SCHOOL GREET'S DONOVAN, DEAN

Celebrates Return of Cooper and President from Southern Association Meeting

ARE MET WITH MOTORCADE

Carrying out plans formulated at the convocation held last Friday morning, students and faculty members of Eastern joined in two meetings to celebrate the return of Dr. H. L. Donovan and Dean Homer E. Cooper from the meeting of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States. At this meeting, which was held last week at Fort Worth, Texas, Eastern was given full membership in the Association.

The returning delegates were greeted at the station in Lexington by the advance guard of a motorcade which increased as it was met along the route by a number of cars from Richmond. Upon their arrival at the school they were escorted to the football field where they were greeted by the entire student body in the light of a huge bon fire. The celebration, which lasted for two hours, was the climax of the week end of rejoicing which began when the news was made public Friday.

Monday morning in chapel a convocation of students was addressed by Dr. Donovan and Dean Cooper, who recited the advantages accruing to Eastern as a result of their admission into the Association.

Dr. Donovan, who spoke first, said that membership in the Association bestows privilege and honor and places certain responsibilities on member schools. The greatest benefit is, of course, derived by the students, since they not only graduate from a fully accredited institution, but are fully qualified to do graduate work; it also means much to faculty members to teach in such a school. He also said that one of the factors responsible for Eastern's acceptance was the high position many of its faculty members have attained in the educational world. Mr. Donovan gave some details of the meeting at Fort Worth and closed by paying tribute to Dean Cooper for his tireless efforts in gathering necessary data and presenting it.

In his talk Dean Cooper, who has been connected in an official capacity with teachers colleges for several years, gave some of the history of Eastern prior to its entrance into the Association.

Since becoming a four year college in 1925 Eastern has conferred 100 degrees. In 1927 it went into the Kentucky Association of Colleges and Universities, and in the same year the late President T. J. Coates was elected president of that body.

During February of this year Eastern went into the American Association of Teachers, Colleges, receiving a very high rating although the standards of this group are higher in many respects than those of the Southern Association. Membership in this body, he stated, will mean much to the schools in future years.

The admittance of Eastern into these associations denotes great improvement; special attention has been given to improvement in preparation of faculty, salaries and entrance requirements, he said in closing.

At the close of the convocation Dr. Donovan and Dean Cooper were each presented with a basket of flowers on behalf of the student body by Susan Helm and Swepton Clayton.

HOME EC CLUB

The Home Economics Club gave a Christmas party Monday evening at the Home Economics rooms in Sullivan Hall. The rooms were attractively decorated in cedar, Christmas bells, etc., and an illumined Christmas tree gave that Yuletide atmosphere, so much associated with Christmas spirit. Games were played, lunch served, and gifts distributed. King Fun reigned throughout the evening.

CAPTAIN COMBS

Beckham Combs, son of Mr. and Mrs. "Big" John S. Combs, was born at Vest, Knott county. Beck came to Eastern some seven or eight years ago to finish his grade work and enter the Normal School. He has been in school here ever since, taking part in the football and basketball activities of Eastern thru all these years.

When Beck came here the Normal School people were allowed to play on the varsity athletic teams, accounting for his many years of playing under the Maroon and White colors. In the fall of '25 he was captain of the football team. Last year he was selected by many coaches and some sport writers as an all-state tackle and was again elected captain of the Maroon grid warriors to lead the first varsity team under the S. I. A. membership. Beck is a senior and his graduation will remove from the game one of the best football players of the state and probably the best, most consistent player that Eastern has ever produced.

GREETINGS!

Greetings to you from the Progress. It wishes you Christmastide mirth; And hopes that your wants may be granted With all the best gifts of the earth.

It sends you a Christmas edition Of verses, news stories, and jokes, And offers you these with its greetings For you to take home to the folks.

Ten-days you will have in your home town,

Ten nights you will count one by one,

A week and three days merrymaking,

Three days and a long week of fun.

Then may you return from vacation When gay times are over at last, All hearts in your absence grown fonder For Eastern, when Christmas is past.

—S. T.

ART EXHIBIT RETURNED

The thirty-three oil paintings assembled by the American Federation of Arts, from the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, has been returned to Washington. Previous to being exhibited at the Eastern Teachers College they were on exhibition for four weeks at the state college at Denton, Texas, where they created much interest. Early in February the students of Eastern will have the pleasure of seeing a fine collection of Japanese wood block prints, and in April a large exhibit by the outstanding American artists.

Last Saturday night the Sigma Tau Phi, formerly known as the Commerce Club, sponsored its regular semi-annual dance. It was given at the College gymnasium and was well attended.

Y. W. C. A. HAS EASTERN BOWS PARTY AT GYM TO KENTUCKY

Progress, Home Ec. Club Cooperate in Annual Christmas Affairs for Christmas

DAIRY, CHORAL CLUB AID

A Christmas party for children of Richmond whom Santa might have forgotten was given by the Y. W. C. A. on Saturday, December 15, in the Eastern gymnasium. More than sixty children, all under 12 years of age, were present at the party, which is an annual affair.

Students from Madison High and Eastern collected the children and brought them to the gym, where various games were played and stories told as the first part of the program. After these were over refreshments of milk, cookies and apples were served.

The climax of the afternoon came when the curtains were drawn and a magnificently decorated tree stood revealed on the stage; Santa Claus, in appropriate costume, then appeared and distributed the gifts by name. Each girl received a doll and a string of beads, and each boy a toy and a ball; each child also received a sack of goodies. The afternoon came to a close as each child compared and tested his gifts.

The Y. W. C. A. sponsored the party and was assisted by the Eastern Progress, the Home Ec. Club, the State Land Dairy, which donated the milk, and the Choral Club, which will contribute part of the proceeds from tonight's pageant.

More than 60 children were in attendance, the largest number entertained at this affair since its inception some years ago. Committees from the Y. W. C. A. and other organizations were in charge.

CHORUS WILL GIVE PAGEANT

Choral Club to Cooperate with Training School in Presenting "Coming of Christ Child"

AT GYMNASIUM ON DEC. 19

The Choral Club of Eastern Teachers College will co-operate with the students of the Training School in presenting a pageant, "The Coming of the Christ Child," at the gymnasium on December 19. A small admission charge will be made.

Proceeds from this program will go to further the charitable work of several organizations on the campus. Thru the Y. W. C. A. a Christmas party was given for the city's most unfortunate children; this party has been sponsored by this organization for several years. The training school will use its share of the proceeds to continue its project of furnishing a room at the Pattie A. Clay Infirmary.

Characters in the pageant, which is being supervised by John Orr Stewart Jr., professor of music, are: Joseph, Mary, the Three Wise Men, shepherds, angels, the Prolocutor and the chorus.

The first scene is laid in Bethlehem. The Prolocutor enters and reads from his scroll the Christmas story; as the chorus sings "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," the angels enter.

The second scene depicts the birth of the Christ Child. As the curtain is drawn there are disclosed Mary and Joseph looking into the manger. The Prolocutor enters once more and reads from his scroll. As the chorus sings "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "The Three Kings of Orient Are" the Wise Men enter with their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

Other music appropriate to the occasion will be presented. The pageant, according to those in charge, will be the most elaborate ever attempted at Eastern. A large attendance is expected.

Wildcats Defeat Fighting Maroons Basketeers in Slow Contest

MAROON PROSPECTS GOOD

The Maroons of Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College held the powerful University of Kentucky Wildcats to a minimum of scoring Saturday night at the Euclid avenue gymnasium and made them content with a 35 to 10 score. The contest was the first of the season for both teams.

The Maroons were even in poorer form than the Cats, report from Lexington said, and neither team showed an offense to brag about but the Wildcat defense gave indications of developing into something like that which went to the semi-finals in the Southern Conference tournament last year.

Substitutions were numerous on both teams and Coach G. N. Hembree sent ten men into the fray in an effort to find a smooth working combination, while Coach Johnnie Mauer, of the Wildcats, used eleven of his blue clad warriors trying to find five that can help Kentucky take its place among the S. I. C. leaders again this year.

Davis, a find of the last few days in practice, led the Teachers attack, gathering six of the ten points on two field goals and two foul shots. Only three goals from the field were made by the locals and they had tries at 14 foul shots, sinking only four of them. Lea got three points on a field goal and a foul and Salyers got the first point for the Maroon when he sank a foul shot.

The score at the half way mark was 17 to 6.

FROSH TROUNCE MT. VERNON HI

Fighting Rockcastle Quintet Overcome 21 to 10 in Spirited Game

HALE SCORING STAR

Coach Thomas E. McDonough's Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College yearlings continued their thus far successful net season Saturday night by taking the Mt. Vernon High School quintet into camp by a 21 to 10 score. The victory was well earned, however, and the Mt. Vernon quintet is likely to make somebody hump it when the tournament time rolls around again.

Only the defensive work of the frosh made the game as easy for them as it was and the goal shooting of Herman Hale, forward, probably saved the day for the frosh. He made five field goals for the points and several times kept the Mt. Vernon forwards from getting set for their shots.

CAPTAIN-ELECT TRIPLETT

Henry Triplett, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Triplett, was born at Pushin, Knott county. Henry came to Eastern five years ago and has been a member of the Maroon football and basketball squads ever since.

Henry played guard last year and was a strong dependable guard on what was probably the best team Eastern has ever known. This fall it was necessary to shift him to tackle on account of the scarcity of seasoned material. Later he played at end and in the backfield, as needed, and did most all the punting.

Although somewhat handicapped by injuries received because of the terrible poundings received this fall, he was one of the main stays of the much weakened squad. Henry will make a capable leader of what looks to be a formidable grid aggregation.

BE LOYAL!

Christmas is at hand and in a few days students will be leaving for their homes for their vacation. Uppermost in the minds of all is the question of preparation for departure and gifts for those at home.

In the columns of the Progress are advertisements of many firms offering merchandise or services to the students of Eastern. It is thru their co-operation that the Progress has been able to exist and to offer constant improvement in the size and content of the paper. That they merit your consideration and patronage it is needless to state. Nor is this all.

The stores whose advertisements appear in this issue have on display Christmas merchandise which in quality, price and variety will rival that of the largest city stores. By carefully reading these ads and inspecting this merchandise, students will with little difficulty solve their gift problems before going home. Those which offer service rather than merchandise also merit the closest attention.

By patronizing those who co-operate with them in their activities, the students of Eastern will not only benefit themselves but will display that loyalty so valuable to an individual or a school. And this applies throughout the entire school year.

The frosh were evidently off Saturday night in their goal shooting and tried to take it out by getting rough. Inobservant officiating caused the game to be less interesting for the spectators and many fouls were made, few of which were called.

The visiting high school men tried their best and kept the freshmen hustling. In the first quarter only two points were scored and the score at the half was 8 to 2. The Mt. Vernoners came back fighting and for a time threatened, only to succumb to the leech-like guarding of the yearlings.

The lineup and summary:

EXTRA ISSUED FOR PROGRESS

First Extra Ever Issued by Student Paper Tells of Joining A. S. & S. S. of South

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

On Friday, December 7, there appeared on the campus the first extra edition in the history of the Eastern Progress. This extra carried the news of Eastern's acceptance into the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, and the celebration which followed the announcement, and appeared only a short time after these events had occurred.

This step in the development of journalism at Eastern is in accord with the policy of the staff and paper to give Progress readers the best in news and features at all times, and to render just a little more of service than expected of it.

Earlier in the year the size of the paper was increased by the addition of one column to each page, and this issue carries six pages instead of the usual four. Several new departments have been added to give students full opportunity to express themselves in their paper; these include "Advice to the Lovelorn," by Mrs. Margery Mix; "The Letter Box," the column "With Our Poets," and other literary and feature material.

This week's issue of the Progress marks another forward step; the size of the pages has been increased and their number increased to six to take care of the Christmas and football material. It is planned to retain the larger size page, and if material received warrants it, to use the extra two pages.

TEAMS GUESTS AT GRID FEED

Madison High, Eastern Squads Are Entertained at Burnam Hall Cafeteria

CITY CLUBS ARE SPONSORS

A few nights ago the Rotary and Exchange Clubs united in giving a football banquet with the Maroons, the Maroon freshmen, and the Royal Purples of Madison High as guests of honor.

The banquet was served in the recreation room in the basement of Burnam Hall. After every one of the some two hundred present had had time to consume all they cared to, a very delightful program got under way with Alex Denny as chief of ceremonies.

Coach A. L. Lassiter, of the Royal Purples, was the first speaker. He introduced the members of his squad, naming those that received letters this fall. Coach T. E. McDonough, of the Eastern freshmen, was next to introduce his players, naming those who are to receive numerals. Then Coach G. N. Hembree, of the Maroons, introduced his squad and gave the names of those men receiving letters, as well as announcing the captain-elect for next year.

After Coach Hembree had introduced his squad Beckham Combs, captain of this year's team, presented, on behalf of the squad, a very beautiful bridge lamp to the coach.

Dr. Charles A. Keith, dean of men at Eastern, was the next speaker on the program. He talked for some ten minutes on athletics as a means of training one's self to meet the every day battles of life. W. F. O'Donnell, superintendent of city schools, was next to speak and he, too, lauded the post.

Wanted—Sidewalks

In the letter box of the last issue of the Progress a letter from a student commenting on the condition of the paths at the rear of the Cammack and Roark buildings. To those who travel this route regularly, and this doubtless includes the major portion of the faculty and student body, little explanation is necessary.

Since these buildings face on Lancaster avenue, ample provision for sidewalks at the front has been made, yet due to the situation and grouping of the buildings only a small percentage of the students find it convenient to use them. The shortest and most traveled route is from the cafeteria and Burnam hall to the University building, thence back of the Training School and Roark building; at best it is rough and uneven, and on rainy days so slick and muddy as to be almost impassable. The ideal solution would seem to be a sidewalk following the curve of the ravine and including this path, which would provide a shorter route as well as a sidewalk on both sides of the road through the campus. If such is not practicable at present, a good stone or cinder path over the most used routes would provide a measure of relief.

Eastern without doubt has one of the most beautiful situations of any school in the state, and the natural campus provides many opportunities for making it even more beautiful. Even now shrubs are being planted around the various buildings and it is to be hoped that this policy will be continued. Somehow we have always thought that a cinder path down the center of the ravine, with a Japanese bridge spanning an artificial lake would help.

We do not doubt that the limited finances and heavy expense of the school prevent the execution on the part of the authorities of much that is desirable, yet the problem of suitable walks should be one not extremely difficult to solution. And when such improvements are made it should be the duty of the students to preserve to the best of their ability the property which has been placed there for their benefit, and thus help in making Eastern a better place in which to go to school.

How Do They Do It?

There has been much comment recently on the fact that on the list of those making D or less in more than one subject there appeared not one varsity football player. Indeed we doubt not that the percentage on the list of all those engaged in athletics would compare very favorably with that of the entire school.

It is an undisputed fact that it requires more than ordinary work and ability to devote several hours each day to football, to engage in other activities, and, as is the case in many instances, to earn all or part of one's expenses, and make a creditable showing in classes. To those who have done this, and the records show that a large number have, much credit is due.

If there be any who fail to see how the absence of varsity players' names from the list is remarkable, we recommend that he try to duplicate the feat. We do not doubt that after the experience he would ask, as many have, "How do they do it?"

Congratulations!

By this time the admission of Eastern into the Southern Association and the rejoicing which accompanied it have passed into history. The advantages which accrue to the school as a result of this forward step are so numerous and so well known that a recital of them at this time is unnecessary.

Particularly gratifying was the enthusiastic manner in which the news was received by the faculty and student body and the manner in which Eastern's returning emissaries were feted left little to be desired.

The Eastern Progress simultaneously congratulates Eastern Teachers College and the Southern Association!

About Those Grades

The fall semester is drawing to a close. Soon the great exodus of students on their way home for Christmas vacation will begin and with the resumption of classes in January only a few short days will remain before examination time, the constantly recurring crisis of each succeeding term. It behooves us, therefore, to take stock of our store of knowledge before it is too late.

Many students under-estimate the value of good grades. To the casual observer it seems foolish to work much harder for an A when a C will give credit for the course. We have always contended that grades should not be the final criterion of a student's ability or mental capacity, yet a large amount of importance attaches to grades as the definite indication of how well the student's work has been done; particularly is this true of teacher training institutions. While many other factors are taken into consideration, it is the record of grades and credits that provide the main evidence on which many schools base their employment of teachers. Perhaps this should not be so. There is little doubt, however that such conditions do prevail.

Some days ago there was posted a list of those making one F and one D or more thus far during the term. The number, in comparison with other years, is not alarming, yet we trust that those whose names appeared thereon have taken steps to raise their standing in those classes in which they were failing.

It is common practice to put off until the Christmas vacation much work that should be done now. We have been as guilty of this as any, but it has been our experience that this work is seldom, if ever, done. If the vacation can be thus used, well and good, but the logical time to bring things up-to-date is the present, and with a knowledge of work well done the vacation period is doubly enjoyable. Best of all, there will be no mountain of work to be done staring the student in the face on his return.

Time flies. Let's all work hard and enter the lists at exam time unafraid of the spectre of failure hovering always close at hand.

Yuletide

The Christmas season is at hand. Frosty air—smell of cedar—colored lights—swirling snow—crowded shops—carols wistful children—beautiful windows—excitement—and that inexplicable air of happiness and goodwill; all are unmistakable signs of Yuletide.

There are few things to say about Christmas that have not been said; there are many things which we could say if we could but find the words with which to fully express them. Its real significance is apparent to all seeking to find it; somehow it seems sacrilege to attempt to explain it. It is only necessary to read the Bible version and "The Other Wise Man" to become impregnated with the real Christmas spirit.

Somehow one of the most beautiful symbols in connection with this day of days has been the "Star of the East." Nothing is more striking than the heavens on a frosty night, and nothing can better make us realize the vastness of the universe of which we are a minute part. How greatly our conceptions have changed since the days when first the Christmas story was told.

An editorial in the Red Book entitled "Our Christmas Stars" has pointed this out very clearly. We quote the final paragraphs: "Thus extend the stars on this Christmas Day—space and stars, space and stars again, a thousand million here and multiplied a million more; but all to the limits of infinity obey one Law.

"The heavens," sang the psalmist, 'declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork.' "And he saw only the few, near stars. What glory to God for the skies of today."

And so we say in the words of the carol: "God rest you, merry gentlemen, May nothing you dismay, For Jesus Christ, your Saviour, Was born this Christmas Day."

THE CAMPUS PHILOSOPHER SAYS:

If "taking them for a ride" had the same significance in Richmond that it has in Chicago, the number of girls at Eastern would be rapidly decreased.

Now that Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College and Normal School is a member of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association and the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, and its paper a member of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association, students with poor memories will have a tough time telling the folks back home what what at school.

This is the season of the year when the thrifty young men are racking their brains to discover ways and means of bringing one of those convenient "Christmas quarrels" with the best girl.

It is a good thing that the girls go home at Christmas, for it is doubtful if as timid a personage as Santa Claus is purported to be would have the temerity to brave Miss Roberts and visit the girls' rooms in Burnam hall during the wee small hours.

Dr. Funkhouser to Speak at Eastern

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, head of the Department of Anthropology of the University of Kentucky, will address students and faculty of Eastern Teachers College Thursday evening, January 10, at 7:30 o'clock. He will speak on early life in Kentucky.

Dr. Funkhouser, who comes to Eastern under the auspices of the Open Forum, is an outstanding authority on prehistoric life in Kentucky, and is a speaker who can entertain and hold his audience from first to last. Students here are fortunate in having an opportunity to hear him.

The public is cordially invited.

Miss Jessie Bell Pletcher will spend the Christmas holidays in Harrodsburg and Covington.

Miss Elizabeth Phelps spent last week end at her home in Union City.

Last Thursday night Miss Mabel Pollitt, head of the foreign language department, entertained the members of the Horace and Juvenal classes at a delicious Italian dinner celebrating the birthday of the great Italian poet, Horace. The dinner was prepared under the direction of Mr. Joe Giunchigliani and some of the delectable dishes served were antipasto, gallina alla cacciatora, spaghetti, vegetabili, frutta di insalata, dolce alla romana, cafe. Latin students who were guests at this dinner were Bessie Broyles, Perryville; Sue Chrisman, Danville; Henry Hacker, Eunice Dunn, Cynthia; Ruth Ramsey, Dryridge; Jennie Kelley, Lebanon; Lucile Derrick, Bellevue; Louise Moberly, Allie Gordon Parks, Margaret Telford, Richmond.

NOTE: Letters to the editor on subjects of general interest will be published in this column. Address communications to Editor, Eastern Progress, Room 14, Roark Bldg.

Editor, Eastern Progress:

As a co-ed of Eastern I am proffering this appeal to a certain few of my sister co-eds who are making a practice of public smoking.

Smoking has been and is indisputably accepted by better class women over the country and the habit is purely arbitrary. This letter is not a plea for the abolishment of women smokers, but rather an appeal for the abandonment of smoking by Eastern girls in public while in Richmond. Considering the matter personally, why place your own name in the hands of a garrulous public whose remarks are more often disparaging than commendable.

Down through the ages the women have set the moral tone of the race. Today here at Eastern the status of the women of the college can lower or raise public opinion concerning it.

Smoke if you must, but do it privately. After all we can have every bit of our "new found equality" without aping too closely our masculine competitors. Let's forego a little pleasure for the betterment of our own names.

—A Co-ed.

Editor, Eastern Progress:

Here's a little problem that has been on my mind for some time. On Sunday nights many of the young men from the nearby colleges want to visit us and our school. It is the only day that they or we have with Saturday classes and the like. Some of the girls go for "rides" but many of us would like to entertain our guests at our home—the dormitory. Why can't we have a social hour for out of town guests on Sunday nights from five to eight? Then we could have dinner with them and still time for a respectable visit and farewell.

—Natural Student.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

by MRS. MARGERY MIX

the world's lowest paid woman writer

NOTE: It is the purpose of his column to give advice and assistance to all those in the Eastern student body or faculty who have problems (particularly those of the heart) which are in need of solution. Address letters to Mrs. Margery Mix, care Eastern Progress.

Dear Mrs. Mix:

From my childhood I have believed implicitly in the principles and ideals learned at my mother's knee and have not allowed them to be destroyed by the hard, cruel world about me. But the other day my room mate said a thing which filled me with horror at its blasphemy, yet put into my mind dark doubts which have overshadowed my life for the last few days and threaten to shatter my belief in human nature and the world about me. My room mate said: "Aw, there ain't any Santa Claus!" It is this terrible statement which is turning life into a nightmare for me. You alone, dear Mrs. Mix, can dispel these clouds of doubt and make me once again the happy, carefree creature I was before this heresy entered my life. Tell me: IS THERE A SANTA CLAUS?

—Disillusioned Football Player.

Dear Disillusioned Football Player:

Why, yes, dear, of course there is a Santa Claus. Go home and hang up your stocking and see if there isn't. And you just tell that naughty room mate of yours that bad boys who don't believe in Santa Claus are liable to find an empty stocking on Christmas morning.

M. M.

Dear Mrs. Mix:

For the past three months I have been going with at least six different girls at one time. Each of these girls considers herself my one and only sweetheart and expects to get a diamond ring for Christmas. What can I do? My pocketbook could scarcely afford one diamond ring, much less six, and I can't give it to one without giving to the others, for I am deeply in love with all of them. How can I manage it?

—Frantic Shiek.

Dear Frantic Shiek:

Woolworth carries an extensive line of engagement rings which I believe even your humble pocketbook could aspire to.

M. M.

Dear Mrs. Mix:

I have for some time been secretly in love with a girl on the campus whom I had not met until recently. At last, after we had been introduced, I plucked up courage enough to ask her for a date. From the very first of the evening I began to notice things. All the way down town she kept on the outside of the sidewalk and I couldn't for the life of me push her to the inside. When we got downtown we went into a restaurant and she ordered chicken salad three times, as though she didn't know there was anything else on the menu. Also she kept her elvish spoon. At last we went home bows on the table and ate her coffee and as we stood at her door she seemed uncertain what to do, then finally said good-night and went in. Should she have asked me in? All these things are troubling me very much and I would like to know how to cure her of these habits, as otherwise she is very attractive.

—Troubled Lover.

Dear Troubled Lover:

I would suggest presenting the young lady with the Book of Etiquette or Emily Post's Blue Book for Christmas. And I would also suggest that you read them yourself before presenting them to her, as you seem to be a bit uncertain on some points.

M. M.

Dear Mrs. Mix:

I have never seen you, but I have always imagined you as a large stout lady. Will you lend me one of your stockings to hang up for Christmas? A sock is so inadequate.

—Member of Freshman Team.

Member of Freshman Team,

Dear Sir:

I do not appreciate the reference to my weight. Besides, if observation means anything, I have yet to see a member of the team whose sock would not be adequate for all the Christmas packages he might receive.

M. M.

Dear Mrs. Mix:

When are you gonna come home and get my supper and quit gallivantin' around with these newspaper people? I'm hungry, and my socks are full of holes.

—Mr. Mix.

Aw, be your age, Henry be your age.

M. M.

CHRISTMAS

Again the universe sings out,
Again the earth is bathed in white;
The sky, translucent blue, canopies
Hearts made young by Hope—
The Babe of Bethlehem is nigh.
Hearts withered with despair
Expand like buds in water thrust.
Hearts black with hate

Forget their vowed revenge,
And young hearts, old with care,
Renew their pledge to youth—
For He is nigh.

Changing with passing time,
Gone with the sunset.

Teachers Meddlin' In His Business, Campus Columnist Complains in Returning

COMMENT ON SENIOR GARB

Hello, pupils! Oh, you bet your life, I have been here all the time, but you see between my social obligations and a few other tricks I haven't had time to write for this here paper. And, doncha know, these here teachers have gone and got to meddlin' in my business, like I got any time to fool with their class work? But you see, teachers are funny that way. I got even with one of them the other day. Oh, that was simple. I studied my lesson.

I got up the other mornin and went to breakfast—I usually get up before gon. I was leisurely inhaling my coffee when right into the cafe walked some boys wearin "plug" hats and swingin canes and afore long here comes a girl swingin a little red and white stick with a little football tied onto it. I never was the wiser as to what it was all about until chapel time. Went up to chapel and as soon as I got there I started lookin for "plug" hats and walkin sticks, but didn't see any. Just when I was settled back in my seat for a nice half hour of comfort right up the isle marched the boys with their hats and canes and the girls with the funny little sticks I was tellin you about—you see I can't speak that name they call them by. It was durin that half hour spent in chapel that I was illuminated on the subject of "plug" hats, canes and those sticks with strings on em. You understand, the seniors of this here school has decided to wear and carry those things—just because they are seniors, a poor excuse, I will admit, they won't.

Saw a goat up here on the campus a few days ago. Yeh, a sure enough big he goat, with whiskers and everything. I tried to find out who had lost this goat, but this is a sorta modest bunch of students we got here and none of them would admit losin their goat. But they couldn't keep a secret from me, cause I found out about this goat business, the Little Theatre Club has several goats that were admitted to their fold a few nights ago. Now I have never been able to find out just why they want to call a new member of the organization a goat, but they do and I understand that those "goats" were on the receiving end of a lively time a few nights ago. Had noticed that a few boys and girls—them goats—had been tagged with a little bit of ribbon. I also noticed that the same boys and girls refused to have a seat unless the chair was one of those over-stuffed sort. You recokn those paddles over the L. T. C. initiation room had anything to do with that?

I am real sorry that there isn't somethin else for this here school to join. If there was I believe we could go on home right now and no one would say mch about it. Here the other day I went up to chapel and heard some one read a whole mess of telegrams that our president and dean had sent back from Texas—guess if they had gone to Mexico and sent one back we would have been burnin brush yet. After readin those telegrams the studen's started yellin and smackin their hands just like a bunch of crazy people. Then as if that wasn't enough they proceeded to parade the town. A day or two afterwards I found that our school had been admitted to the Southern Association of Colleges. And that was what all the racket was about. Well, I thought that was all of that business, but Saturday night they broke out in a new place—over by the gymnasium.

Someone set a big pile of brush afire and everybody had a warm time—the president and the dean included. You see they had returned from Texas by this time. Some of the boys surely thought that the president and our dean had used their tsay in the Lone Star state for bronco bustin purposes the way they paraded them about on their shoulders. But you know those old boys kinda liked it.

Well, it's not long now—till Christmas. I hope every one of you have the biggest time. I am goin home—and it's

VARSIITY FOOTBALL SQUAD

6 BROTHERS ON EASTERN TEAMS

Two Salyers, Two Combs, Two Osborns Play in Maroon Colors During Grid Season

POSITIONS HEREDITARY

It often happens that a football team will have on its roster one or two sets of brothers, and occasionally brothers will play on rival elevens, yet Eastern Teachers College sets a record hard to surpass in this respect, not alone in point of numbers, but in the striking coincidence of positions played.

During the past season three pairs of brothers performed on Eastern grid teams. Captain Combs of the varsity eleven performed regularly at left tackle, while his brother, Pearl Combs, held down the same position on the freshman team. Bob Salyers piloted the varsity from the quarterback position, while his brother, J.M., likewise called the signals for the frosh eleven. The Osborne twins, who have long defied the power of their fellow students to tell them apart, both played regularly on the varsity; Jim performed at right tackle, and John alternated at fullback and left tackle.

These boys come from different sections of the state. The Combs brothers hail from Vst, Ky., the Osbornes from Science Hill, Ky., and the Salyers boys from Richmond.

Thus are the proponents of heredity justified. Football, even to the position played, seems to run in the family.

The Seven Cardinal Aims of Education

EVERYDAY RESOLUTIONS FOR ALL (Journal of National Education Association)

HEALTH AND SAFETY—Set your health standards high and improve your habits daily. Modern life demands reliable strength and energy; a sound mind in a sound body.

WORTHY HOME MEMBERSHIP—Magnify your home as the center of a life that is happy, useful, and unselfish. Home is the soil in which the spirit grows. Give your best.

MASTERY OF THE TOOLS, TECHNICAL AND SPIRIT OF LEARNING—Know how to observe, to study, to think, to plan, to judge, and to act. The world is run by thinkers and doers.

VOCATIONAL AND ECONOMIC EFFECTIVENESS—Find your talents and train them. Spend wisely less than you earn.

FAITHFUL CITIZENSHIP—Do daily something to make your school, your community, your state, your country, and your world happier, cleaner, quieter, more beautiful, better governed. Each for all and all for each.

WISE USE OF LEISURE—Let your daily play be a source of joy and strength, a balance wheel for your work. Cultivate growing things, fresh air, sunshine and simplicity.

ETHICAL CHARACTER—Search for the highest values and build your life according to the best patterns. Read often the lives of great men and women. Character is king.

EMBARRASSING MOMENT

(A FABLE)

It couldn't have happened in a much worse, or, one might say, in a more suitable, place, if it had been a scene in a movie!

Coming into one of the popular resting places—commonly referred to as a loafing place—in this city, I spied a young lady whom I had never met. Now, to go a little further, this young lady was attractive both in appearance and in personality—indeed I might go so far as to say exceedingly attractive—and it was my life's ambition, or at least it seemed so at that time to make her acquaintance. Here was my opportunity. My heart leaped at the thought! A personal friend of mine was seated at the table with her and I knew he would introduce me.

With a nonchalance belying my inner feelings, I sauntered back to the table and asked my friend to lend me a cigarette. The young lady paid no attention to me. But, when after a violent wink from me, my friend introduced us, and the usual platitudes of time, weather, and personal date over, everything was plain sailing. Conversation flowed along such easy channels that I had no trouble with it.

After a short time, during which her loveliness became all the more pronounced to me, I felt that I must tear myself away for I did not wish to wear my welcome out. As I rose, murmuring a most truthful "so glad to have met you," I was conscious of a number of faces turned in my direction and wearing grins. I felt them to be grins of sheer jealousy. As I bowed and walked toward the door, I noticed more grins, and that one or two people were laughing. At me? Of course not! The idea never entered my head.

As I walked airily down the street, I happened to look into one of the plate glass windows of a business house bordering the sidewalk. It threw back my image as a man who would have done. I started, and then stood congealed with embarrassment. No second glance was necessary for me to see, waving perpendicularly from my back like Old Glory before the wind, the tail of my shirt!

How, when, and where, it started its journey upward will forever remain an unsolved mystery to me!

Foreign Language Club in Meeting

On Wednesday, December 5, the Foreign Language Club held its December meeting in the Roark building. The meeting was conducted by Norma Dykes.

Continuing its plan of touring Europe, the club visited England. Miss Dykes, in a delightful talk, took the club from Liverpool, through London, to Calais. Information as to places which should be visited, hotels, money values and valuable traveling suggestions were given. The lecture was supplemented by the showing of a set of stereoscopic slides containing English scenes.

After the program the club enjoyed an English tea, prepared by the social committee of the club.

Teachers of Madison County Hold Meet

The Madison county teachers met with Miss Lelia Harris, county superintendent, in room 20, Roark, Saturday, December 8. After routine business was disposed of, Miss Harris urged that the teachers work to improve the school premises, both inside and outside, and to help the boys and girls get the proper respect for public property.

Miss Harris further urged that the teachers be prompt both at their teachers' meetings and at their schools. An award of ten dollars is to be given for the school making the greatest improvement in the appearance of buildings and grounds.

Miss Harris is very appreciative of the co-operation which the administration of the college is giving her by granting the use of the college buildings for her teachers' meetings.

SENIOR SOCIETY

"Aren't they adorable?" "Isn't that just too original for words?" Such were the expressions one heard when the senior class, with more dignity than it was thought possible for them to command, glided into the auditorium at chapel hour recently.

Now, there is nothing unusual about a senior class coming to chapel in a body; but when the said class marched in, all of its members carrying walking sticks, you may guess that something unusual had happened or is happening. The masculine members of the class wore upon their otherwise innocent and childish brows marks of maturity, not in the form of deep furrows and wrinkles, but in the form of derby hats.

Hold! This is no joke! It is not to be laughed at. It is a serious thing, an event long to be remembered. More than that it is another manifestation of that quality, which is by this time a part of every student—school spirit.

Little Theater Club Initiates Members

Formal initiation was held last Tuesday evening for the Little Theater Club pledges. The "goats" took the hazing on this and the previous Tuesday in good style, despite the fact that the procedure was probably a little stiff.

Those initiated into the club were Mary Alice Salyers, Billy Sams, Mary Florence Crump, Beckham Combs, Jim Salyers, Calloway, Taulbee, Jack Bayer and Oscar Graham.

The club plans several interesting activities in the near future, which include the regular play and a dance. This organization has given one dance during this semester, and presented a short play at the chapel hour last week.

Kentucky Wesleyan Selects New Dean

The Board of Managers of Kentucky Wesleyan College recently announced the selection of Professor Paul H. Farrier, present head of the Department of English, to fill the office of Dean, left vacant by the recent death of Professor J. L. Whiteside.

Professor Farrier is a native of Virginia and received his Bachelor's and Masters degrees from the University of Virginia. He will receive the Doctor's degree from that institution next June. Professor Farrier has been a member of the Kentucky Wesleyan faculty for the past eight years, serving part of that time as Dean of Men. He is well liked by the students and faculty of the college and it is felt that the selection is a wise one.

Commerce Club to Have Greek Name

At the last meeting of the Commerce Club, Wednesday, December 5, a new name, Sigma Tau Pi, was adopted, subject to the approval of the faculty.

For some time the members of the Club have been considering the advisability of changing the name of the organization. After consulting with Mr. Lawrence, faculty advisor and head of the Commerce Department, it was decided that a more appropriate name could be found. Members of the Club advised with Miss Pollitt, head of the department of foreign languages, and she suggested the above name, which means society of commerce.

Christmas in the Training School

Christmas will be fittingly observed in the Training School by a program framed by the students and faculty. Each class room will display a beautiful Christmas tree, and each student will present a gift to some other member of his class. Each child will also give his teacher something which he or she has made. These presents will be placed under the trees and distributed on the day before the Christmas vacation.

This pin is to have the Greek letters on it.

STUDENTS GO TO "Y" MEET MAROON'S GRID TO "Y" MEET CARD MADE UP

Attend Session at Kentucky Wesleyan College; Hear Prominent Speakers Eastern to Play Five Kentucky Members of S. I. A. A. Next Season

PLAN Y. W. C. A. HERE HAS ONE OPEN DATE

December 7, 8, and 9 the annual state Student and Faculty Conference of the Y. M. C. A. met at Kentucky Wesleyan College, Winchester. Delegates from the University of Kentucky, Centre, Transylvania, Georgetown, Berea, Morehead, and Eastern were in attendance.

Taking as the main theme "The Function of Religion on the Campus," discussions were held on such phases as "What Are the Religious Needs of the Campus?"; "How Does the Y. M. C. A. Contribute to These Needs?"; "Through What Activities May Religious Life Best be Promoted by the Y. M. C. A.?" Leaders in various groups were Henry Hort, of Vanderbilt University, Dr. R. E. Baker, of the Y. M. C. A. Graduate School, Nashville, O. R. MacGill, ex-student secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Dr. J. P. Kessler, of the Graduate School.

Probably the most important accomplishment of the conference was the exchange of ideas by the various students.

Since there is no active Y. M. C. A. at Eastern, delegates were sent by the Student Association and plans are now being made to organize an active Y on the campus. A group of students and faculty men assembled Sunday afternoon and discussed the feasibility of such an organization, with the result that invitations have been sent to Y representatives and students in other schools to assist in the organization. They will be on the campus soon after the Christmas holidays and it is hoped that an active Y will result.

The Maroons of Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College will next year meet eight teams, five of them being Kentucky S. I. A. A. aggregations, two other Kentucky teams not in the S. I. A. A. and one West Virginia team.

For the first time the Murray State Teachers College will appear on the Eastern schedule. Opening with Union College here on October 5, the Maroons will take on Morris-Harvey, Murray, Transylvania, University of Louisville, Georgetown College, Kentucky Wesleyan and Western Teachers. The dates of the Georgetown and Western games are tentative but the contracts are expected to be signed within a few days.

The schedule follows:
October 5—Union College at Richmond.

October 12—Morris-Harvey College at Barboursville, W. Va.

October 19—Murray State Teachers College at Murray.

October 26—Transylvania College at Lexington.

November 2—University of Louisville at Richmond.

November 9—Georgetown College at Georgetown (tentative).

November 16—Kentucky Wesleyan College at Richmond.

November 23—Open.

November 28—Western State Teachers College (place and date tentative).

The Horace Mann Literary Society met last Thursday in the auditorium. The party which had been planned was postponed until after the holidays because of the many social events already scheduled. The meeting was then turned into an executive council which transacted anything else but serious business. After much fun the meeting was adjourned.

CHAPEL NOTES

Monday, December 3, Kearney Adams, head of the Extension Department, was the chapel speaker. Mr. Adams discussed in a very interesting way some of the problems of education.

Tuesday, Rev. W. A. Fite, of Richmond, spoke to the Eastern students. In his lecture he compared the parts of the human body with those of an automobile, giving the function and importance of each part.

At the regular chapel period Thursday the new members of the Little Theatre Club presented a delightful little play "Invited Guests." Those who took part were Mrs. Crump, Mary Alice Salyers, and Jim Salyers.

The committee of the Open Forum was fortunate in securing Dr. A. W. Fortune, pastor of the First Christian church, Lexington, to speak to the Eastern students Tuesday morning at the chapel hour. The subject of his lecture was "Helpful Relations Between Young Men and Women."

Wednesday morning Mrs. Robert Sorry, a very talented musician of this city, rendered a very enjoyable musical program. Among the selections she sang were "Grandma's Patchwork Quilt," "Come Out, Mr. Sunshine," and "Under the Mistletoe."

December 13 Paul Harris, of Louisville, gave a very illuminating talk to the student body on the subject of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. Mr. Harris told of the development of the idea of the treaty, discussed the articles it contains, and showed the desirability of its ratification if America is to be a dominant factor in keeping the world at peace.

Friday morning the women met in the regular chapel room where Dr. J. B. Farris spoke to them. He answered a number of questions concerning health, which have come to him recently from the student body. He advised every student to follow a daily health schedule.

The men met at the library where Dr. C. A. Keith discussed for them some of the problems of the boys on the campus.

Monday, December 17, the following program was given by the students from the department of music under the direction of John Orr Stewart, director of music:

- Clown Gantalon Waltz.....Kohler
- Tip Toe Dance.....Kohler
- Miss Dorothy Brock
- Vocal Solo:
Coming Home.....Willeby
- Miss Beatrice Keaton
- Violin Solo.....Selected
- Miss Eunice Dunn
- Piano Solos:
Song of the Lark.....Tschalkowsky
- Minuetto.....Schubert

sibilities of athletics as a character-builder and as a "pop off" valve for those chaps that are to be found in our present day institutions of learning.

Jack Hutsell, the principal speaker of the evening, was next. He, too, praised football as a fine character-builder and entertained the gathering with a couple of interesting stories.

The letter men as announced by Coach Hembree were as follows: Captain Beckham Combs, Captain-elect Henry Triplett, Wilbur Clifton, Allington Grace, Robert Guy, Fred Dial, Robert Salyers, John Osborn, Jim Osborn, Charley Hart, Alton Smith, Roger Morris, Orlando Lea and Robert Davis.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS

Some of the conceptions of Christmas as heard about the campus are very interesting. "Christmas means going home to me," said one fair damsel. "Christmas means toys," says the Training School pupil, registering delight. To others it means Christmas plays, boxes of candy, shopping lists, crowded stores, frosty nights.

What should be a true conception of this day of days? Many years ago, on a December night a new star shone in the East. It was the symbol of the influence of the baby boy who grew and preached and died on the cross which would shine down through the ages.

His life should be ours to live over again. We are born to go through life, to die and be reborn into another about which we know little, but the existence of which we cherish. Christmas should make us see this still more clearly. The fields and trees are dead, to be reborn again more beautiful than before; a lesson of Nature we would do well to learn. On the clear frosty night the stars shine down on this dead world—a symbol of a given prom-

"We are the light of the world." "We are each the nucleus of a sphere of influence. Christmas should show us the direction in which that influence should be exercised; should arouse in each of use the desire to be "stars in the East."

TWO TREES

Elizabeth R. Finley
A little tree, short but self-satisfied, Glanced toward the ground, then tossed its head and cried:
"Behold, how tall I am! How far the dusty earth!"

And boasting thus, it swayed in scornful mirth.
The tallest pine tree in the forest raised its head toward heaven, and sighed the while it gazed:
"Alas, how small I am, and the great skies how far!
What years of space twixt me and yonder star!"
MORAL
Our height depends on what we measure by—
If up from earth or downward from the sky.

MEN AND BOOTS

- Boots go on feet—So do men.
- Boots have soles—So do men.
- Boots sometimes get tight—So do men.
- A Boot will shine if polished—So do men.
- Some Boots have red tops—So do some men.
- Some Boots loose their soles—So do some men.
- Some Boots are imitation calf—So are some men.
- Some Boots can't stand water—Neither can some men.
- When a boot is soaked it is a hard case—So is a man.
- A boot when old gets wrinkled and hard—So does a man.
- A boot when well heeled always feels comfortable—So does a man.
