PROGRESS PLATFORM

A weekly school publication. A modified system of student government. A more active alumni association. Continued expansion of athletic department. Continued thoughtfulness in regard to college property. A greater Eastern.

A Journalistic Atmosphere

Any newspaper reporter, whether working on a metropolitan daily or a college bi-weekly, must have a journalistic atmosphere in which to work. There need not be the hustle-bustle and rush that is so often portrayed, but there must at least be a few of the journalism aids and accessories in a newspaper office in order that the reporter will have some idea of the daily or weekly setup.

The college newspaper office should be a place for energetic young newspaper reporters to get assignments, write stories, make connections with departments of the college, assist in rewriting, proof reading, and carry out any of the various duties assigned by the Editor or Managing Editor. Unless there is this real journalistic atmosphere in a newspaper office there is no impetus for talented young reporters to engage in this important extra-curricular activity.

The material for the Progress is collected and revised in an atmosphere which is far from this journalistic essential. It is written by reporters and departmental editors at all times ranging from two weeks before publication date until three days past the deadline date and in all places ranging from the drugstore table to the extra chair in the Progress office.

We do not advocate an extensively planned news and editorial room for the college periodical, but we do believe that the Progress office should contain a few of the ideal newroom accessories, such as several modern typewriters, reporters' desks, proof reading tables, a private desk for the Editor and Managing Editor, a cabinet for files, a newspaper morgue, and (the greatest need of all) a telephone. Also we suggest to those students desiring to study that they use the library or their individual room and not the overcrowded, under-sized Progress office.

With such a newsroom as described we sincerely believe that there would be a greater interest in college newspaper activities at Eastern. Reporters and departmental editors would have a feeling that they were a part of the publication. Too, they would feel a responsibility and there would be a greater cooperation among staff members, a thing vitally essential for complete coverage, follow-up, timeliness, and correctness.

Professional or Political?

Why change a professional position into a political one? For eighteen years Kentucky has selected its Superintendents of Schools by Boards of Education. The outcome in every case has not been utopian, we admit, but the arguments in defense of the public school system of the Commonwealth are sound and they should be thoroughly understood by every citizen interested in the welfare of posterity.

This year, as usual, the perennial bill for popular election of County Superintendents turns up in the legislature. The bill, as usual, is a threat by certain legislators to make the school people submissive to certain other measures. But even the slightest possibility of such an enactment should arouse the interest of every prospective teacher.

Why trust the state school fund of more than one billion dollars in the hands of political manipulators who are more qualified to get votes and be members of the "courthouse gangs" than to be competent school administrators.

Citizens of Kentucky want their children trained in public schools by officials who have time to devote their energies and efforts to professional duties and they do want enactment of legislation that will counteract such accomplishments.

GLEANINGS

Another semester at Eastern Teachers College is history. Many of the students, weary-eyed from burning the proverbial midnight oil in order that they might survive the ordeal of final examinations, are beginning a new semester. What does it hold for them? A week gone and again many have fallen before the heavy fire of social activities and extra-curricular work—and then when the final curtain falls there will again be the last-minute rush of cramming, praying for mercy of profs, and grade begging. . . Why not budget your time accordingly and hold to that budget.

Do you recognize the fact that Eastern has two of the greatest basketball teams in the history of the institution. Never before have we been such a contender for state basketball honors. And never before have we been graced with such material—both physical and sportsmanlike. Recognize the Big Maroons and their little brothers the Baby Maroons. Your encouragement will be greatly appreciated.

Dr. Charles A. Keith, dean of men and history professor at Eastern, estimates that he knows personally 20,000 people. Students who doubt this assertion are requested to contact Dr. Keith and inform him as to your home county . . . then listen to the people that he can name and describe from the county.

"If money makes the mare go, why not ride the money and let the mare go?" AND ". . . if it takes money to make money, why not breed buffalo nickels to eagle quarters and sell the result to the zoo?"

A tip: Take care of your assignments and your grades will take care of themselves.

Research shows that of the seven most famous presidents, excluding the present chief executive, only three went to college. George Washington, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Grover Cleveland received no college training. Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson were highly educated. Roosevelt was graduated from Harvard and Wilson from Princeton, Virginia and Johns Hopkins. Thomas Jefferson attended William and Mary. Further research, however, shows that seventy percent of the presidents of the country did attend college.

Dord Fitz, Portrait Painter and Graduate of Eastern State Teachers College, painting a portrait of Mrs. George Gumbert.

Dord Fitz, who graduated from Eastern in the June class of 1937, has recently enrolled at the Art Institute of Chicago. He came to Eastern in the summer of 1935, from Oklahoma, where he had attended the Northwestern State Teachers College, Alva, Oklahoma. Mr. Fitz financed his college education by painting portraits; while at Eastern he painted portraits of Dr. Donovan, Dr. R. N. Roark, Dr. J. G. Crabbe, Mrs. Donovan,

Miss Elizabeth Scott, Miss Marie Roberts, Coach Rome Rankin, Judge Sullivan, and others.

Last fall he was employed as art instructor in the Harlan County schools, which position he resigned to enter the Art Institute. James Cawood, graduate of Eastern and superintendent of Harlan County schools, has made it possible for Mr. Fitz to attend the Art Institute. The portrait shown above was painted a few days prior to his departure for Chicago.

Rushing into the sacred precincts of the Registrar's office, we waded through schedules and personal data cards to find the possessor of the key to the ballot box in the post office. Look... maybe I'm ahead of my story...

Had trouble getting the key in the lock for it was stuffed with chewing gum, but as soon as we opened the box... a mouse jumped out (that's getting ahead of my story).

Anyway, it seems that the students of Eastern do not care for a democratic form of government so now, as is only fair we offer you the other extreme. If you are interested in Fascism or Communism, do not let this ideal die.

You really miss the old students after they leave Eastern. Somehow, Memorial Hall doesn't seem the same without them.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following St. Valentine's Day poem was found among the vast mass of submitted material for the Progress. It was written by Ernest Archer Thomas at the age of 12 years. Mr. Thomas is now a junior at Eastern.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

(By Ernest Archer Thomas, age 12)

St. Valentine's Day is drawing near And all our hearts are filled with cheer. We will send a heart and receive a heart And I am sure I will do my part.

But when that little girl of mine Sends me a pretty Valentine, My heart will jump and leap with joy-- To think that I am her sweetheart boy.

And if she forgets to send me a greeting, Then another girl I will be seeking; For it is lots of fun on Valentine's Day For the postman to come along our way.

I will look for him with wistful eye, And hope he does not pass me by. But, if he should, then I will decline To send another Valentine.

But Dad and Mother are good old pals And, if Sis does not send them one, I shall, To let them know that I am so inclined To remember them on St. Valentine.

I wonder why I was checked out of the library, for I haven't been put into use. Now for over a week I have been lying under these same old papers.

In an editorial in this issue of the Progress, we are making a plea for new typewriters, desks, telephones and other accessories that are really needed by a newspaper office.

"You're a very apt girl. Is your sister apt, too?" "Well, she's apt to if she gets a chance to."

Spring will come to lift the frown of winter. On a warm day in February we know that Spring will come, for we hear the hearts of red-blooded tulips thumping under ground.

Yes, Spring will come. Laughing arbutus will trail her over the hillsides. She will pause by cool banks lush with purple violets.

But, if Spring does come, will it matter that somewhere tucked away in the secret valleys of the world she riots in a wood, sweet with violets and hidden thrush song?

Mountaineers Hand Maroons Fourth Conference Defeat

Berea Victory One Of Biggest Upsets In K. I. A. C. Race

RATLIFF IS STAR

Springing one of the biggest upsets in the K. I. A. C., the Berea Mountaineers scored a 32-29 victory over the Maroons in an overtime period here Saturday night to hand Eastern their fourth conference loss.

Led by the true shooting of a substitute, Ratliff, in the closing half, the Mountaineers overcame a 6-14 advantage at the half to register their first victory after suffering 8 straight losses.

Beldon for Berea sank his only basket of the game with a minute left to play to knot the count 27-27 and to send the contest into an overtime period. Roy King put the Maroons ahead 28-27 with a free toss to open the extra session scoring. His efforts were nullified by McDowell with a one pointer, and Ratliff again came thru with a fielder which was matched by McDowell a minute later to send the invaders out on top by 32-28. Rankin connected for one of two gratis tosses as the game ended.

Three players were tied for scoring honors with 11 points each. Roy King was the Eastern leader and McDowell and Ratliff for Berea. Fritts accounted for ten of the loser points.

TOPPERS KEEP LEAD

In defeating the Maroons the Hilltoppers kept their lead in the K. I. A. C. and the Thoroughbreds boosted their season's record to 7 victories and one defeat. The win over the Easterners was also Murray's sixth victory in 7 K. I. A. C. games.

Sports Insight By RAYMOND STIVERS

Well, here we go—what will it be? Basketball? Football? Or what? What I suspect would be better, not having fully recovered from the strain of last semester and registration of last week, your (you name it) correspondent's mind is in a complete muddle. Since we have to talk about something let's dive into the subject of basketball. Yes, we lost to Western, Murray and Berea in the past ten days. What of it? Every team is due to lose some time or other. If there was not somebody to get beat, what fun would there be in winning? It seems to be a habit on the campus that the students follow and support a team as long as they are winning. That is the time they need your support less. When they really need support is when they get in a tight spot. I admit it was a surprise when Berea slipped up on us the other night, but at that, why should we doom our basketball team for losing this particular game? Never have I seen a tighter defense set up against a team than the Maroons displayed against Murray Tuesday night, and it is my guess that this defense and some improvement on goal shooting will terminate in a victory for the Maroons over the Thoroughbreds in the Tournament.

According to findings of Dr. Harvey C. Lelman of Ohio University, the best achievements in sports come between the age of twenty-five and thirty. A man cannot be a champion golfer, for example, until he is old enough to have a business to neglect.

Blair failed to call the toss of a coin, thus Dry Ridge will be host to the Grant County District basketball tournament. When it was learned that Dry Ridge and Williamstown had received the same number of votes to be the host team in their district tournament, W. F. O'Donnell, president of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, called at Eastern and selected two Grant county students—Robert Blair and Virginia Ruth Arnold—to settle the question. Miss Arnold, representing Dry Ridge, tossed the "silver" but Blair (not being a professional at games of chance) missed his guess, therefore the tourney will be held at Dry Ridge.

Dr. H. L. Donovan Heard at Peabody (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) of this preparation. Teachers for the new social order must be educated in the 'creative, expressive activities' of society. Nothing is more fundamental in the life of the individual, when he discovers that he has an abundance of leisure, than music, art, literature, dramatics, industrial arts, home economics, and all other forms of creative arts. The teacher should have a broad understanding of the social problems of today; to acquire this understanding the preparation should include "a fundamental knowledge of history, government, politics, economics, sociology and social psychology." Dr. Donovan also listed survey courses in the physical and biological sciences as the minimum essentials for every teacher.

"Every teacher should be professionally trained, skilled in the technique of teaching, possessing sufficient scholarship to have a philosophy of education and an ap-

Fritts, McWhorter Star In Maroon Win Over Georgetown

Victory Is Second Of Season Over Tiger Quintet

SCORE IS 36 TO 24

The Eastern Maroons trounced the Georgetown Tigers for the second time of the season last Wednesday, February 2, by a 36-24 score over their K. I. A. C. victories to eight against three losses.

Led by Fritts and McWhorter, who swished the nets for 13 and 12 points, respectively, the Maroons had little difficulty in subduing the Tigers after getting off to a slow start. The Easterners took a 4-0 lead at the outset but the Bengals came back to knot the score at 5-5 and 7-7 before the Maroons were able to pull away for an 18-10 margin at the half-time.

Georgetown came back in the last half to draw to 24-20, but the Maroons held on and pulled away in the last four minutes into a comfortable lead.

Western Teachers To Furnish Big Maroon Opposition

Co-Tournament Favorites Scheduled To Meet Rankinmen Tomorrow Night

4 GAMES REMAIN

Victorious in only two of their last five starts, the Big Maroons will swing into action tomorrow night with Coach Ed Diddle's Hilltoppers in the first of the remaining four scheduled contests, all of which are to be played within the next seven days. The Maroons, after leading the K. I. A. C. during the early stages of the season, suffered successive defeats at the hands of the Westerners and Murray during their annual between-semester road trip. They revived somewhat to win an unimpressive victory over Georgetown here February 2, only to lose again to their county rivals, the Berea Mountaineers, in one of the major upsets of the season, last Saturday night at the Eastern gym by a score of 32-29 in an overtime contest.

Tomorrow night's contest should give local fans view of the comparative strength of the tournament favorites—Murray and Western. A victory for Eastern would probably cause a change in advance tournament dope.

Following the Hilltopper contest the Maroons will meet Morehead and University of Louisville on February 14 and 16, respectively. Both games will be away from home.

The final encounter of the regular season will be played here with Monk Simon's Transylvania Pioneers, who handed Eastern their first setback of the season by the same score which Berea tabbed them last Saturday night. The preliminary contest to the Pioneer-Eastern game will probably be the feature of the evening as the Transy Frosh is the only team which has been able to hang defeat on the high-scoring Baby Maroons. The young Simonites were victors by a 32-30 score on their home floor.

Coach Rankin has not announced his starting lineup for the Western game. In practice this week the entire squad has been playing an improved floor game and seem to have their eye for the basket. The work of McWhorter and R. King has been especially impressive. The probable lineups: Eastern—Luman and McWhorter, guards; Fritts, center; R. King and Yeager, forwards; McCooklin, center; Dudgeon and Stemm, guards.
