and amusementless week-ends would not be considered, but as it is, we miss so many of the things we have been accustomed to doing, that we get a clump in our spirit at times, and that's bad. I have gone to a girls' private school, and you know, any one thing over a period of time gets pretty monotonous. We can't help making comparisons of things and "dreaming," but I positively do sanction the idea that a better program for us and the faculty be developed.

Margie Blake (Freshman) —The faculty is just now trying to help entertain us on the week-ends, and I must express my appreciation. This is the beginning, if it can continue, well and good. I am referring to the "weinie supper," but they alone can't carry the burden. The dances sponsored by various groups are good, but there should be other things, something from the college itself activated into the school curricula for the enjoyment of the student body. Cuts of classes is the prudence of the student load, and his progress of his own work.

Bill Selbee (Freshman) — You bet I believe there should be no classes on Saturday, five and a half days is a pretty hard grind, and by all means some development in the recreation system.

Wanda Matley (Junior) — No, there shouldn't be any Saturday classes and there should be at least four cuts per quarter in addition to emergency absences. At Cumberland, there was a system arranged that cuts could be made, and a test was required of the student to make up the day's absence of the student. Recreation tends to better relation of the student to the school and helps in developing friendship among the classmates outside the study room.

Garnet Isaacs (Sophomore) — Yes, they should do away with Saturday classes, and I think five cuts per quarter is a generous number; more cuts acceptable providing the student can keep up-to-date on his work and not lag behind. I am positively in favor of some form of recreation on the week-end, but if you ask me what I couldn't tell you any thing special that I could suggest would help.

Helen Smith (Sophomore) — No! Five days is sufficient without having Saturday morning classes, and there should be four cuts per quarter, or arranged on the number of credit hours of the course. It would help a lot to most students to have a nice program of entertainment arranged for Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

Mayme Hall (Sophomore) — I am favorable to not having Saturday morning classes, but I don't think cuts to go home every time one feels like it should be permitted. Cuts to classes should be based according to the class and credit hours.

Of the twenty-five students interviewed, the general consensus reads something like this:
Student body at large... Saturday morning classes could be eliminated to their satisfaction.
One half students interviewed: ... Concede there should be three cuts per quarter.
One third remaining: ... Believe more than three cuts should be considered.

The balance: ... Are of the opinion that cuts should be made under stipulations of student, instructor, subject, load.

All are of the opinion there be adopted some program for amusement and recreation for the week-end.

SHOULD EASTERN BE

should be enough for every one, and then extra in case of necessity with the permission to make up a lesson.

Kenneth Hoskins (Freshman) — System is important to the smooth working order of any project. Five day week and a limited number of cuts, and I think three is enough, would be a fine schedule. If something isn't done, students will take off just any old time and that isn't a wise plan of getting work done. Ride the beam with entertainment. The way it is there are a few cliques who get together, but the student body as a whole is not included in anything particular.

Gene Wilhite, (Sophomore) — I don't think it fair for any one to have four classes on Saturday as some have. Five days are really enough for any one human. The number of cuts should be up to the individual or to the subject. A hard subject such as math, three cuts, other subjects lots easier based accordingly, then there is the prospect of class as a whole to consider. A rapid class accomplishes more so the officials should let the faculty submit some data in regards to consider the class. The beginning of a quarter and the work to be done ought to be considered.

Howard Rowlette (Freshman) — While not favorably impressed by Saturday classes, it could be much worse. It would be a convenience for myself and others who are in organizations that occasionally hold conferences and retreats, or such, to have Saturdays off. Every faculty member should be officially permitted to excuse students for such activities because after all it is beneficial to have the campus represented in extra-scholastic leagues, and this is an integral part of college life. Students who are conscientious will not make any more cuts to classes than they think reasonable, or would be a detriment to their grades. The faculty should be able to determine how many times a student may miss class from the work to be covered, and the capacity of the class in general, so it should be based upon that and the individual. Three cuts for some classes more for others.

Recreational is essential for school spirit and aids for competitive relations. More important still is that amusement takes worries off one's mind and is a physical stimulant we enjoy.

Iris Howard (Freshman) — Concentration of the periods will give no maximum harm to anyone and will give the student the chance to do the little incidentals they are rushed in getting done. Although I don't get home, and with five days still won't make it possible, but using my maximum number of cuts at one time, I could easily make it once in twelve weeks of school. Has any one considered things like that, a twelve week stretch. Those in position here to dictate terms have their home and family here, so naturally can't be very understanding on that matter, although they were once students themselves.

Therefore, for people like me, week-end recreation is essential, and where I want an education, it won't seem such a drudgery.

Jean Price (Freshman) — I never gave it much thought, cause I haven't had time to, but if I have Saturday off, I can get my laundry done, and little things like that; the way it is now, it's rush, rush, and I never seem to accomplish much. If there is to be a limited number of cuts I think three to four would be enough, and then excuses for special reasons. For instance, if a girl's boy-friend comes home from two to four years service overseas, she should be allowed a little time off for the occasion to get home to see him, I mean, that is, if there is more to it than just "friendship." That is one disgusting thing about going to school, one just isn't allowed to grow up. Suppression! And that even includes recreation. Sure there should be something here to do on week-ends. I don't say every week-end, but often enough to prevent boredom, and give us something during the week to look forward to. That would be an incentive to doing better work five days instead of six.

Juanita Salyer (Sophomore) — We have talked about not having

Eastern Host To Educational Meet

Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College was host for the Eastern-Bell-Lincoln County Educational Conference held on the college campus on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 29-December 1, 1945. Delegates representing the teachers of Bell and Lincoln Counties attended the meeting.

This conference is part of the state-wide cooperative study on teacher education which has been in progress in Kentucky since 1943.

Seven colleges and their cooperating school systems have been working since that time on ways and means of improving the quality of living in the community through the schools. Eastern has been cooperating with the Bell County School System since the beginning of the study. The Lincoln County School System joined the study in the summer of 1945.

Dr. D. T. Ferrell, head of the department of education at Eastern and coordinator of the Eastern-Bell County Cooperative Study was in charge of the general arrangements for the conference.

The program started at 4:30 p.

m., Thursday, November 29, with registration of delegates and guests, followed by an informal gathering and introductions. At 6:30 p. m., a dinner was held in the college cafeteria, with President W. F. O'Donnell presiding. At the conclusion of the dinner a panel on "The Community School" was conducted with Dr. J. J. Oppenheimer, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, University of Louisville, as chairman. Eastern was represented on the panel by Dr. N. B. Cuff, director of student personnel; Laura Katherine Evans, assistant professor of elementary education, and Margaret Lingenfeller, supervising teacher, training school. Representing Bell County was W. M. Slusher, superintendent; Marjorie Chambers, helping teacher; G. F. Asher, principal of Bell high school; R. E. Bergstresser, principal of Red Bird high school; Eva Wilder, principal of Cardinal school. Lincoln County was represented on the panel by F. N. McWhorter, superintendent; Jason Roberts, principal of the Hustonville high school; Mrs. Lula Carter, Moreland school, and Lena McClure, Crab Orchard school.

Dean W. J. Moore of Eastern presided at the opening of the first session on Friday morning at 8:30. A feature of this meeting was an address on "The Development of the Cooperative Study" by Dr. R. E. Jagers, director of teacher education and certification, state department of education, Frankfort, Kentucky.

Work groups were in session from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. on Friday. Group 1 on general education with Dr. Louis Smith, dean of the upper division, Berea College, as chairman, considered the broad, basic educational needs of the teacher for the community school. Miss Louise Combs, assistant director of teacher education and certification, state department of education, Frankfort, Kentucky, was chairman of group 11 on professional education, which considered the professional competencies necessary for the teacher in the community school.

The period from 1:00 to 2:30 p. m., Friday afternoon, was devoted to demonstrations in the training schools. Work groups were in session again from 2:30 to 4:00 p. m., with a tea and social hour in Walnut Hall, Student Union Building at 4:15 p. m.

Drenched Alumni See Maroons Win

Before the largest crowd of the season, the Eastern Maroons romped the Kirksville Missouri Bulldogs 54 to 0, to end their successful 1945 season. Umbrellas were raised during most of the game, but that didn't dampen the spirits of the fans or the players. While the rooters were standing on their feet throughout the contest, the Maroons ran roughshod over the Bulldogs.

Miller started the fracas off when he scored from the twenty-yard line. Wilson's kick was good and the score was 7 to 0. The drive, started from the Maroon's own 20 and led by Zoretic's 20 and 25 yard gains, extended to the 20, where Miller ran it over. The next touchdown came when Eastern received the ball on Missouri's 33. Zoretic threw a pass to Bill Selbee on the twenty. Zoretic then ran the ball to pay dirt. Bert Lana, left end, led Zoretic with very good blocking. Bill Wilson's attempted conversion was blocked.

After the Bulldogs received the ball on the kickoff, they made a first down on three plays but finally gave up after the onrushing Maroon line threw the Missouri backs for losses of 5 and 6 yards. In the second quarter with a new backfield consisting of Meyers, Wilson, Stapleton, and Hahn, the Eastern line marched to Kirksville's 1-yard line where Jack Hahn plunged the ball over. Wilson's kick split the uprights and the score stood 20 to 0.

At the end of the second quarter, Stapleton raced fifty yards to the 1-yard line to set up the next score. He then plunged it over for the score. The Bulldog line broke through and blocked Wilson's kick. The half ended with the score 26 to 0.

After an exchange of kicks in the start of the third quarter, the Maroons received the ball on Missouri's 30-yard line. Zoretic and Miller ran to the 17 where quarterback Dick Scherrbaum threw an aerial to Tom Sheehan for the fifth touchdown. Wilson's educated toe added another point to make the score 33 to 0.

The Kirksville eleven received the ball on the kickoff but couldn't budge an inch. Ed Magazine, Missouri halfback attempting to kick from his own 23, had it blocked, and Sheehan scored his second touchdown of the game when he recovered the free ball in the endzone. Again Wilson's kick was accurate, and the score was 40 to 0.

Immediately after Eastern kicked to Missouri, Scherrbaum intercepted a pass from Kelsey intended for Price. Scherrbaum then faded and threw a beautiful 35 yard pass to Bert Lana who made a neat one-handed catch on the 1-yard line and was stopped in his tracks. Fullback Selbee hit the line for the score. Wilson's kick was perfect, making the score 46 to 0. Toward the end of the third quarter Selbee took a lateral from Zoretic and hot-footed 80 yards for a touchdown, but it was called back because of a clipping penalty against Eastern.

At the opening of the last quarter, Wilson passed 35 yards to Buky who was stopped inches short of a score. Wilson then plunged over for the six points. Wilson's kick was blocked; the score was 52 to 0. Halfway in the fourth quarter a pass from Wilson intended for Pendleton was intercepted by Merritt who was smeared behind the goal line by Leo King. This added two points to the score to make a sum total of 54.

Every player on the Eastern squad entered the game which gave further proof that the Bulldogs were no match for the Maroon eleven. The Kirksville eleven never threatened and netted only three yards in th last half.

It would be unfair to name any individual stars on Eastern because every player played excellent ball. The line opened up holes that enabled the fast moving backs to race through the secondary for long gains.

Maroons Overcome Berea In Opener

The Eastern Teachers College Maroons opened their 1945-46 basketball season Monday night by soundly trouncing the Berea College Mountaineers, 91-32, in a game played in Weaver Health Building.

Eastern, led by Fred Lewis, who scored 27 points, jumped into an early lead and were never pressed by the outclassed visitors. Coach Rankin substituted frequently and apparently has more reserve strength than he has had in recent years.

Bill De Venzio, playing his first game in a Maroon uniform, looked good last night as did Herman (Monk) Oldham, former Louisville Male star, and Goebel Ritter, one of the four starting players that have seen service in the armed forces, showed that he has regained his old form and that he will be hard to keep out of a starting berth.

Coach Noll, who took over the coaching job at Berea after the Navy V-12 unit left the school, suffered his first defeat at hands of an Eastern team last night. Coach Noll was head coach at Berea a number of years ago and his teams had defeated Eastern ten consecutive times prior to last night's contest.

Eastern plays Georgetown here Wednesday night.
