Dr. Henry Hill, superintendent of schools in Pittsburgh, will be speaker at the commencement, May 31, and Dr. Clayton E. Williams, pastor of the Seventh Avenue Presbyterian church, Walnut Hill, Cincinnati, will speak at the baccalaureate services, May 28. Dr. Williams was formerly pastor of the Union church, in Paris, France.

Dr. Hill was superintendent of the Lexington city schools from 1930 to 1940, resigning that position in January of 1941 to become assistant superintendent of schools in charge of general administration at St. Louis. He came back to Lexington in July of the same year as dean at the University of Kentucky. In the fall of 1942 he went to Pittsburgh as superintendent of the schools there.

A native of North Carolina, Dr. Hill attended Davidson College in his home state, then completed work for his A. B. and M. A. degrees at the University of Virginia. He did further graduate work at Columbia University, New York City, where he received his Ph. D. degree in 1930.

WORKSHOP TO BE HELD HERE

Begins With Summer Quarter on June 7, Continues for Five Weeks

OTHERS SPONSORED

A summer workshop for teachers will be held on the campus of Eastern this summer, beginning when the summer quarter opens, June 7, and continuing about five weeks, it has been announced by college authorities.

Eastern will also sponsor workshops off the campus, similar to the ones held last summer at Hindman, Hazard and Pineville. The work in all centers this year will be for the benefit of teachers holding emergency permits who cannot attend the regular summer session or workshop on the campus.

The workshop on the campus will have special advantages of use of the library and other facilities, as well as the use of the swimming pool, tennis courts and other recreational facilities. The Training School will be in session during the workshop.

It seems that if we don't recognize some of our seniors soon it will be too late to do it, so this week we are featuring Mabel Criswell, who is well-known by both the students and faculty.

On an otherwise ordinary day in July, 1923, twins were born to the Criswell family of Cynthiana, Kentucky (Harrison county). There was an odd thing about this day but it wasn't the fact that twins were born but that they picked out Friday 13 for the day. However, this ominous start has never seemed to affect the situation in any way and it seems probable that it won't in the future.

As is usually the case with twins when they are young, what is said about one can be said about the other. They were named Mabel and Mary. When they were six years old they started to school and went for a year, but as the school wasn't close and their mother had formerly been a school teacher, she decided she would teach them at home until they were older. They studied at home for a year's time in which they completed the second and third grades. In 1931 they started back to school and completed the rest of their grade school and high school work at the same school—Sunrise High school.

In high school Mabel was active in the 4-H Club and Dramatics Club and was president of the senior class. When she graduated in May, 1940, she was valedictorian of her class.

She lays her choice of Eastern as her college to the fact that she had always wanted to teach ever since she knew what a teacher was and to the fact that her aunt and uncle live here. She is majoring in English and social science and will graduate this year. She hopes to teach English in one of the high schools in her county next fall.

Incidentally, she went through the usual terrible ordeal of practice teaching at Model High during the winter quarter, but it didn't seem to be an ordeal to her. She seems to be one of those rare people who can take P.T. and not talk about it constantly. Mabel has participated in several clubs on the campus—she has been a "Y" Cabinet member for three years and this year is secretary of the "Y"; she is vice president of the Canterbury Club and has been a member for three years; when the Future Teachers of America was active she was a member; and since 1942 she has been in Kappa Delta Pi.

Besides taking part in club and class activities she has worked during all four of her college years and has maintained a high scholastic standing. She is a member of the Methodist church and has been in many young people's organizations and conferences.

Her hobby of stamp collecting has been halted by the war. She also has hiking and reading as two of her special hobbies.

The students and the faculty alike look up to Mabel for her quiet unassuming manner, her industriousness, her Christian attitude, and the sincerity she has about everything she does. She is truly a student who will be greatly missed when she graduates from Eastern this spring.

LINE CUTTING

Almost every one on the campus has been suffering from the same ailment lately—namely, vaccinations for smallpox and typhoid fever. Maybe its because people have been feeling so bad that they just don't feel like standing in line in the cafeteria and making their ways up step by step, or maybe it's just because they don't want to, that such a bad case of line cutting has been going on.

For the benefit of any poor freshmen who don't know what line cutting happens to be we'll attempt to explain. It is a dire disease that breaks out at intervals, usually in the spring and is very communicable. There are two parties involved, the actors and the recipients. The actors get in the line early. When they have about reached the last flight of steps to the cafeteria the recipients rush up from the rec room, and the actors call out, "Oh, come on up, Mary and Susie, (and maybe a half dozen others). I've saved a place for you." (How, in the name of physics, geometry or anything else, can anybody save a place in line for anybody else?) The recipients drop in to the line. This action serves to enrage the poor famishing students just behind, who either meekly say nothing or vow that they will cut line tomorrow. Thus is line cutting transferred from one person to the other.

There may be a number of cures for this dread disease, but the best that we have been able to find is that used by the Army. When a fellow cuts line the other men immediately take him either peacefully or forcefully to the very bottom of the line. If he is caught a second time—there are always plenty of fish ponds handy.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

Have you ever thought of what constitutes school spirit? It's a hard thing to define, yet its presence or absence is immediately noticed. In days long past, we think it sometimes meant how loud one could yell at football games, or how active one was at pep rallies. Today, we think it has become to mean something more. During these days when there are no intercollegiate sports school spirit has become noticeable in various forms. It may be participating in club activities, attending a movie in Hiram Brock Auditorium, abiding by campus rules cheerfully, or voting in a school election.

This last item deserves some expounding. Within the next week, everyone on the campus is going to have an opportunity to show his school spirit by participating in a school election. For a number of years it has been a custom at Eastern to elect students to represent Miss Popularity, Mr. Popularity, and Miss Eastern. Until this year, the winners have been featured in the school annual, THE MILESTONE, and Miss Eastern has represented the school at the Mountain Laurel Festival. This year, due to wartime conditions, there will be no festival or MILESTONE. There will be a book of photographs and commentaries, LIFE AT EASTERN, prepared by the Photo Club to depict the typical life here. The winners of the election can not be included in this publication, however, since it has already gone to press.

Despite these facts, let's carry on an Eastern tradition and make the results of the elections representative of the entire student body; not of just a few. Let's make Miss Popularity, Mr. Popularity and Miss Eastern the choice of the students. This can be accomplished only if everyone takes part in the election and votes!

Your War Bond Investment Is Your Investment In America ***

GOOD READING AT CRABBE LIBRARY

Jan Smuts—F. S. Crawford

This is a fully documented biography of Africa's outstanding leader. Soldier, statesman, philosopher, and scientist, Jan Smuts is one of the great men of our world. He bears the unique distinction of having been admired, respected, and consulted by the leaders of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United Nations at the same time that he was bitterly resisted and vilified in his own country.

Louisiana in the Confederacy

Among the Confederate States, Louisiana's problems were different from the other states. They were unique in that the occupation of New Orleans early in the war severed the great port and its environs from the interior and aggravated social and economic conditions already made acute by blockade and war needs.

The Listen House—Mabel Seelye

Mystery lovers will welcome this new author, for she has the ability to spin an unusually good yarn, and to fill it with excitement, suspense, excellent characterizations, and humor.

The Good Inheritance — Norman Cousins

This is a story of one of the most striking parallels in all history. It presents the struggle for survival of democracy and civilization today, and the life and death struggle of Athens, which fought the first war to save the world for democracy.

Three Decades of Progress

Have you read this history of Eastern prepared in 1936 by members of the faculty? It presents the growth of the college since its beginning in 1906 and covers a period of thirty years. There are a number of interesting sketches of persons connected with the college, and there are pictures of the campus and buildings as they looked then.

Sea of Memories—Charles Moran
The Mediterranean, where every island and headland suggests some myth or deed of valor, is above all other the sea of men. Stirring historic incidents crowd these pages with pageantry, pathos, intrigue, and adventure. The age old issues of land versus sea power, a conflict fought with significance for all of us in this struggle, permeates all through the book, from the Peloponnesian and Punic Wars down to the present.

Indians Abroad — Carolyn Thomas Foreman

This book is an interesting and unusual departure from the books that have been written previously about the American Indian because it depicts him as a world traveler, from the time of Columbus to the present day. There have been many accounts of the impact of the white man upon the Indian and of the white man's impression of the Indian in early America, but this is probably the first book to be devoted to the Indian as he appeared to Europeans in their own countries.

A Professor at Large—Stephen Duggan

Here one will find a fascinating in the terms of American civilization, for the book appraises the transition from the time when culture in the United States was chiefly the result of influences from abroad, to that when our country's cultural forces became to a large degree responsible for a new life in the old world.

Brave General—Herbert Gorman

General Georges Goulange, the Man on Horseback, played a fiery, swift role in French history. France was his, the morose humiliated France after the bitter defeat of 1870. He defied the German Iron Chancellor and treated the politicians of the Republic with high scorn. The people of Paris adored him, swarmed along the streets singing songs in his honor, begged him to be their leader. They waited on the word that he would become their dictator, but when the word came it was the word of someone else, and the course of history was changed.

Record Prosperity for U.S. Looms In Post War Period

Eric Johnston urges government and business cooperation to fulfill promise

Eric Johnston

Washington, D.C.—Every phase of American business from the farmer to the international industrialist will share in a golden era of post-war prosperity if government and business cooperate to take fullest advantage of six economic potentials, according to Eric Johnston, dynamic president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

To transform fully these potentials into a tangible prosperity of unprecedented proportions, with a resultant heightening of our standard of living, Johnston urges that government and business adopt a middle course "to work together from the largest possible area of agreement."

Johnston projects a crystal clear picture of the dual responsibilities of government and business in an article written by him in the May issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Outlining a post-war program for government and business, Johnston calls on the government to:

- (1) Remove the penalties now imposed on profitable business;
- (2) loosen war time controls;
- (3) Systematically release depression-made restrictions;
- (4) intelligently liquidate our swollen government-in-business;
- (5) utilize existing mechanisms of social control to cushion the transition from a war to a peace economy;
- (6) sponsor non-competitive but useful public works, and a graduated system of financial aid to demobilized soldiers and demobilized war workers;
- (7) plan for the rehabilitation of war shattered veterans to resume productive employment; and
- (8) sharply revise price controls to prevent inflation.

Johnston urges business to do its utmost to provide maximum employment and suggests that the extent to which it can and will do so will, in the final checkup, determine the tempo and thoroughness with which official controls and interferences will be done away with.

He lists the six economic potentials on which he bases his hopes for a brilliant postwar future for the United States as:

- (1) The greatest plant capacity in our history;
- (2) greater sources of raw materials, natural and synthetic, than we ever had in the past;
- (3) the greatest number of skilled mechanics and technicians ever available to any nation;
- (4) a tremendous backlog of accumulated demands for all types of commodities;
- (5) the people will have accumulated unprecedentedly large savings with which to satisfy their deferred demands; and
- (6) an economic vacuum will exist in most of the nations of the world, and it is an immutable law of nature that a vacuum must be filled.

THE ROSE AND THE POPPIES

Beyond the hill of sorrow
Behind the plain of care
We shall find a fairer tomorrow
On their returning from "Over There."

Down into the caldron of tears,
Across the desert of hate
Time slowly stalks with years;
We wonder and guess how late.

There seems no end to waiting
Though short it has been Longer years have taken for debating
And barbaric fighting to end.

The oceans have become rivers;
Streams are of the past;
The innocent skyway the giver;
A world united at last.

Not united in will or goodness!
Mechanization took its blast;
Nations writhing in blood-curdling madness,
Death, not life, the cast.

Back from the jungles of war
To home they shall come,
Hero and lame bringing the battle-scar;
But this is only for some!

Guadalcanal and Salerno is their fate;
Fields broader than Flanders unfurl;
Poppies are the sleeping lads mate;
Give the white rose to the girl.

OTHER CAMPUSES

The purpose of this column is to acquaint the students with the happenings on other campuses throughout the State.

At Murray

Twenty-one girls have been nominated for the title of "Carnival Queen" to be selected at a Student Organization Carnival to be presented May 13. The carnival will feature booths of all kinds, dancing, a variety show, and the crowning of the queen.

At U. of L.

Rosale Harris was appointed editor of the Cardinal to succeed Warren Klosterman, who has been called to the Army.

At Western

One hundred and fifty-five students had an average of "B," and four had "A" averages for the winter quarter.

At Morehead

The Y. W. C. A. redecorated a room in which to hold its future meetings. The room was designed to resemble a small chapel with a worship center at the front of the room.

At U. of K.

Here, too, measles are underway. At least one student has been taken to the infirmary with them. They don't have a thing on us!

THE VOICE OF EASTERN

What is the opinion of the people on Eastern's campus on the current question of war marriages? A number of people were asked the question, "What do you think of war marriages?"

The Men of the Campus

Kenneth Eblen—"For myself, no, but everyone else to his own opinion."

Leslie Combs—"That depends—I'm in a hurry now. I'll see you later." (Two girls just passed).

Faculty and Administrative Staff

Mrs. Blanton—"If the persons have dated steadily for years and would have married regardless of the war, I think it's all right. But if they have known each other shortly, it's not best because of the couple will be changed when the war is over, and they can't decide shortly who they want for a life's mate."

Dr. Keith—"Well, I guess they have a perfect right to, but I think some of 'em would be a whole lot better off to wait a little while."

Newly-Wed

Elizabeth Smith Stapp—"If the couple has known each other long enough to be sure of their choice, go on and marry. The young people, both men in service and the girls at home need something to hold onto in this time of stress. Even if they only spent a short time together, it would be that much happiness. Of course, the approval of the parents should be considered."

Engaged

Carolyn Winkler—"Get 'em while you can."

Marie Riley—"Well, it's all right if they've known each other long enough. They should know each other's family and background."

She Writes a Letter Every Night

Lora M. Applegate—"Hum-um, well, I think if you really love each other, you can wait until the war is over."

LaVerne Holcomb—"All right, if you get the right man."

Independents

Emilie Eaton—"O. K., but better wait until it's over."

Faye Mills—"War marriages are wonderful in some cases, but not for me—just now."

Mary Sue Winkler—"According to the situation."

Lema Aker—"It is going to be a disgrace—the divorce rate after this war is over. They should have thought."

Tommy Rankin—"Let the kids have their fun."

U. S. Victory Waste Paper Campaign

Can we really say that spring is here, or do we have to keep our fingers crossed? At any rate everybody seems to think that particular season has returned and will remain for awhile. The one sight that really proved to us that spring has sprung was two girls out on Burnam's roof getting baked. That's the way girls begin it early. By the by, we hear that the students aren't going to be permitted to take sunbaths on the roof this year. Why not? We'd like to know. What better place is there for getting a tan? It is a necessity for co-eds to have tans, you know, and I don't think we would fall off the roof.

After the picnic supper (a facsimile of older days on a smaller scale) a few people wandered down to the ravine and dangled their feet in the fish pond. It was really delightful walking barefoot through the grass crushing violets and dandelions that were too-thick to miss—like the days when you were a kid and wanted to go barefoot with the first warm days in February.

This Is The Army was a great show even if it was the second time for nearly everyone seeing it. By the way, it practically breaks a person's neck, but it's so interesting to watch the people come in. Of course, Emily would object, but who cares about her?

Katy—that man was here again. It must be nice to have company from Columbus so often. Come again soon, Tom.

Familiar faces brought pleasant memories—among them this time were Betty Carmen (Miss Eastern '43), Opal Stewart and McCarthy. Seems the sailors are getting anxious for the Sailor Swing of May 5. There were quite a few here this weekend looking the place over and giving the girls the big eye.

Was it Tennyson who said, "In Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love?" He really shouldn't have limited it to men though. The students in general seem to have been slightly bitten—and even with the man shortage. A few of the boys on the campus actually ventured out on the rec room floor and danced a little the other night and it looked something like the way it was way back when.

Evidently it was Mama and Papa Day April 23, cause there were several families on the campus including the Winklers and the Morgans.

While browsing through some old issues of The Progress, this note came to my attention—from Helen Ashcraft's Hot Spots quote, "Derby Day in Kentucky and with the absence of the R.O.T.C. boys the camlock about as empty as a girls' school." Unquote—Oh, she should see dear old Eastern now.

Model high school boys seem to be the lifesavers for some of the female populace—like 'em kinda young, don't you girls?

WAVES AT PLAY

OFFICIAL U. S. NAVY PHOTOGRAPH

Young women enlist in the WAVES to serve their country in wartime. Some do exciting work—rig parachutes, help teach Navy men gunnery and flying, take radio code message from the battle fleet. Others follow more prosaic pursuits—stenography, storekeeping, telephone operating. But there's ample time for recreation—recreation of each girl's choosing. WAVES are shown above playing volleyball at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Below, WAVE cheerleaders at a football game at the San Diego Naval Training Station. Young women, 20-36, without children under 18, can get full information at Navy Recruiting Stations or Offices of Naval Officer Procurement.

The one building on the campus that is loved by everyone—from the tip of the chimneys tower to the tile of the rec room floor—is the Keen Johnson Student Union Building. It's the only spot on the campus that we can find anything to eat and that, is the most important thing. In here we can get anything from cokes to an eight-course dinner (if we can afford it and want it at the right time).

The most sacred place is Walnut Hall. This is our special niche for teas and dances. It surely is a treat and we feel we must have on our best bib and tucker when we entertained here. On the same floor we find the Little Theater, Faculty Lounge, and club rooms. The Little Theater with its soft lights puts us out of this world. But being a mere student I've never had the pleasure or the honor of visiting the Faculty Lounge so you'll have to ask the faculty about that. They say it's wonderful, is it?

The cafeteria is on the third floor. The blue and rose rooms opening from the main dining room make us remember the training tables that used to be there. Don't fret, they'll be back soonish.

Now, the main attraction—guess what it is—where do you spend most of your time? We mean besides Crabbe Library—that's right, it's in the Grill waiting for the mail to come in and be put up. The pool and ping-pong tables are kept busy for a few minutes after each meal and then they seem to lose their attraction.

The ringing of the chimes each night at quarter till six surely does make one stop and listen. They really send melodious messages to all within hearing distance.

Youngest Writer-Artist Team

Youngest team of writer and illustrator ever to have their work published by a national magazine are Peter Heggem Matson, nine, of New York City, and Valerie Witalis, eight, of Great Neck, N. Y., shown above.

Peter's "first novel" "The Box That Wouldn't Open" is published in the May issue of Cosmopolitan magazine with illustrations by Valerie.

The story concerns the adventures of two Boy Scouts who survive a Luftwaffe bombing, outwit the dastardly crew of a German submarine, come into possession of secret Nazi plans to invade America, and foil the plot in the nick of time.

A new high in stark, realistic, dialogue is reached when the author quotes a destroyer commander (who by merest chance happens to be his father) as addressing his crew thusly:

"You're under my orders every gosh-darn one of you."

The novel concludes on the following high note of triumphant elation:

"Our heroes had saved America, and it was worth the hardship."

Trombone: Superior, Jack Fletcher, Lafayette. Excellent, Lela Jane Kelley, Kingston; David Fogle, Garth; Pat Propst, Somerset.

"You get out of anything exactly what you put into it," is a saying that has been handed down through the ages, and it seems to have proven itself to be true.

"Y" cabinet members are often confronted with this—"I'm not going to join the 'Y' this year because last year I was a member and I didn't get anything out of it or do much of anything." And this person is probably right; she didn't do much of anything and didn't get anything out of it. She never attended Vespers or any of the other general meetings; her attendance to Quiet Hour was infrequent; and she failed to comply with any of the requests made her by the "M."

To get true joy from anything, whether pertaining to a club, school, church or work or play, one must do something worthwhile, giving time and talents, exerting an effort to make it count for the betterment of others, rather than just sell. The secret of happiness, lasting happiness, is through service to others. It's the aim of the "Y" and an old motto to "serve others." It's our goal to be of service to all—regardless of creed, color, race, or whether rich or poor. If there is a worthy cause or any person to whom the "Y," as an organization, can be of service, they would appreciate that information delivered to them.

One of the main goals of the "Y" is to train and produce the youth of our nation, spiritually, morally, physically, and socially.

Don't forget Vespers Thursday evening, 6:30, and Quiet Hour at 9:30 p. m., Monday through Thursday. Most of all don't fail to attend the annual "Y" banquet—May 5.

How Waste Paper goes to war

The waste paper you collect, bundle and turn in is rapidly reprocessed into war paper for our fighters. They use it in over 700,000 ways. They must have it. So never burn or throw away waste paper—turn it all in—now!

PAPER BOXES contain replacements of rapidly worn out equipment, trucked in close to the front lines by the Quartermaster Corps.

PAPER MESSAGES, V-mail or ordinary mail, are helped on their way by WAVES. Thus paper helps to shorten the distance between loved ones.

PAPER FOOD CARTONS go all over the globe. Each is handled with care until it arrives at the battlefield.
