Koenigstein, Eastern's band director.

School's Not Out Water Low; Not Critical

The water supply in Richmond, though low due to the drought which has lasted several weeks, has not reached the critical point, it was reported to the Progress at press time last night.

Dan Burns, manager of the Lake Reba reservoir, said that the Richmond Water and Gas Company began pumping one million gallons of water per day Tuesday from the Blueglass Army Depot to the city reservoir.

Lake Reba's supply of water became extremely low and the decision was made Tuesday to supplement the city's water supply from the Army Depot. Approval was obtained by the city from the U.S. Government.

Classes Continue

Mr. Burns reported that enough water is available to meet the needs of the city for several weeks.

Richmond is presently consuming approximately 1,250,000 gallons of water daily.

A construction accident on the Eastern campus Tuesday that saw a water main damaged created a flurry of campus rumors that the water supply had been exhausted. The water to O'Donnell Hall was turned off briefly Tuesday until the water break was repaired.

It was reported by some students that college classes would be dismissed unless rain came.

This was a rumor only. Eastern students are asked to be conservative with water until the drought ends.

Progress Gets "New Look"

Notice a change in the Progress?

Beginning in this issue, the Progress will be printed using a new size page plus a new size column width.

As compared with the old column width of two inches, the new size is one-sixth of an inch narrower.

The change in column width has changed the total measurement of the page making it one and one-half inches narrower.

Promises Park For Boonesboro

Edward T. "Nea" Breathitt, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, pledged Wednesday to "face the facts and the needs of eastern Kentucky" in a Hiram Brook Auditorium address heard by 1,700 Eastern students.

"We need for the Appalachian United States, in the sixties, the same kind of program with which we fought the depression in the thirties," he proposed.

The 35-year-old Breathitt outlined a five-point program for eastern Kentucky:

- (1) a youth Conservation Corps, (2) a larger work program, (3) a flood control program, (4) a matching of federal funds for projects, and (5) a continuance of progress in education.

Republican candidate, Louis B. Nunn, was scheduled to appear here at 10 a.m. this morning.

Breathitt told the capacity audience that "Our Appalachian economy is weak, and this weakness stems from underdevelopment of basic resources, from the automation of the coal industry, and from the loss of our timber, soil, and water during the depression."

The long-range flood control program, proposed by Breathitt, would consist of such projects as increased construction of dams on the Big Sandy, Kentucky, and Cumberland rivers.

Supports NEA Program

In addition he suggested the use of state seedling nurseries to provide trees to be planted. Breathitt stressed the importance of education to the audience. He called education "the foundation for the entire program for progress in Kentucky."

He emphasized his support of both the K.E.A. program for elementary and secondary schools, and the Foundation Program for Public Higher Education in Kentucky.

"This is no program of petty politics. This is a concrete, specific plan to bring massive help to eastern Kentucky — and bring it now," were the words of the democratic candidate.

In addition, Breathitt pledged a major state park at Boonesboro. He recalled many memories of visits to the beach, and said it is of extreme importance that Boonesboro is developed into a major state park.

Carolyn King Crowned Miss Eastern

Reigns Throughout 1963-64 School Year

By FARA FOX Progress Staff Writer

Miss Carolyn King has been selected by popular vote as Miss Eastern of 1963-64.

The new queen was crowned at the dance held in her honor, Miss Jo Ann Conley, a senior from Paintsville, last year's queen, crowned Miss King. Carolyn was presented a trophy by Mr. John L. Vickers, executive assistant to President Martin.

The dance was held in Walnut Hall with the Pastors on hand to furnish the music. The theme of the occasion was Autumn Leaves. Decorations were done in fall colors, emphasizing the theme.

The Miss Eastern contest is annually sponsored by the Milestone. The finalists were nominated by representatives of 60 campus organizations.

The other four finalists were Beverly Skaggs, senior from Louisville; Mildred Taylor, senior from Eminence; Betsy Stafford, junior from Ashland; and Connie Mullins, senior from McRoberts.

Serves As BSU President

Carolyn, a senior from Whitley City, has been active in school organizations since her high school days at McCreary County. She belonged to the Beta Club, Future Teachers of America, and the Future Homemakers of America. Serving as editor of the school's yearbook, Carolyn was also chosen homecoming queen in her junior year.

As a freshman at Eastern, she was first impressed by the general atmosphere of friendliness. During her first year, the new Miss Eastern was voted the Ideal Freshman Coed by the women students.

This year, along with her duties as Miss Eastern, Carolyn holds several other positions on campus. She is serving as the secretary of the student council and an ROTC sponsor. She feels her most important activity is presiding as president of the Baptist Student Union. She also holds a membership in the Canterbury Club and the debate club.

Teach in Florida

Basketball is her favorite team sport, but likes to bowl and has bowled on a league team. Table tennis and volleyball are other favorite sports of Eastern's first lady.

The climax of Queen Carolyn's reign will be when she represents Eastern at the Mountain Laurel Festival at Pineville in the spring. The four-day festival will include the governor crowning the new Mountain Laurel Queen.

Carolyn's plans for the future are to get her teaching certificate and teach English and physical education. She would like to teach in the south, perhaps in Florida. After she has taught for a couple of years, Carolyn expresses a desire to re-enter school and work on her master's degree.

In regard to her election the new Miss Eastern said, "I want to express my appreciation to all the people on campus who have been so nice and offered their congratulations to me. The honor of being Miss Eastern would be meaningless without their friendship."

SIDELINING THE MAROONS

with Jim Parks

Progress Sports Editor

Bucs Will Remember 20-14 Upset

Tomorrow's game with East Tennessee should prove to be a thriller for several reasons. Eastern will be putting forth an extra effort trying to get back on the winning trail after dropping three straight. The Buccaneers will be fighting to protect their OVC title hopes and their second place conference standing.

Also, we are betting that the Buccaneers haven't forgotten the 20-14 comeback victory by the Maroons here last season that forced the Tennesseans to settle for a quarter share of the conference crown.

The Buccaneers, led by first team All-OVC quarterback Jimmy Baker, took over second place last week with an impressive 16-0 triumph over previously unbeaten Tennessee Tech.

Looking around the conference we find Western entertaining Tech in the top league contest this week. The Hilltoppers who coasted to a 34-14 win over Austin Peay last week will be trying to protect their conference lead while the Golden Eagles must come up with a win to remain in contention for the league crown.

Morehead, a 20-14 victor over Murray last week, meets Austin Peay at Clarksville. The Thoroughbreds take on UT Martin and Middle Tennessee takes on Chattanooga in outside games.

BASKETBALL PRACTICE STARTS

Although tomorrow marks only the half-way point in the football season, basketball begins to steal a little of the spotlight as teams all across the nation, including our own Maroons, began practice this week.

Eastern opens its 1963-64 schedule just six weeks from Monday with Campbellsville in Centre College's gym in Danville. Besides conference teams, this year's 22-game card will feature Louisville, Dayton, Marshall, Syracuse, and St. Bonaventure.

Also, the Maroons will participate in the Watauga Invitational Tournament, December 27-28 at Johnson City, Tennessee. Besides Eastern and East Tennessee, William and Mary and the University of Richmond will play.

GAINES LOOKS GOOD

Sophomore quarterback Bill Gaines exhibited a flash of brilliance in last Saturday's Middle Tennessee game, and almost led the Maroons to victory.

With the Blue Raiders leading 7-0 in the second quarter, Gaines came in and seven plays later pitched to Ron Mendell for a 46 yard score.

Only a few plays later Roy Evans recovered a fumble, and on the third play Gaines took it over from the 17. Four plays later Eastern recovered a fumble on the 33 and Gaines immediately threw to Fred Malins for another score and a 20-7 Maroon lead.

Gaines, a 5-10 170 pounder, had some bad luck in the second half as the Blue Raider defense tightened up, but he should see a lot more action and proved himself an able replacement to starter Larry Marmie.

SHORT SHOTS

Dave Lobo raised his punting average to 43.2 with a 45 yard average Saturday—Middle Tennessee publicity man Bob Brooks is hoping that Eastern will knock off Western so that the Blue Raiders would be eligible for a tie with the Hilltoppers and even went so far as to predict a Maroon Victory here November 2 on Homecoming Day.

MAROOONS FALL TO MIDDLE TENNESSEE

Eastern and Middle Tennessee played a game of "give-away" touchdowns Saturday before some 4,000 visiting high school bandmen, with the Maroons showing the most charity, losing 33-28.

After trailing 20-7, late in the first half, the Blue Raiders came storming back with three touchdowns in the second half to take the win.

Of the game's nine touchdowns, only two came as the result of running plays, six were on passes, and another came on a 25 yard return of an intercepted pass.

Middle Tennessee scored first, when fullback Dave Petty crashed over from the three yard line, climaxing an 85 yard drive in ten plays, with 5:24 remaining in the first quarter.

Eastern countered early in the second period when a Bill Gaines pass, intended for Richard Carr, was deflected by a Raider defender into the hands of Ron Mendell, who raced into the end zone, to end the 46 yard touchdown play.

That play put Eastern into the ball game, and started a series of events creating one of the strangest games ever played in Hanger Stadium.

Eastern Takes Fumbles

The Maroons scored twice more in the second quarter, both touchdowns coming as results of Middle Tennessee fumbles deep in Raider territory. Gaines scored from 17 yards on the first, and hit Fred Malins with a 33 yard aerial for the other.

Then Eastern donated a touchdown to the Blue Raiders, when Jackie Pope recovered a fumble on the Eastern 14 yard line. Two plays later Pope caught a Teddy Morris pass for a tally, and Eastern led 20-14 at the half.

In the third quarter two pass interceptions of Eastern passes, deep in Maroon territory provided Middle Tennessee with a working advantage of 26-20.

Then in the fourth period a bad snap over the head of Eastern punter, Dave Lobo, gave Middle Tennessee the ball on the Eastern nine yard line. In three plays the Raiders had added their final and winning touchdown.

Eastern tallied again in the tilt, when Larry Marmie connected on a 16 yard pass to Malins in the end zone. A two-point conversion pass, Marmie to Buddy Pfadt, provided the final score.

Maroons Fall To Middle Tennessee

MALINS STOPPED

Sophomore Maroon halfback Fred Malins is stopped by a Middle Tennessee defender after catching a Bill Gaines pass good for 15 yards. Malins caught four passes for 64 yards and two touchdowns, but the Maroons lost 33-28.

Eastern's comeback was hindered by a series of interceptions and fumbles. The Blue Raiders' defense tightened up in the second half, and the Maroons were unable to sustain their lead.

The game was a tactical struggle, with Eastern relying on its passing game and Middle Tennessee focusing on the ground game. Gaines was the key player for Eastern, but he was unable to break through the Raider defense.

The final score reflected the dominance of Middle Tennessee's offense in the second half. The Maroons' defense was unable to stop the Raiders' rushing attack.

Despite the loss, Eastern's performance was commendable, showing signs of improvement in their offensive strategy. The game will be remembered for its dramatic comeback in the second half.

Sophs Are Key

Cage Maroons Begin Practice For 1963-64 Season

"Youth," said Eastern head basketball coach Jim Baechtold, "is the key word about this group of players," as his Maroons opened cage practice this week.

Baechtold, entering his second year as coach of the Maroons, points out eight sophomores on his 14-man varsity as evidence of a young, inexperienced team. Three juniors, and three seniors round out the squad.

"Even with only three men on the team with varsity experience," Baechtold said, "we have the size and rebound potential to have a good year. But only if several key boys produce for us."

The size Baechtold is referring to, may just be the tallest team ever assembled in the Blue Grass.

John Carr, 6-9, at center, backed up by 6-8 Bob Tolan, and either Gerald Bisbey, 6-8, Eddie Bodkin, 6-7, or Dennis Bradley, 6-5, at the forwards, present a formidable front line in anyone's book. Of the quintet of big men, however, only Tolan and Bradley have any varsity playing experience. The others are sophoms.

Backcourt Returns

In the backcourt returnees Lee Lemons, 6-4, Herman Smith, 6-2, and Kay Morris, 6-2, will battle for the guard spots, but speedy sophomore Dick Walton could move into a starting role if he develops. Jamie King, a junior, should also be a key man at guard, says Baechtold.

The Maroons are holding their opening weeks of practice in the Weaver Health Building gym, since the playing floor of Alumni Coliseum is not yet finished.

Baechtold says his charges should be able to move into the new, $3 million arena during the first week of November.

Cannot Name Starters

Speaking of starting positions, Baechtold says it is far too early to name even a tentative starting lineup from a team as young as he will field this winter.

However, he did say that Carr and Tolan will have quite a battle for the center spot, and that the forwards will probably come from the trio of Bodkin, Bisbey, and Bradley. Lemons, a junior, and seniors, Morris and Smith, have the inside track at the guard spots.

The Maroons open their 1963-64 card Dec. 2 against Campbellsville in Centre College's gym in Danville before playing their home opener in Alumni Coliseum Dec. 4, against Louisville.

Player of the Week

FURMAN PENLAND
Penland Honored For Performance

Furman Penland, freshman guard from Castlewood, Virginia, is the first Eastern frosh to be named "Player of the Week" this fall.

Coach Glenn Presnell made his decision after watching the Eastern-Middle Tennessee game film.

"Both other guards at that position, Todd Reynolds and Joe Blankenship, were injured," Presnell said, "and Penland had to play. He didn't let us down in the least," he added.

Penland, who played high school football at the quarterback spot, was moved to end last spring, and began at that post this fall, but was moved to guard to bolster the position.

Red-shirted last year, Penland is still a freshman in eligibility, and should develop into a fine performer says Presnell and his staff.

Eastern Cannot Afford Another Loop Loss

The Maroons put what slim chances for the Ohio Valley Conference championship on the line tomorrow when they visit the East Tennessee Buccaneers in Johnson City.

Eastern, currently 1-2 in loop competition cannot lose another circuit game and have any chance for the halo. Last season the Maroons were in a four-way tie for the title with East Tennessee, Middle Tennessee, and Morehead. All had 4-2 slates.

"East Tennessee is probably the best team in the conference," coach Glenn Presnell said, "and I feel sure they have the best line." Asked about the Buc's early loss to Western Kentucky Presnell said, "The game was played in the rain, and East Tennessee's quarterback (Jimmy Baker) couldn't pass. It probably would have been a different story otherwise."

Presnell Disappointed

Disappointed in his team's 33-28 loss to Middle Tennessee Saturday, Presnell said, "Only their first touchdown was earned. They scored two after intercepting our passes, and two more after recovering fumbles.

"Our offense finally got rolling," he said, "but this time it was our defense that let us down."

The Maroons were able for the first time to generate a potent passing attack. Larry Marmie and Bill Gaines, Maroon quarterbacks, combined efforts for eight completions and 142 yards. Three Eastern touchdowns were air strikes, and the Maroons threw for one two-point conversion.

"We'll rely on our work cut out for us stopping Baker," Presnell said about East Tennessee's field general, who was a Little-All-American, and first team All-OVC signal caller last fall. "He can pass and run with equal effectiveness," he added.

In Maroon statistics Marmie regained the rushing lead from halfback Bill Goedde. The Barnesville, Ohio, native has 143 yards to Goedde's 139, but Goedde is averaging 4.3 yards per carry, Marmie 3.7.

Marmie also leads Eastern passers in passes completed with eight for 87 yards and one touchdown, but Gaines has hit for eight, 145 yards and two touchdowns.

Malins Leads Receivers

Sophomore halfback Fred Malins, seeing his first offensive action after being hurt against Austin Peay took the pass receiving lead against Middle Tennessee. He caught four aerials for 64 yards and two touchdowns.

Dave Lobo, freshman halfback, continues to raise his punting average. Seventh in the nation last week with a 42.5 mark, his kicking against Middle Tennessee boosted his figure to 43.2, good enough to move him to fifth.

Malins also took over the scoring leadership with two touchdowns against the Raiders. The Maroons have one touchdown each.

Applications Opened For Jobs In Europe

The American Student Information Service, ASIS, with headquarters in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, is now accepting applications from U.S. college students who wish to work in Europe next summer.

ASIS has 5,000 job openings that include work in resort hotels, offices, factories, hospitals, child care, ships, construction, farms, sales, and camp counseling. The ASIS can place students in temporary summer work in Great Britain, France, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Sweden, Finland, Norway, Luxembourg, Belgium, Holland, Austria, Israel, and Liechtenstein.

Wage Scales
Wages range to $400 a month for the highest paying positions. In most cases room and board are provided but if not, the student worker lives independently in the city where he is working. In any case living accommodations are prearranged.

Every student placed in a summer job in Europe attends a five-day orientation period in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg that includes cultural orientation, tours to Germany, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, blackboard sessions, and language practice.

Non-Profit Organization
Although there is usually no foreign language requirement for the jobs, students are given the opportunity to experience native European situations during the orientation period. Blackboard sessions and talks cover such subjects as how to save money while in Europe, low cost transportation, shopping discounts and inexpensive living accommodations.

The ASIS, a non-profit organization, in its seventh year of operation, supplies job applicants, at no extra cost, with a complete set of language records of the language of the country in which the applicant will be working; a student pass allowing the bearer student discounts throughout Europe, complete health and accident insurance while in Europe, and a comprehensive information service about living and traveling in Europe.

Travel In Europe
The purpose of the ASIS summer-job-in-Europe program is to provide every college student with the opportunity to see Europe, to increase his cultural knowledge through travel, and at the same time to earn and save money. The student worker also has an opportunity to acquire a speaking knowledge of a foreign language.

Students interested in summer work in Europe should write to Dept. 1, American Student Information Service, 22 Avenue de la Liberté, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, for the ASIS 24-page prospectus which includes a complete listing of jobs available and job and travel grant applications. Send $1 for the prospectus and an air mail reply.

Band Day Blooms With Colors

Youngsters Provide Entertainment With Parade And Program

By MARY JANE MULLINS
Progress Feature Editor

Eastern again bloomed with the brilliant colors of Kentucky's high school bands, and her campus and buildings resounded with the music of the young people gathered together for the third annual High School Band Day.

A total of 55 bands with 4,000 participants were led in a marching musical entertainment at half-time by Eastern's "Marching Maroons," in the largest single gathering of high school bands ever to be held in Kentucky.

The visiting bands' arrival was followed by a parade, practice session on the football field, and a noon luncheon which was served on the parking lot of Martin Hall in which the musicians, their directors, and sponsors were guests of the College.

The colorful half time entertainment was begun by Eastern's "Marching Maroons" which were to be under the direction of Nicholas J. Koenigstein, Eastern's band director. The band lined up on the 15 yard line and began to play "Fan Fare," but from there on out, the program "Mr. K." had planned went astray, for they began to play "U.S. Air Force Blues" as they went into a "K" formation, and a banner bearing the words "Mr. K. Day" was unrolled down the side of Case Hall.

Useless, confused, embarrassed, and happy, Mr. "K." stood awkwardly on his directing platform as his band went into their next unexpected number, his favorite; "You'll Never Walk Alone." Then silence covered the field as the band stopped, and the crowd, in their standing ovation, ceased cheering. All waited with quiet happiness as he was made an honorary member of KYMA and a Kentucky Colonel. Then amid much cheering, Eastern's 110-member marching band broke into "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here," and were joined on the field by the other youthful bands. The rest of the halftime program was as planned by Mr. "K." and the mass band played "Great Gate of Kiev," "America the Beautiful," and "Our Boys Will Shine."

All the planning and sneak rehearsals on Tuesday and Wednesday nights by the "Marching Maroons" for the past two weeks, and the work of Barry Smith who worked up the variation to the program, was more than repayed by the slight smiles and straying tears of Mr. "K." as he stood on his directing platform. The visiting bands also reaped a harvest of satisfaction for their long hours of practice, as they strutted out on the field and played as one massive band whose tones echoed over the campus and are still echoing within the hearts of those who were present or listening to the broadcast.

Many of the visiting young people tried to express their happiness and thankfulness. The Glasgow Scottie Band, in their blue and white, said that Band Day gave them the opportunity to see all the bands in the state, meet new people, and get a glimpse of true college life.

One member of the Morgan County band said that Eastern is very beautiful, and that he had been to other colleges, but he liked Eastern best. He added, "I think that I want to come here to college."

The Ludlow Panthers said that just seeing the other bands helped them to pick out the better points, and then they could apply them to their own band.

Four majorettes in red and white from Russell, Kentucky summed up the opinions of Band Day by saying, "Just to look at Eastern makes one want to go to college here. We really enjoy Band Day, but our only complaint is that we have to get up so early to get here."

Thus, another Band Day is finished, but the wealth of good it did will never really be known. All Eastern can hope and plan is to have even a bigger and better Band Day next year.

Miss Davis will accompany the group on the harpsichord, one of the piano's predecessors, which was used in the performance of these pieces in their own day.

All Eastern students and faculty members are invited to the program.

Mr. Givens Awarded Set Of 'Great Books'

Mr. R. Dale Givens, assistant professor of anthropology and sociology here, has been awarded a 54-volume set of "The Great Books of the Western World."

He won the set of books by submitting a question which was answered by Mortimer J. Adler, in his column which appears in The Courier-Journal.

The prize-winning question dealt with war and peace, how the great thinkers of the past met this problem, and, "Have the majority felt that peace was possible or that war was inevitable, part of human nature, and possibly even desirable?"

The question was answered in last Sunday's edition of the paper.

The set of books, dealing with a great many subjects - including anthropology, literature, history, and philosophy - rounds out Mr. Givens' 1,000-volume library at his home here.

Both Mr. Givens and his wife, an interior decorator as well as housewife, enjoy reading, which makes the prize doubly welcome. Working on Doctorate A four-year Navy veteran with service in the Korean War, Mr. Givens was once an archaeologist for the National Park Service in Colorado and Washington, D.C. Joining the Eastern faculty the summer of 1961, Mr. Givens received his bachelor-of-arts degree from Baylor University at his master's from the University of Texas.

He is presently working on his doctorate at the University of Kentucky in addition to teaching a full load of classes at Eastern. He has also done graduate work at the University of California at Los Angeles, San Diego State College, University of Arizona and the University of Iowa. His doctorate will be in anthropology and sociology.

This was not the first question which Mr. Givens submitted to Mr. Adler. He had tried twice before without success.

The answers which Mr. Adler gives to the questions are terms of the intellectual heritage of "The Great Books of the Western World."

Mrs. Hill Sings Elizabethan Poetry

Mrs. Georgia Hill, assistant professor of English, presented a song recital last Thursday evening. Sponsored by the English Canterbury Club, the program was held in Walnut Hall.

Mrs. Hill said, "I hope that the audience found that a musical setting not only conveys the meaning and mood of the poems, but that it also enhances the beauty of them because of the additional expressive means that music provides."

The English ayres which Mrs. Hill performed were written to be sung. The only other comparable lyrics in the Elizabethan period were those poems composed for the court masques or for insets in plays. Although memorable music was composed for masques and plays, seldom did it reveal the artistry of the English ayres, polished, with simple, graceful melodies, in which the composer's intent was to set the words and notes lovingly together.

Ayre Is One Melody
Unlike the prevailing musical vogue, the madrigal, in which three or more voices sang independent melodies, the ayre consisted of only one melody with a simple accompaniment by the lute, the most popular string instrument of the day. However, the ayre could be performed by four singers, with one singing the melody, the three others, the various parts of the accompaniment. It was the most popular song form from 1587 to 1617.

Although John Dowland, author of one of the ayres Mrs. Hill performed, originated the vogue, he was not the most influential figure. It was Thomas Campion who established it and has immortalized it.

Dowland was the only writer of ayres who composed the poetry for his own works, poetry of such merit that it is included in all anthologies of Elizabethan poetry. Although he composed these songs 350 years ago, they have been available only since the E. H. Fellowes' editions thirty years ago, in which the words and music are printed.

Lute Ideal Instrument

Campion was an instrument of his time, influenced by the exciting era in which he lived, the "golden age" of the English Renaissance. It began during the reign of Henry VIII and flowered during that of Elizabeth Tudor. It was a period when every educated man was a poet and a musician. Music with its sensuous appeal was a part of everyday social life at a time described as being of astonishment, taste and practice. Amateurs in the home not only wrote their verses, but were able to take their parts in madrigals, ayres, and instrumental ensembles, which were usually enjoyed after supper.

Mrs. Hill said, "Every educated man was expected to be able to sing, to read music, and to play an instrument, preferably the lute. Because the lute was portable and not too difficult to master, it became the ideal accompanying or solo instrument."

Elizabethans Enjoy Music
The Elizabethans enjoyed hearing and making music, and a charming ayre was sure to find a spontaneously exuberant audience. A picture of the way in which Campion's ayres were first heard has been described this way: "... at his vacant hours, and privately he imparted them to his friends, whereby they grew... public..." Probably after supping with his friends, Campion sang some of his ayres, accompanying himself on the lute. The company may have joined in, singing them as four-part songs. Some of his enthusiastic friends probably asked to copy the music that evening while others left, humming the melodies.

With finality Mrs. Hill added, "There is an obvious advantage to the song-writer whose music can be immediately performed, spontaneously enjoyed, and then performed by others. This interchange accounts in part for the great popularity and growth of this rich output of English song. Perhaps today's vogue of the hootenanny isn't too far removed from the popularity of the ayre in the Elizabethan age."

Mrs. Hill was assisted by Mrs. Helen Beiderbeck, a voice teacher from Lexington, and concert pianist, Mrs. Alexander Alexay.

Ned Breathitt Pledges Lift

Following his major address, Breathitt, who was introduced by Glenn Anderson, a senior from Prestonsburg and president of the Young Democrats Club, entertained questions from the students. Among them were questions concerning planks on his platform:

(1) the highway system, (2) state parks system, (3) the industrial climate in Kentucky, and (4) education.

Other platform guests were Dr. John Rowlett, professor of industrial arts, at Dr. Joseph Howard, professor of education, co-sponsors of the Young Democrats Club; Rev. Kenneth Hoover, an Eastern student and minister of the Church of Christ; and President Martin.
