Stop, Look And Think

By W. H. MAYS
(Because it is a timely and sane evaluation of a subject which should be close to the heart of every student, the editor feels that this article is especially appropriate.)

There is a pertinent question on the mind and conscience of the people. The question is, "To BE or not to BE?"

For a possible answer let us look briefly at a few of the "nine's" in the American history of the past hundred years. In 1849, the electrifying news came that gold had been discovered in California. This started a mad rush which resulted in a mushrooming of population of whole towns and cities. People had left their homes, jobs, security, everything—in their frenzied search for this yellow magic. For some few it meant wealth and power beyond their wildest dreams; for many others it meant heartbreak, despair, and bitter disappointment.

Ten years later, in 1859, this country stood on the threshold of the greatest civil war in modern history. It has been said that this war cost more in lives and materials than all the civil wars of the Latin American countries put together. Today, nearly one hundred years later, we are still feeling the effects of this great war. Many of the important questions are still unsettled and some of our southern states have yet to recover from the destruction.

Let us turn now to more recent events in our history. After the close of World War I in 1919, we were in a situation very similar to the one that exists today. The terrible war that had involved the whole world directly or indirectly, had ended in an allied victory. The men were coming home; industry was turning its production toward peace-time goods and it looked like peace and prosperity were here. But in 1929, the artificial prosperity and boom collapsed, resulting in the worst depression of all time.

At the close of the next ten-year period, in 1939, the dark and ominous clouds of war were gathering over all of Europe. No further discussion of the events that took place during the following ten years is necessary. Each one of us was forcibly and directly affected by their results.

This brings us back to the original question of "TO BE or NOT to BE—in 1949?" Will 1949 and the coming years bring distress and disunion among the peoples of the world? Will there be crippling depressions with resultant idleness, poverty, starvation and disease? Will there be war, a war of such proportions and magnitude that we dare not think about it? Or will 1949 give us a basis for lasting world peace? Will 1949 give every man a chance to earn his bread unmolested? You, students, will help give the answer.

Little Theater Club

The Little Theater Club of Eastern, in a meeting on Thursday, Jan. 20, appointed Jane Thomas as Secretary, pro-tem, of the Little Theater Club. Miss Thomas will serve the remainder of the regular term of office instead of Miss Rebecca Ramsey who resigned her office as Secretary.

Other business of the meeting included the authorization by the club to the committee on Membership, for the printing of membership cards to be distributed to the members of the club.

Entertainment for the meeting was provided by Miss Alma Cochran. Miss Cochran presented a pantomime and a short monologue entitled, "Waiting For the Telephone."

A meeting of Alpha Psi Omega, the international dramatic society, followed the Little Theater meeting. The purpose of this meeting was the initiation of two new members, Jane Thomas and Joe Spratt, into the society. Edward Strohmeier, popular Eastern senior, was elected President of Alpha Psi Omega in this meeting. Mr. Strohmeier, in past years, has distinguished himself by his work in Little Theater Club productions, and is now Vice-President of the Little Theater Club.

Kitty Rankin Honored At Convention

The International Relations Club of Kentucky held their State Convention in Georgetown, January 7 and 8. The delegates from the local club were: Helen Kiser, Kitty Rankin, Miller Gregory, and Norman McGuffey, Vice-president of Eastern's World Affairs Club. The keynote addresses were given by Dr. Ellis Fuller, Dr. H. L. Donovan, and Mr. Adair. Helen Kiser led a discussion group by presenting the negative side of the U. N. in Palestine.

Kitty Rankin was chosen as secretary-treasurer for the coming year. Other officers were: Charles Sexton, President from Georgetown; Bill Layne, Vice-president from Union; Frank Brown, Reporter from Kentucky State. The next convention will be held at Sue Bennett College in London, Kentucky.

The Ohio Valley Regional Conference will be held at Union College, Barbourville, Kentucky on March 17 and 18.

Dr. Grace Moulder

Dr. Grace Moulder, Lexington physician, was on the campus, Thursday, January 20th, to address the freshmen girls.

Dr. Moulder spoke at ten o'clock in the Little Theater to the Freshman girls. At one o'clock she spoke in the Burnam Hall assembly room to all girls who could come at that hour. Dr. Moulder was also available for private conferences.

Training School Crowded

If your progeny is between the ages of embryo and six months, it is due for his matriculation at Eastern's training school. This is not a day nursery for infants but they have a waiting list that will permit Junior to become of school age in ample time to start his class work at the normal age.

What is the training school? The training school was organized in 1906 for the purpose of training teachers. They had the first twelve grades, but High school was discontinued in 1922. The junior high school was added in 1925. The present senior high school was resumed in 1930. By experimentation and observation the able staff of the training school has reached a system of elementary education which they think to be the optimum.

Why does the crowded condition prevail? Some of the possible reasons as stated by Dr. Edwards, Superintendent of Training School, may be stated as follows: The school has always maintained the highest of standards. To do so necessitates the limitation of the students per teacher to an optimum number. They have established this number as thirty students per grade with one teacher for each grade. This system was inaugurated in 1930, before which time one instructor was assigned two grades.

Shortly prior to the war the birth rate increased possibly because the status of father might be a favorable one for the men appearing before local draft boards.

Since the war the birth rate has been catalyzed by the G. I. Bill of Rights. Some veterans are likely or liable to be more prolific when Uncle Sam helps pay the obstetric fee and the milk bill.

Applications for admission have steadily increased since the school was established. Since the war there has been an avalanche of applications. The number in excess of each grade capacity is now twelve to fifteen. The recession will be gradual.

Recital In Little Theater

On Thursday evening, at 7:30 p. m. in the Little Theater, the Music Department of Eastern Teachers College presented students from the Training School in a piano, violin, and cello recital.

Taking part in the program will be the following children: Nevello Richardson, Johnny Williams, Nancy Wilson, Mary Anderson, Sally Walker, Dick Boneta, Allen Hughes, Marshall Sauley, Betty Samuels, Tommy Deniston, Verena LaFuze, Bobby Begley, Robert Blake, Lanier Anderson, Laura Lynn Walker, and Marlene Begley.

Pure Fiction

The other day your correspondent, along with several other shmoos, wandered into the press room of the local rag. Our nostrils were assailed by sweet essence of malt floating from the vicinity of a linotype machine. A large, sloppy, blurry-eyed individual in an ink-stained, moth-eaten T-shirt, rested his chair against the sooty, white-washed wall. Over his head hung the motto of the paper: "capitalize nothing but the names of God and Keen Johnson." Your utterly incompetent correspondent had expected to see Robert Mitchum crawl from one of the rolls of paper, but instead three moldy rats marched out gnawing on old union cards singing, Hail, Hail, Eastern Morons. They were followed by a covey of type-lice; one big broad-shouldered devil with an air of spurious dignity gave a signal after which his henchmen spelled out a big 'E.'

A small, meek-looking girl with a Latin dictionary was near tears as she received some constructive criticism from an aquiline, acid-tongued old coder. The coder later retired to one corner of the lazear-house and delivered a fervent soliloquy lamenting the loss of the cut of our esteemed sports editor. A young Eastern freshman from the Barracks lugged in a twenty-pound manuscript and, for a moment, we mistook him for Ross Lockridge, Jr.

Your utterly incompetent correspondent, tired of this esoteric atmosphere, retired to a well-known "kaffeehaus" where a well-assembled young female asked, "In or out on a cup of coffee?" "In," your utterly incompetent correspondent answered and turned to watch a loutish vintner toss out by the seat of his pants a hyper-claviced old gentleman.

"The old fool punted a hole in my wall," he muttered, slammed the grog-shop door, and washed his hands.

To Crown Basketball Queen

Andersons Honored

Fun was the word last Sunday Night when the Westminster Fellowship gave a party honoring the Andersons who are leaving Richmond the first of February. The guests of honor were Rev. Olaf Anderson, Mrs. Anderson, their daughters, Ann Stewart, Lanier and Mary, and Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Marcum. Mrs. Marcum was, until just recently, the student worker. Each were presented with gifts from the Westminster Fellowship. The program of songs and games was planned and led by Mr. and Mrs. John Bussey.

The Andersons are moving to St. Matthews where Rev. Anderson is assuming the pastorate of the church there. Mr. and Mrs. Marcum now live in Winchester, Kentucky.

The new student worker is Mrs. Dorothy Smith. She is originally from Maine, but came to Richmond about six months ago when she married Murray Smith, a local attorney.

Fifteen members of the Photography Club of Eastern were present at the club party on Thursday, Jan. 13, in the home of Dr. H. H. LaFuze, club sponsor.

Those present were: John Vukocan, Walter Greene, Carl Martin, Darrell Ray Hill, Bob Graham, E. N. Graham, Vera Eldridge, Gobel Spurlock, Thomas Hardy, Harold Hall, Carter Still, Ann Hackley, J. T. Sowers, Edward Roark, Bill Starns and Jim Barrickman.

After partaking of some very delicious refreshments, the revelers were shown a group of Eastman slides entitled, "How To Make Good Pictures". The accompanying lecture was read by Edward Roark.

We of the Photo Club would like to take advantage of this opportunity by expressing our sincere thanks, to Dr. and Mrs. LaFuze, for a very delightful evening.

Love, Courtship, And Marriage

On Thursday, January 13, a group of male students on the campus presented a panel discussion on "What the College Man Expects of the College Girl" to the freshmen sociology classes.

The discussion was led by Paul Duncan. Others participating were: Joe Yanity, Herbie Williams, Bud Bennett, Glenn Millian, Denver Roy and Jim Bishop.

At this meeting, the boys were given a chance to express frankly their opinions on what a girl should do and what she should not do in all phases of social conduct, and especially in their relationships with men.

"Problems of Engagement and Marriage" was the topic for discussion before the freshmen sociology classes on Monday, January 17.

Members of this panel were: Dr. Sanders, professor of sociology at the University of Kentucky; Mrs. Hugh Mahaffey, wife of the local physician, and Reverend Olaf Anderson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

From these older people, the girls received advice on how to handle those problems that arise for every couple going steady and contemplating marriage.

Campus Personalities

Get out your hankies, gals, 'cause the Old Dawg is leaving the campus. Yep, Al "Crow" Shea, popular sophomore from Cincinnati is leaving for the Navy at the end of this semester.

Born July 27, 1928, Shea had a happy life until he came to Eastern where he started majoring in history and physical education. His favorite saying is "Whossay," and he has many likes. Among them are women (naturally) and he eats everything (food-that is). He's a member of the Catholic and Northern Kentucky Clubs. We'll miss ya!

Bill Ed Coleman was born twenty years ago in Knoxville but soon moved to Richmond where he graduated from Madison High.

A sophomore majoring in history and geography, Bill Ed is in the choir, on the track team and plays with the Pee Wees (intermural basketball team).

As for likes, Bill Ed loves people—mostly girls, baked ham 'n' hot biscuits, Stardust, French, and football.

Bill Ed's favorite expression is "You're a bar-faced liar!" and he has his own Golden Rule—"Do unto others before they do unto you."

Pinion Poll

By DODO WALKER

I groped blindly for my notebook and pencil and struggled up from the floor—the position I had taken after making the mistake of asking an athlete what he thought of our school spirit! His reply—CENSORED. Equally discouraging replies were given by the cheerleaders who work hard to get a few reluctant if not incoherent Raas's and Rah's from an unresponsive student body. More than once I was greeted with "It's terrible." "You can see more pride and spirit displayed in any high school"—and one party interviewed thought that correction should start with the administrative staff.

One Maroon supporter brought up the idea that if our football and basketball team were no good there might be some excuse for poor spirit shown but with the fine teams we have everyone ought to be behind them.

After all-they represent everyone of us-you, and that fellow next to you who hasn't opened his mouth all season. They're for us! Let's give our teams and cheer leaders some pep and fight right back—Shows them we're for them too!!

Thoughts In Assembly

The announcements, punctuated by coughs and rustlings; murmurs and scuffings, are over. The program, a band concert, begins. The music swings along, twirling its rhythmic like a bright baton, and is heard, I know, by only half the mind.

I wonder what the other halves of all these minds are thinking? Are they thinking of grades and teachers; or home and blessed rest; or dates and delightful evenings? What are they thinking?

That boy there—the one with the green shirt on—I bet he's thinking of his flop-eared, long-strided hound dog, and the breath-taking thunder of a covey of quail as they get up out of the long grass.

Or that girl there—the one with her head lowered, looking down at nothingness at her feet—maybe she's thinking about the boy who promised to write after Christmas and didn't.

That boy across the aisle—the one tapping his foot, slightly out of time, to the music—his smile says he's thinking of a table, piled high with Mother's culinary endeavor.

That boy there—the one with the unruly-blond hair—what's he doing? Oh, he's scribbling something in a notebook. Why, he's not paying even the least bit of attention. Oh well, someone just had to spoil the symmetrical beauty of so much preoccupation. There's one in every crowd. But, I wonder what he's writing? ?

Literary Awards

The Canterbury Club has announced that it will again award a prize for the poem which is judged best among those published in the 1949 edition of Belles Letters. A similar award will be given by Dr. Roy B. Clark, sponsor of Canterbury Club, for the short story which is considered best.

The poems and short stories will be judged by a committee from the English faculty here. These awards will be made at the June Commencement.

Recommendations By Education Council On Teacher Training

The Council on High Public Education yesterday recommended that qualifications of 12 institutions in Kentucky which train teachers be passed on by the State Board of Education.

Accreditation for many years has been handled by the University of Kentucky, which will discontinue that task next year. It is necessary for some Kentucky authority to pass on the merits of the 12 schools, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Boswell B. Hodgkin said.

The schools are members of the Kentucky Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, but not of the Southern Association. They include:

The council also asked the State Board of Education to provide that those holding certificates to teach in high schools be permitted to teach in grammar schools after taking a summer course in elementary school work.

Hodgkin, chairman of the council, said it is hoped to induce more teachers to take up work in grammar schools. He said more than twice as many young people have been studying to teach in high schools than in grammar schools.

Another recommendation was that the state board allow teachers studying for M.A. degrees to take more subjects dealing strictly with professional education.

THE FOXHOLE

A Short Story Written In The "American Language" By H. Richardson I'm a waiter who works all day in Leo Long's short order restaurant, The Foxhole. I get my hide full of it too, don't you think not. Nothin' ever happens out of the ordinary. Always the same old thing, same people. At least I thought so until today, when it happened, and then I opened my eyes.

made suit and a Homburg derby, and then, other times he comes back lookin' like somethin' the cats drug in. Today it was the latter. He fell in with a beard that was about three days along and ordered a cup of coffee. He talked a lot. Told me all about his trip. Said he did a lot of gamblin'. Then he laughed and got up to pay me. As usual he paid me in the right change. Uncanny how he always manages to do it. Anyway, he stood in the middle of the floor, slung his foot in a high, ridiculous arc, and then slapped it against the floor. It always laugh when he does it. He calls it the "Wickets Banister Stomp." But still it's monotonous. At least I thought it was before.

SANGUINE SAGE

Hollywood provides this week's column with the necessary news matter. "Glamorous Hollywood", where divorcee are as rare as a U. of K. loss on the Lexington hard-wood. This article deals not with Academy Award winners, but rather with the losers. In fact the term "losers" has been loosely used as the following so-called male stars were not even under consideration for the award. Nevertheless, they are still given choice roles, although they lack the ability to star in a high school one act farce. Maybe the producers will regard their wits in the coming year and place these hams in appropriate positions. (Janitor, plumbers, etc.) Following is a list composed of the ten leading non-actors in the film center of the world. Any similarity between any one of them and Frederic March is purely a signment of the imagination.

in plantation pictures as a tobacco grower. 5. Gene Raymond - come out of retirement recently to once more haunt the audiences; biggest spook since Gargantua. 6. Henry Fonda - should enroll in a speech course in some high school; also needs some vitamins to speed up his movements; could be used in turtle impersonations. 7. Burt Lancaster - should have remained in the circus as he is still quite a clown; could also use a comb and brush. 8. Dick Powell - one of the roughest of the Hollywood thugs; has been rumored that he comes from Newport, but this probably is untrue since he has lost a couple of screen tussles. 9. Robert Walker - one of Hollywood's finest drivers and a bartender in his spare time; most of his time seems to be spare, if his acting is taken as an indication. 10. Don DeFore - a would be comedian who is funny in a nauseating manner; a big 200 pounder who should try wrestling (he should be a champion if he butchers the opponent the way he does his part in a movie.) Others actors could, and possibly, should be mentioned, but the list has to be terminated at some point. Of some of the above actors (ugh!) are your particular favorites, please do not admit it, as it specifically indicates that your tastes are extremely poor.

ENTERTAINMENT ON CELLULOID

If you haven't seen JOHNNY BELINDA, then by all means, see it; it's different. It is seldom, indeed, when Hollywood would take time from its laugh-provoking horror stories, ridiculous romances, and maddening musicals to even dream of making a show of this type which demands that the leading lady play the part of a ragged deaf-mute who never emits an utterance. Even more alarming, it demanded that a Hollywood queen cast aside the alluring garb of a well dressed lady to wear shapeless clothes and the dirt-and-sweat makeup of Belinda. Yet, Jane Wyman took on the task and turned in a performance which might well be classed as "exceptional." The performance of the supporting cast consisting of Charles Bickford, Agnes Morehead, and Stephen McNally (Rogue's Regiment), was piercingly effective. Lew Ayres blended completely with his part, that of an understanding doctor who felt happiness in helping other people.

ion is pitted against emotion, opinion against opinion and right against wrong; eventually, right triumphs, but with many wounds. There are certain points of fine acting which cannot be overlooked. Throughout the birth of the child (afterwards called Johnny Belinda - this the title of the picture), and during the time of early motherhood, Miss Wyman, with expressions ranging from screams-without-words to lightsome smiles and flashing eyes, is convincing and plaintively beautiful. Beside her dead father, she gesticulates with sign-language The Lord's Prayer.

In and around a small town within the rocky, wind-swept shores of Cape Breton (Nova Scotia) lies the setting of the story. She is the daughter of a farmer (Bickford) who, with determination, strength, and hard work, ekes out a living from the unfertile soil. He possesses no understanding of his daughter's situation and, in his ignorance, uses her about the farm like an animal; however, at times his kindness is touching. His expression of love for his daughter is thwarted by his belief that she is incapable of feeling emotion, a belief shared by all of the inhabitants of the village. Belinda's aunt (Agnes Morehead) is the paragon of the slavine, Nova Scotian old-maid, as hard as the rocky soil and as bleak as the coast line against which the surging waves of the Atlantic pound incessantly. Doctor Lew Ayres enters upon such a scene, and with patience and understanding, teaches Belinda how to "talk" by gesticulation and sign-language. At length he convinces her family that she is a human being, capable of feeling emotion like other human beings. Belinda is no longer the tortured unappreciated individual that she was-but a price is in order for the newly discovered happiness of not only Belinda, but also those she has come to love.

ONE TOUCH OF VENUS is a movie about three crazy department store workers and a statue which comes to life and upsets the already-insane routine of the three. The statue, Venus, goddess of love (Ava Gardner), is alluring enough after it is kissed to life by Robert Walker-you remember him as the sweet, innocent boy who never touches a drop in real life but will do anything for the sake of art on the screen-but any acting which might seem to be in order after such a development is nonexistent. The department store workers (Walker, "Crooner" Haymes-whose vocal resemblance to a frog is surpassed only by his hammy physiognomy-, and petite Olga San Juan) and Venus all trade beaux and Walker ends up with Gardner while Haymes is stuck with San Juan, who, incidentally, is about as Spanish as Brooklyn. Any semblance of a plot is nil. Only a dotted line of a few songs, including the old favorite, "Speak Low," holds the action together. The other songs, though tuneful, are spoiled by the tiresome antics of the four. Eye Arden is the only bright spot in the show, and then too, Walker and Gardner do make a nice couple, but it's a shame the latter two are so utterly incompetent. This one isn't even worth stacking the dishes for.

The new Belinda in her recently acquired attractiveness, is attacked by a drunken bully (McNally). She has a child. Immediately the small town buzzes with comment and the doctor, because of his association with her, is the object of the pointed fingers. After this development, the action becomes more rapid. Emot-

Last night I held a little hand So dainty and so sweet Me thought my heart would burst with joy Io wildly did it beat No other hand into my heart Could greater solace bring Than the hand I held last night Which was four aces and a king.

Unless a veteran gives this matter thoughtful consideration, he may fail to get the most out of his insurance. For instance, if no beneficiary is named, the policyholder may be risking a financial loss to his heirs. Up to August 1, 1946, it was not absolutely necessary for the veteran to name primary and contingent beneficiaries because the law provided for payment of the insurance to legal heirs in a specified order. Now, however, if the veteran dies without naming a beneficiary, or if the beneficiary should die before the policyholder, the insurance will be paid in a lump sum to the veteran's estate.

On the other hand, if the veteran names a specific beneficiary and the insurance is paid to him or her, it is exempt from taxation and from any claims made by creditors. The money is not liable to attachment, levy or seizure under any legal process, either before or after receipt by the beneficiary. The only exception to this rule is that the U. S. Government may make claims against the insurance.

Hence, veterans can protect their heirs against possible financial loss by naming a beneficiary, and they can add to that protection by naming a contingent beneficiary to whom the insurance is to be paid if the first beneficiary should die without receiving the money.

More than 9,000,000 World War II veterans applied for education and training under the GI Bill and Public Law 16 since the two

VETS NEWS

One of the most important things for ex-servicemen to do about their National Service Life Insurance is the naming of a beneficiary or beneficiaries of their policies. The Veterans Administration said today. Unless a veteran gives this matter thoughtful consideration, he may fail to get the most out of his insurance. For instance, if no beneficiary is named, the policyholder may be risking a financial loss to his heirs. Up to August 1, 1946, it was not absolutely necessary for the veteran to name primary and contingent beneficiaries because the law provided for payment of the insurance to legal heirs in a specified order. Now, however, if the veteran dies without naming a beneficiary, or if the beneficiary should die before the policyholder, the insurance will be paid in a lump sum to the veteran's estate.

laws went into effect in June, 1944, and March, 1943, respectively.
Veterans are not required to pay attorneys or agents for representing them in monetary claims against the Veterans Administration, VA said today in answer to numerous recent inquiries.
Fees for such services, VA said, are payable only by the agency itself when the attorney or agent has been duly accredited and are deducted from the monetary benefit due the veteran at the time the claim is allowed.
Fees are fixed by statute at a maximum of $10 for an original claim and $2 for a claim to obtain increased benefits.
Any agent or attorney who charges or attempts to charge any veteran for such services is subject to penal provisions of the law in addition to loss of his accreditation, VA said.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. I am going to college under the GI Bill. Will I have to refund the tuition if I leave school before the end of the school year?
A. If you drop out of college before the end of the period for which tuition has to be paid by Veterans Administration, you will have to pay VA for the time you did not attend school or you will lose eligibility for the training time covered by the payments.
Q. Can the beneficiary or family of a veteran make premium payments on his National Service Life Insurance if the veteran doesn't care to do so?
A. Yes, but the insured veteran has the right to change his beneficiary or beneficiaries at any time without consulting with or receiving the approval of anyone. He may also surrender his permanent NSLI policy for cash at any time.

Invade Western Saturday Night

On Saturday night an underdog Eastern varsity will invade Bowling Green, Ky., to tangle with a heavily favored undefeated Western Kentucky State College quintet. The Maroons, with a record of 11 wins and 3 losses, will clash with Hilltoppers who have copped 15 consecutive conquests.

Next Wednesday night, Kentucky Wesleyan will make their first appearance of the season in Weaver Health Building gym. On Feb. 8 the Maroons invade Morehead to battle the Eagles of Coach Ellis Johnson before closing their regular schedule at home on Feb. 12 by playing host to the University of Louisville.

Cage Officials Named For O. V. C. Tourney

Officials who will work the Ohio Valley Conference basketball tournament at Louisville February 24-26 were announced this week by Kelly Thompson, tournament manager.

They are Hickman Duncan, Nashville, Tenn.; Ox Hartley, Evansville, Ind.; Kenny Jordan, Cincinnati and Herman Jackson, Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Books of tickets good for all tournament sessions are now on sale at the colleges in the conference. Single session tickets will go on sale February 6 at the Jefferson County Armory in Louisville, Thompson said.

THE SPOTLIGHT

By FRED ENGLE, JR.

The Spotlight shines this week on three freshmen basketballers, Elmer Tolson, Bill Bales, and Roger Geyer.

Tolson is a 6' 4" cager from Campton, Kentucky. He is 19 and weighs 170 pounds. He played high school ball at Wolfe County High. In one game against Cannel City Elmer tossed in 34 points. O. V. C. LOOP ADDS MEMBERS

By an unanimous vote of the six original members, the Ohio Valley Conference recently voted at Louisville to take in two new members, Marshall College of Huntington, W. Va., and Tennessee Tech of Cookeville, Tenn.

This action was in accordance with the original plan of the conference to increase the membership to eight schools as soon as possible. Original members are U. of L., Eastern, Evansville, Murray, Western and Morehead.

The meeting opened at The Seelbach Hotel with the basketball committee gathering in advance of the regular session to make arrangements for its tourney. This will be held in the Louisville Armory Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 24, 25 and 26.

Four teams out of the eight will be seeded for the tournament, by ballot of the coaches. This will be taken care of at another meeting to be held February 6 for the purpose of making the draw.

Kelly Thompson, assistant to the president at Western, was named tournament manager. Thompson announced that squads will be limited to 12 men.

The tournament will open with two games on Thursday night, two games will be carded for Friday night and two games Saturday afternoon, starting at noon. The championship test will be Saturday night, preceded by the consolation.

The delegates also set the spring track meet for May 28, with Evansville College as the host. The O.V.C. golf and tennis tournaments will be held in Bowling Green on May 27.

HARLAN COUNTY—When the cheer goes up for Eastern's Harlan County product it's for sophomore guard Carl Eagle of that county. Eagle is a strong Maroon reserve and plays either the forward or guard position. A veteran of Army duty in Germany, he lettered in his freshman debut last season.

WAA SPORTS

The thud and squeak of gym shoes hitting the floor is audible in the little gym every afternoon as some 25 girls practice in preparation for coming games next semester. Though no definite positions have been designated the basketball team is shaping up fast. Coaches Betty Harris and Ruby Owen are arranging games with U. of K., U. of L., Centre, Nazareth, Ursuline, Trnsylvania, and Berea. Like activity, need some exercise—want to have fun?? Come over to the little gym from 4:00 to 5:00 and play basketball with W. A. A.
