JIM SUE, BILL, GINNIE ARE FAVORITES

STUDENTS ELECT MISS EASTERN, MR. POPULARITY, MISS POPULARITY

The student body placed Eastern's highest honors upon Jimmie Sue Bateman, Bill McClanahan, and Virginia Durbin in an all campus election which now gives them the title of Miss Eastern, Mr. Popularity, and Miss Popularity respectively. Votes were counted last evening and this is the official announcement of the results.

Attendants for Miss Eastern are Blanche Rose McCoum and Ruby Ramey. Runners-up for Mr. Popularity are "Tack" Baldwin and Tom Holbrook. Denyse Campbell and Edie Taylor were the other nominees for Miss Popularity.

To Be Honored
The Milestone staff, sponsor of the annual election, will present the winners with gifts at a banquet held in the near future at Benault Hall.

Nominations were held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, February 9, 10, and 11, from 11 o'clock a. m. to 1 o'clock p. m. in the recreation room of the SUB.

Names of the three nominees who received the highest number of votes cast were announced last Friday. Final voting was held this past Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, same time and place.

To be eligible for nomination, a person must be classified either as a junior or senior. Other qualifications were (1) personality, (2) popularity, (3) and poise.

Miss Eastern will represent the college at the annual Mountain Laurel Festival where candidates are judged for beauty and poise.

Votes of both elections were counted by Miss Willie Moss, home economics department; Glen Wilson, English department; Alvin McGlasson, mathematics department; and W. D. Ward, psychology department. Miss Moss was in charge of all votes at all times.

Collegiate Pentacle, Senior Honorary, Year Speakers, Begin News Series

From mores of the French to dishwashing as an art have been discussed recently in the meetings of Collegiate Pentacle, senior women's honorary.

The first was discussed, along with several other highlights of her recent trip to Europe, by Dr. Blanche Haseldon, Assistant Dean of Women at the University of Kentucky. Dr. Haseldon, who helped Dean Emma Y. Case write the initiation service and constitution for Collegiate Pentacle, spoke to the group in the candlelighted Green Room of the Lafayette Hotel in Lexington, where the group had the second out-of-town dinner meeting of the year.

Women Smoke Cigars
Dr. Haseldon explained the fears of the French about rearing of Germany, and added, matter-of-factly, that with the exception of Paris, the French people considered women who smoked in public very shocking! Not so in Denmark, however, where women sometimes smoke large black cigars! One interesting comment concerned the large percentage of their tax income that the Danish spent on free public education.

The artistic dishwashing ideas slipped quietly into the discussion of "Art and Music in Everyday Life," the subject of a program meeting held in Mrs. Case's office on Thursday, February 11. In an informal atmosphere, Mrs. Blanche Seevers, member of the music department, and Dr. Fred Giles, representing the art department, discussed with the group the values to be obtained in happier living from music and art.

'Song In His Heart'
Dr. Giles said, "everyone is born with a song in his heart," and Mrs. Seevers emphasized the practicality of some musical knowledge for future teachers—or doctors, who may be called upon to help with community singing or choir directing.

Art was discussed as an expression of oneself in painting, music, dressmaking, cake decorating, the writing of poetry, speaking, or—yes—even dishwashing!

As a result of these two meetings, Collegiate Pentacle is planning an art exhibit (from the Masters, and contemporary work by Eastern students) for the lobby of Burnam Hall.

News Highlights
In the way of world affairs, they have begun a series of "News Highlights," which will be presented every Monday evening at 8:30 in the lobby of Burnam. The first review was given by Dr. Horace Raper, history department, on Monday, February 15. Other members of the faculty, and perhaps citizens from Richmond will be invited to review "News Highlights."

MR. BERNARD ADDED TO MUSIC FACULTY

Edward Bernard of Dorchester, Mass., is replacing Thomas J. Stone, former associate professor of music, who was granted a leave of absence for one year beginning February 1 to work on his doctor's degree at Florida State University.

Mr. Bernard has taught at the Juillard School of Music, New York, and at the Henry Bernard Music Studios in Boston. He received the Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees from Boston University and also studied at Juillard Graduate School of Music where he was awarded two fellowships.

Mr. Bernard has been concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Indianapolis Symphony, first violinist with the N. B. C. Symphony, and first violinist with the Radio City Music Hall Orchestra in New York City.

'College And You' Topic Of Panel Discussions

"College and You" is the topic selected by the Mu Chapter of Cwens for future panel discussions. Potential plans include the visitation of the groups to various county high schools to present programs to interested seniors.

Kitty Wright is chairman of the group composed of Mary Helen Collins, Freeda Waggoner, Nancy Jackson, Marilyn Mulvanity, Carol Melburg, and Peggy Campbell. The second group is composed of Chairman Shirley Pettit, Margie Rasnick, Carlene Bobb, Dolores Samson, Eleanor Merklein, Billie White, Jean Walton, and Ruth Anderson.

The weekly Wednesday evening entertainment programs in the lobby of Burnam have started again and everyone is invited to attend.

Crace And Zweigart Named Sweetheart Couple

Miss Carolyn Crace, freshman, and Bob Zweigart, sophomore, were chosen as Eastern's Sweetest Sweetheart Couple at the annual Sweetheart Dance held Friday evening, February 12.

The semi-formal dance, sponsored by the Eastern Progress, was held in Walnut Hall from eight o'clock until midnight. Dean Turner and his orchestra furnished the music. Guests for the evening were W. L. Keene, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lewis, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Venettozzi.

The couple was crowned by last year's Sweetheart Couple, Dece Daniel and Vernon Frederick. Edie Taylor and Clyde White, both of the Progress staff, presented the winners with a Valentine-shaped cake.

O. V. C. TOURNAMENT

The Ohio Valley Conference Tournament will be held in Louisville on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, February 25, 26, and 27. The tentative date for the tournament drawing is Sunday, February 21, in Louisville.

Colleges belonging to the Ohio Valley Conference are Eastern, Western Kentucky, Murray, Morehead, Tennessee Tech, and Middle Tennessee.

Tickets for the tournament games may be purchased in the campus athletic office.

Sophomores Entertain Freshmen With Party

The sophomore class sponsored a dance given for the freshman class on Friday evening, February 5, in the recreation room of Burnam Hall. Music for dancing was furnished by Charles Swartz and orchestra.

Games were played and Cokes and potato chips were served throughout the evening. Mr. and Mrs. William Hopp and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Venettozzi were chaperones. Mr. Hopp entertained the group with an exhibition of hypnotism.

Mr. and Mrs. Venettozzi are co-sponsors of the freshman class, and Mrs. Blanche Seevers and Mr. Hopp are co-sponsors of the sophomore class.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA CLUB

Plans for reorganization of the Future Teachers of America Club are being considered by Dr. Thomas Ferrell, professor of education, and interested students.

Watch the Progress for announcement of first meeting.

'President's Farm Report' Program For Sunday

On Sunday, February 21, Dr. R. E. Jagers will conduct a round-table discussion over station WEKY on the "President's Farm Report." Participating in the discussion will be Lester Miller, county agent; Glen McLain, member of the history department, and William Stocker, member of the agriculture department.

Also with this program will be a five minute Campus News Round-up by Edie Taylor, editor of the Eastern Progress.

Next Sunday, February 28, Dr. Jagers will conduct a discussion on "Fine Arts and the Art of Living." Helping with this discussion will be Dr. Fred Giles, Dean Gatwood, James Van Peurse, and Thomas Stone, all faculty members.

Don Fields Receiver Of Fellowship At Ohio State

Senior Donald Fields has been awarded a teaching fellowship at Ohio State University, Columbus, for the academic year 1954-1955.

Last year Don was selected as Kentucky's outstanding student by the National Association of Manufacturers. This year he is a representative of Eastern in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Since being on campus he has served as president of both his freshman and sophomore class. He was Corps Commander of last year's R. O. T. C.

He attended both Shawnee High, where he was president of the student body, and Male High, from which he graduated summa cum laude in 1950.

Donald will graduate in June with a major in Chemistry.

'THE MIKADO' PRESENTED TODAY, MONDAY EVENING IN AUDITORIUM

"The Mikado," two-act musical comedy by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be presented this afternoon at 1:30 and Monday evening at 8:00 in Brock Auditorium. Sponsored by the Music Club, the production is under the direction of Miss Frances McPherson and Mrs. Vasile Venettozzi.

Tickets are now on sale by members of the Music Club at 50 cents for students. Reserve seat tickets are being sold for $1.00.

Jim Winn Is Mikado
Jimmy Winn plays the role of the Mikado of Japan with Hugh Brooks as his son who is in love with Yum-Yum (Pat Spoonamore). Freeda Waggoner and Joan Scholle appear as Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo, sisters of Yum-Yum and wards of Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner of Titipu, played by Larry James.

Pooh-Bah, Lord High of Everything Else, and Pish-Tush, a noble lord, are portrayed by Ed Burke and Lawrence Harris. Joan Neff plays Katish, an elderly lady in love with Nanki-Poo, the Mikado's son. A chorus of school girls, guards, nobles, and coolies completes the cast. Vocal numbers will be accompanied by the Eastern orchestra.

The theme of the entire production is based on Gilbert and Sullivan's conception of Japan. The fact that the composers had never been to the country accounts for the names and much of the humor. Japanese setting and costumes add to the further reality.

The Coronation Swing will be held immediately after the Eastern-Murray basketball game tomorrow evening in the recreation room of the Student Union Building. The dance is being sponsored by the Music Council and will continue until midnight. Music will be furnished by records. Admission is 50c "stag or drag". Refreshments of punch and cookies are to be served.

Choice Of Material, Not Grades, Should Be Main Concern Of Student

The bridge soirees engineered in the grille which claim the unswerving loyalty of our bridge devotees; the superlative Eastern-Western basketball contest which marked the current season a success for sport fans; the recurrent safaris into town which apparently attract those in search of adventure—Perhaps these activities are valid and essential facets of an education. However, suppose we pause for a moment, stow away the week-end carpet bag, and consider quite seriously our primary objective at Eastern, that of acquiring an education.

It has become fashionable of late to regard an intensive, liberal education as a total waste of time, an idle pursuit in search of a trifling piece of finery. This fatuous notion has gained such widespread popularity that our colleges and universities are degenerating into something less than training schools. Moreover, the fascination of professional educators with terms, methods, and labels, in an attempt to discover a panacea for all educational problems does not alleviate this alarming situation. Therefore, in the midst of this highly-publicized evolution of educational techniques, emphasis, and values, in order to maintain a proper perspective and evaluate our own efforts toward this goal that of becoming educated individuals, we must remember certain fundamental aims of education: to develop effective thinking, to enable an individual to discriminate among values, and make intelligent relative judgments.

An individual's degree of education, or lack of it, is not measurable in terms of the variety of comprehensive facts crammed into various recesses of his brain, classroom grades, or the number of hours he does not study.

Success in academic pursuits demands the acquisition of a large body of facts. However, these facts are not an end in themselves. Rather, facts are tools; tools to be employed in gaining an insight into the broader concepts, the understanding of ideas, their foundations and development.

A grade is necessarily an artificial evaluation of a specific and limited aspect or facet of classroom achievement perhaps an appraisal of the least important one. Much more important for the serious student than a concern over grades is the choice of valuable material studied with intent and purpose. Organized, purposeful study of worthwhile material followed by careful reflection and application will lead to that elusive, but highly desirable goal, an education.

The Progress Salutes

His favorite likes are "clothes, parties, the beach, and big times in general." His favorite dislikes are "conceited people, dead beats, and bad weather."

He has just returned to campus, which he "really missed," after completing student teaching in Covington during the first semester.

Although this took him away from Eastern, our senior is back in the swing of things as he continues his extra-curriculum activities. This year he is a member of the Milestone staff, business manager of the Progress, and a member of Kappa and Kappa Pi. He was one of twenty-one Eastern students to be selected to appear in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

During the past years, he has been president of the junior class, president of Kappa Pi, vice-president of Kyma, and King of the Junior Prom.

This past summer was spent working in a resort hotel outside of Boston where he "really had a great time."

After graduation immediate plans will be decided for him by Uncle Sam, and then after that "your guess is as good as mine."

Who is this senior featured in The Progress Salutes? You're right! It's Clyde White.

'KAMPUS KATS'

* Roses are red
Violets are blue
Did your sweet send
A Valentine to you?

Cutest couple this side of Burnam? ? ? It's Bob and Carolyn, two to one, according to the latest "Kat Pole". The "Kat Pole" also records a survey taken at a throng with Dan Cupid on the throne and found that nine out of ten couples had a wonderful time at the Sweetheart Dance just like Phyllis and Tommy, Carlene and Don, Dece and Vernon, Donnie and Freda, Mac and Janet, Blanche and "Tack", Jerrie and Kitty, Carol and Roy, Jimmie Sue and Bill, and Virginia and Charlie. New combos of hearts were Horace Harper and Wanda Vineyard, Nancy Stone and Buddy Curry, Nancy Snowden and Bob Robie, Beverly and Larry, and Gayle and Charles Patrick.

Me - e - e - ow, but Cupid worked overtime to get everyone to that Kat's caper last Friday. Little 'ole Dan C. flew to U. K. and brought Jess Curry for Betsy Otis, brought dates from U. C. for Billie Sue, Doris, and Jo Anne, flew all around town and picked up Jim Cox for Betty Pack and Clyde White for Chris Callas, and even brought some sweethearts who have already tied the knot—like the Finleys, McNabbs, Hensleys, and the Roberts. Purr - - ty fine.

A purr - - son really wonders sometimes if Cupid even takes time off for lunch. One look at Jean Walton and Jim Hisch, Jean Osborne and Bob Tissue, Ray Davis and Oeh, or Jo Anne and Jim as they enjoy their lunch hour together is enough to convince you that the little cherub is never at rest.

Me - - o - - how all kinds of valentines have been flying around. Me - - o - - heard that Tommy Holbrook received one through the mail. Carol Baker got valentine greetings from W. E. K. Y. and Bill Baxter. Me - - o - - heard that Don's valentine from Edie was very sweet, just like chocolate candy!!! But who sent Edie her box of candy by mail?

Three Oldest Buildings Relate Campus History 1874 To 1954

By MARY JO CAMPBELL

Can you name the three oldest buildings on Eastern's campus? And can you guess how old they are?

Probably you can guess the University Building—Model High—as one of them, but the other two are more difficult. They are the building now used by the Home Economics department as the Home Management House, and the house in which Mr. Ault, superintendent of grounds and buildings, now lives.

The history of these three buildings is interesting and more complicated than you might think. It goes back to the years just after the Civil War.

In 1861-62, the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America split into a Northern and a Southern branch over the slavery controversy, the Southern division becoming the Presbyterian Church in the Confederate States of America. The courts awarded all the church's property in Kentucky to the Northern branch, and the Southern division began immediately to build churches, parsonages, and Central University (Centre College at Danville became the property of the Northern Presbyterians), which was located in Richmond on the spot which is now Eastern's campus. The citizens of Kentucky subscribed $220,000—almost half of which was given by Madison County citizens—for the building of the university.

University Hall

The main building of old Central University was University Hall, still used by Eastern as Model High School. University Hall was dedicated September 22, 1874, and was the building in which the auditorium, classrooms, library, and laboratories of the school were located. The first chancellor was Robert L. Breck, and the first graduate was French Tipton, who received a degree in law in 1875.

The buildings now used as the Home Management House and Mr. Ault's home were built shortly after 1874 to be used as homes for faculty members. There were originally four of these buildings, but two were torn down when Sullivan Hall and the Arts building were constructed.

University Hall has seen many students, both of Eastern and Central, come and go. In the years of Central, such subjects as Latin, Greek, French, German, English, mathematics, logic, physics, rhetoric, ethics, chemistry, mineralogy, and astronomy were taught in the building. The University was never large—there were more students from Madison County alone here now than there were ever enrolled at any time in the University. But, in spite of size, student life was much the same then as it is now.

Central vs. Centre

Probably the greatest athletic rivalry of the school was between the football teams of Central and Centre College. In 1893, when

Central defeated Centre 20-18 for the state football championship, the game had to be played on a neutral field, in Lexington. The Courier-Journal called the game "the greatest football game which ever took place in Kentucky in point of interest if not in sport."

Class rivalry at Central was much greater than it has been at Eastern. For example, "the colors of the sophomore class were torn from the flagstaff on University Hall one morning in March, 1900, by the three other classes, in spite of stubborn resistance, and the colors of the seniors were torn from the same high point on the following morning by freshmen and juniors, after they had overcome the valiant sophomores and seniors. One wonders in what condition the building must have been left, and whether the University did not need a hospital corps with its military unit" after that scrap.

There was a military unit here even then, and cannons were found planted on the campus.

The University had colleges of art, law, medicine, and dentistry, and four preparatory schools. The school of medicine was located at Louisville, and the preparatory schools were at Jackson, Elizabethtown, Middlesboro, and Richmond.

In 1901, Central University was united with Centre College and moved to Danville. The University was in financial difficulty, and Centre, with its longer history, was more likely to survive than Central, so the University and the college were united, with the name Central University, but changed to Centre in 1918.

Normal School In 1906

Richmond lost its University, but the buildings remained, and in a very few years (1906), Eastern Kentucky State Normal School was begun on the campus and in the buildings of old Central University. The three oldest buildings of Central are still in use today.

Material for this article was given by Dr. J. T. Dorris, and also gotten from the chapter in Thirty Years of Progress called "Central University" written by Dr. Dorris. Thirty Years of Progress, published in 1936 by members of the faculty and edited by Dr. Dorris, is in the library and is recommended to anyone who wants to learn more of Eastern's varied and colorful history.

A Peek in the Closet

By DEAN FASHION

I know that you have been looking forward to this semester because the two biggest social activities of the year come this second term. Now is the time to start planning for the Military Ball and Junior Prom. If you'd like to be the best dressed girl at either of these big dances, go shopping for a waltz length or long evening dress with a full skirt with a flower or pouf at the waist. You'll be fair and lovely dancing away in a short evening dress of white nylon tulle with a halter bodice. The bodice is lined with rayon taffeta. The skirt has two tiers of crystal pleats, a rayon taffeta slip and its own crinoline. There's a pink velvet ribbon belt and a rose at the waist to have a complete outfit of beauty; the adding touches are pink pearls and rhinestone earrings, bracelet, and white gloves.

Floor-Length Gown

Sweet is the word for the girl that chooses a fragile, strapless floor-length gown of two tones of pink nylon net. Under the gathered skirt there is a full-length rayon taffeta slip. The dress also comes in two shades of blue.

Copper to glow by night, sparkled with silvery sequins like dew drops at dawn. Nylon net rushed round the beautifully defined bared bodice . . . floating over whispering taffeta in a waltzing skirt. There are other beautiful luminous colors, too, to light you after dark. Red Flame, Blue Blaze, and Pink Flare.

White Formals

White formals are always the number one choice with girls, and here is a gorgeous one for any miss. A long white strapless gown of acetate taffeta with a scalloped bodice trimmed with rhinestones and pearls. The Bouffant skirt has contrasting rayon taffeta midriff, and large pouf at waist, in pink, red, and blue.

Now, girls, don't let these dates creep up on you. Remember when you are shopping keep the above fashion notes in mind, and you can't go wrong.

'Doc' Kennamer State-Known As Lecturer, Professor, Author

By MARY ELIZABETH JOHNSON

"Budget your time to play so long, to study so long, to sleep so long, and to eat so much." was a replay given by Dr. Lorrin Garfield Kennamer, head of the geography department, in answer to the question, "How can students accomplish more with their time?" He continued, "class rooms" require approximately one tenth of the student's total time. The way in which he uses the remaining nine tenths will determine his success or failure in his college career.

"Doc" Kennamer is certainly well qualified to explain how to use time, for during his career he has been author, administrator, broadcaster, book collector, teacher, and guest speaker for many various occasions.

Preparation for this multiple facet career was begun in Kennamer Cove, Alabama by a college professor father and a spunky Alabama mother. Mrs. Kennamer raised seven children and gave each of them a college education and a little of her spunk. Dr. Kennamer found his mother many times reading from a book while churning and caring for her smaller children.

College Degrees

With push from his mother, encouragement from his father, and a great deal of elbow grease from washing dishes, Dr. Kennamer advanced through various levels of education. He now holds an A. B. degree from Hardin-Simmons, Abilene, Texas, a B. S. from Peabody, Nashville, Tennessee, and an M. A. and Ph. D. from the University of Tennessee and Vanderbilt. He is the first person south of the Ohio River to receive a Ph. D. degree in geography from a southern institution. Main fields of interest during his college work were Latin, German, geographic economics, and economic and geographic history.

Dr. Kennamer does not believe that college should be a semi-penitentiary, and therefore students should not be forced to studying books. However, he describes his own volumes as "select copies of the finest thoughts that have fallen from the minds of man." Such an enthusiasm for a library often becomes the attitude of his students.

There may be included in his personal library books, those that have been written by "Doc" Kennamer himself, for his books are printed under a pen name—so no one knows.

Programs On W. H. A. S.

While broadcasting from W. H. A. S. in Louisville a few years ago, he could not use a pen name, however, Dr. Kennamer presented a program entitled Kentucky Counties on Parade. The program was a regular feature and was stopped only when Dr. Kennamer's health necessitated its conclusion.

"Doc" Kennamer is remembered for many things. Many high school graduates remember him as their commencement speaker. Once in a distant city he was recognized as "the man who told a story about a pig." Many students remember him for his interesting class periods and intriguing stories.

A unique bundle, this Dutch-German professor enjoys equally such varied interests as world affairs and fly fishing. He reads for relaxation in literature, art, and music. His children, grandchildren, and timberland in Alabama, all hold important places in his life.

"Doc" Kennamer is fifty-six years old. Twenty six years of this life have been spent at Eastern. "These have been happy years," he added, "because of the true friendships of the students. They have been more than kind; they have been more than friendly."

'Wonderful Age'

"We are living in a wonderful, dangerous, adventurous, and exciting age." Dr. Kennamer concluded. "I feel that war is inevitable, but our virtue is courage to meet the crisis of the time. Let every student plan for 2,000 A. D. and prepare himself through training that he may have the best life possible in the next century."

Junior Miss

Junior Miss for this issue is Louise Gullady who is serving this year as president of the Burnam Hall House Council. Lou is known to her many friends as being a very reliable and amicable person.

"You're Driving Me Crazy" to Tom Schulte.

"Oh! You Beautiful Doll" to Billie Sue Click.

"Greatest Show On Earth" to the Eastern-Western basketball game.

"Stranger in Paradise" to all new students.

"Till Then" to O. V. C. enthusiasts.

"Bye, Bye Blackbird" to Clay Moore.

"Seems Like Old Times" to Dolores Samson and George McKinney.

"Little White Lies" to Frank Jemley.

Me - - out of Kat stuff so until next time may I leave you with this bit of Katty advice: A man sitting on a tack is better off . . .

NEW FURNITURE IN BURNAM

Have you noticed the improvement in Burnam Hall? It is due, simply, to the new furniture! The furniture came from Stateland which has recently been converted into the College's infirmary. The Sullivan Hall basement is now undergoing the proper repairs for the future "new" infirmary, at which time the furniture is to be returned after this construction is completed.

One authority stated, "It's so nice to have the furniture over here. There are so many people (couples) who would like to sit in the lobby on cold nights, but couldn't do so before, but now, — now we have ample room."

Overnight Burnam Hall has been changed into almost a second grill and rec. room.

Schaef's Smoke Screen

Well, next week is George Washington's Birthday and for those of you who haven't heard the story yet (and are too embarrassed to ask for it in the library), I will relate the details to you here. Seems as if Geo was out lookin' for a good time and his tummy was growlin' for chow. Yep, yer right, he saw a cherry tree.

Well, he couldn't climb the tree because his levis were too tight, so he whittled away at the trunk of the tree until it fell over scattering these kuhrazee cherries all over the ground. He heard his old man ccm'n' and he didn't know what to do, so he said to his pop, "I cannot prevaricate" — but before he could get any more words out his dad kicked the truth out of him. You see his old man didn't dig that kuhrazee word prevaricate. I suppose the moral of this story should be Don't Use Big Words for Kicks, 'cause You Might Get Some Licks.

You know the new system of registration this semester worked out pretty good, although the administrative staff and faculty seemed to be quite busy. I guess this justifies the old saying that grass never grows on a busy street. Then too I suppose there's still room for improvement, for all the students aren't wearing sunglasses to classes yet.

I was talking to Mr. and Miss Popularity today. I tried to talk them in to writing a book on How To Win Friends And Be Able To Live With Yourself. Of course, I think the second half of the book should be stressed because I think our choices are authorities on this since they don't have to look ashamedly into the mirror.

I want to get something off my chest here—last week there was a semi-formal dance here at school for one dollar and that's all. The sponsors didn't mind that the crowd wasn't huge because as it turned out it was a very successful affair. It seems to me though that something as nice as this should have shown a bigger student interest. I heard reports that the places downtown were thriving. Why is it that students gripe about not having student activities and when they are given an activity by a small group of hard-working students they turn around and do something else? How much money did you spend down town last Friday night and was the occasion much different from any other Friday night? Let's support our activities from now on, whatta ya say?

You know, I thought of a new way to make that extra money you want to make. All you have to do is get some cardboard and a stencil to print Boy and Girl. Since some of the girls are almost getting crew cuts now and some of the boys are wearing duck tails, I believe that these cards will be almost a necessity for identification. You'd better watch your language in the rest rooms too until they change the sign from His and Hers to What.

The Open-Mind Column

By DON WALTERS

Graduating seniors, now that your last semester at a liberal arts college is under way what is your conception of a liberal education? Do you think Eastern has been fulfilling your expectations?

Buddy McKinley: "Liberal means, in this case, taking what you want to take, you know, a lot of different subjects. A liberal education is not restrictive, yet all liberal arts colleges are a little restrictive. I have a lot of fun here, and I've even learned a little. But, oh, these 21 hour semesters!"

Carlos Lester: "A lot of people nowadays are graduating with a study of one narrow field. A liberal education is the case where you get enough hours in an area that qualifies you to teach in that area, and, yet, get a general understanding of other fields. Liberally enough, here at Eastern these other fields can be anything."

Betty Maupin: "It means taking some classes in each department, enjoying all activities and clubs, and also taking a certain course under a certain teacher. I think anyone can get a liberal education at Eastern if that person is willing to work."

Frank Keller: "My conception of a liberal education is a study of the social sciences and fine arts. Yes, I think Eastern has some of the most well-versed instructors in this country. The way that they conduct their classes makes Eastern a good representation of a liberal arts college."

James Murphy: "It's hard to say right off, but I believe a liberal education opens your mind to the fact that the more you learn, the more you see that you don't know. I suppose Eastern could be improved though."

Cecile Horn: "If a liberal education means having a wonderful time and getting an education at the same time then I have gotten a liberal education here."

Martha "Mousie" Chambers: "A liberal education means that you learn just enough about some things to make you realize that you know very little about anything. There is available at Eastern enough information to afford a good general education, but in four years you can only scratch the surface."

Paul Bybee: "I didn't come here to get a liberal education; however, I think I have obtained a good, general background of various things. My pre-med course is fairly specialized, but Eastern has given me a broad scope of things at the same time—at least I've learned how to play bridge."

Janey Robertson: "I think a liberal education is one that makes a person aware of what he knows. The student is acquiring an education here at Eastern that prepares him to continue his education after graduation. Actually I think it is too soon to say whether or not Eastern is a good liberal arts college."

Mozart: "Right now I am working on my barktor's degree and all I can say is—it's ruff."

WESTERN MEETS THEIR WATERLOO, 63-54

First Loss For Visitors

They came out of the Hills riding on top of the world; 21 straight games without the taste of the sickening feeling that follows a defeat. Western Kentucky's greatest team was pitted against, oddly enough, Eastern's weakest team. But, thanks to the great faith and coaching of Head Coach Paul McBrayer Western was knocked on their back side for the first time in the current season.

Without a doubt much of the credit goes to McBrayer. Throughout the whole game he "quarter-backed" the team from the bench, calling time whenever things weren't going right or to move somebody out or in. And it was his winning Brain Storm to hold the ball, passing up fair openings at the basket for good ones. All through the first half the Maroons held the ball even though they some times trailed eight or more points. At the end of the first quarter they trailed by one point. The lead changed hands twice in the second period before Jack Adams, Eastern's top scorer for the night, put the Maroons in the lead that they never lost.

Defensive Play Terrific

The fine defensive playing of Adams, who helped to hold Western's All-American, Tom Marshall, to eight points was one of the key notes to the Maroons' success. Not only did he keep Marshall from getting any shots at the basket but he also gained better position for rebounding, keeping Marshall away from the ball, a thing he can be very dangerous with once he gets his hands on it.

Along with this fine defensive play, Eastern's possession playing limited the Toppers to 48 shots; they were so rattled they hit only 14 for a 29 percent average. That wouldn't even win some high school games. The Maroons on the other hand, controlled the ball most of the game and took only 34 shots, making 18 for a 52.9 percent.

Whole Team Plays Well

There really wasn't a weak spot in the Maroon lineup, or at least McBrayer changed it before it had any damaging effects. The big Irishman used the same bunch of green, young, inexperienced boys that had showed they were capable of playing good ball in a few games this year. It seemed as though this was the game they had been waiting for all year. Jim Mitchell, a freshman who never played any high school ball, and two sophomores, Jack Adams and Ronnie Pellegrinon, help make the future look bright for coming teams. Jack Adams did every thing a basketball player dreams of... He scored 23 points, grabbed more than his share of rebound and held mighty Tom Marshall just two fieldgoals. Jim Mitchell played a whale of a floor game and dropped in eight free throws four of them with only 2:03 minutes left in the game and Eastern winning by only one point.

The "Little General" Pellegrinon controlled the ball like a pro, wh scoring 14 points for the night. It seemed that every time it was essential for the Maroons to hold the ball, Pellegrinon would come up with it.

There are still plenty of tickets left for the 1954 O. V. C. tournament to be held in Louisville, Feb. 25, 26, and 27. The price of block of tickets, for all the games is six dollars or 7.50 for best seats. Tickets may be purchased at the athletic office till 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Feb. 20. There will be no individual game tickets sold.

Bill Bradford Signs Contract To Play With Chicago Cardinals

Third Maroon To Play Pro Ball

By DEAN RUMBOLD

Bill Bradford, the Ashland Flash, has done it again! After lettering in baseball, football and track at Ashland High School, he came to Eastern's campus and did the same thing—in football and track.

Climaxing his senior year at Eastern, he was both the leading ground gainer and high scorer during the past football season. You may ask what this is all leading up to! For those of you who don't know about it, Bill signed a one-year contract with the Chicago Cardinals last Monday to play professional football.

In so doing, he joins a very select group. According to my information, only two other football players from Eastern have ever joined the "play for pay" boys. The first of these was Joe Hollingsworth in 1949 and the second was Ray Pelfrey in 1950. Now comes 1954 and Bill Bradford is the third.

He received a questionnaire from the Cards last year and filled it out, returning it to the team in Chicago. One of the assistant coaches talked to Bill during the Christmas holidays and then informed him that he was one of their draft choices and that they would take him unless another club decided to do so. Evidently another team didn't, but that's the Cardinals' good fortune.

Bradford signed for one year at a salary of $5,500., but as he said, the contract is provisional. That is, he has to make the team before it is actually a binding contract.

But, should he work as hard in Chicago as he did at Ashland and at Eastern, he should have very little trouble in so doing.

While Bill graduates in June, he is still one year behind schedule in his R. O. T. C. courses and will have to finish that year before he can receive his commission.

But, when asked about that, he had an answer ready. He's going to make up those hours at DePaul University in the mornings next year and play "pro" football in the afternoons.

Bill is supposed to report to the Cardinals in July but will have to take this tour of active duty, ROTC again, at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, before he can go. He'll have several months of practice in which to make the team.

The best of luck in the future, Bill—you can do it—get out there and show them so!

Cute thing after receiving proposal: "I love you, Joe, but I can't go around marrying every man I'm in love with."

Baseball Starts On March 1

34 Tryouts Are Expected

With the promise of a great year in the making, the Eastern baseball squad will begin practice March 1, the first Monday after O. V. C.

Losing only two players from last year's team, the Maroons are helped a great deal by new tryouts. "Greenie" Kincaid, assistant to Head Coach "Turkey" Hughes" asks that all try-outs or those wishing to try out take advantage of the mild weather and meet on the ball field to get in better shape for official practice. There will be an estimated tryout of 34 boys, but more are welcomed.

IN THE still of the night—high above a sleeping American city—an unidentified aircraft is spotted. In a matter of seconds a lightning-like jet interceptor takes to the air. Unerringly, with an Aircraft Observer showing the way, the Air Force F-94 Night Fighter speeds to intercept the stranger. The Aircraft Observer is the man behind the pilot—the officer who keeps America's planes flying on course and on target. Without him the Air Force couldn't do its job.

What is the Aircraft Observer?

He's a Radar Officer... employing an all seeing eye that penetrates where human sight fails.

He's an Aircraft Performance Engineer Officer... knowing everything there is to know about his plane... keeping it fit for the skies and ready for action.

He's a Navigation Officer... plotting his plane's course... with an entire crew depending on him for a safe flight.

He's a Bombardment Officer... in full control of the plane over the target area... the Air Force Officer who "lowers the boom" on the enemy.

What the Aircraft Observer gets

He earns over $5,000 a year. His silver Aircraft Observer wings give him prestige and distinction, and he wears the bars of an Air Force Lieutenant. They mark him as the eyes, ears, and brains of America's Number One flying team.

What it takes to be an Aircraft Observer

The Aircraft Observer must be sound of limb, keen of mind, and above all, must have the determination to be the best.

To qualify as an Aircraft Observer you must be single, between 19 and 26½ years old, and a high school graduate. However, it will be better for you and the Air Force if you stay in college and graduate before you apply. Then you, too, can be one of the best... as an Aircraft Observer.

IN THE Service

Captain Millard F. Reece spent the weekend in Richmond, having recently returned from a tour of duty in Korea. Capt. Reece was in Korea from July, 1952, to November, 1953, where he served with the 45th Infantry Division. During most of his tour of duty in Korea, Capt. Reece was a Battery Commander with the 158th Field Artillery Battalion, which was in direct support of the 179th Infantry Regiment of the 45th Division. As a result of his service during the war, Capt. Reece was awarded the Bronze Star for Meritorious Service. The citation read in part:

"Capt. Millard F. Reece distinguished himself by meritorious service in connection with military operations against an armed enemy in Korea. Serving as battalion S2 and later as commanding officer of a firing battery, Capt. Reece won the respect of his men and developed his organization into a smoothly functioning unit. His vigorous and competent approach to all difficulties enabled him to cope with seemingly insurmountable obstacles, and assured his unit of dependable service in any crisis. His excellent contributions materially aided his battalion in accomplishing its assigned mission. Capt. Reece's untiring efforts reflect distinct credit upon himself and the military service."

Capt. Reece was a member of the graduating class of 1950, and received his commission as First Lieutenant, Artillery, in the Army of the United States on October 20, 1950. He was previously a member of the armed forces in World War II, serving as a member of the 547th and the 183rd Engineers in France, Germany, and Czechoslovakia.

Capt. Reece's next tour of duty will be with the 198th Field Artillery Battalion at Ft. Benning, Georgia.

Faculty Facts

Mr. Ferrell, head of the department of education, and Mr. Engle, professor of education, spent Wednesday and Thursday, January 20 and 21, in Bell County visiting and evaluating several of the county schools. Mr. Ferrell's class in supervision accompanied him and spent Wednesday in the visitation program.

Recently published in an official report of the Miami Beach Conference of the National Education Association, The Certification of Teachers, was an article on teacher certification and the professionalization of teaching by Mr. Jaggars, professor of education.

Mr. Jaggars, along with Dean Thomas R. Miller of State University Teachers' College, Oswego, N. Y., and Robert H. Morrison, Assistant Commissioner for Higher Education in New Jersey, was selected to write reports of the meeting of more than 500 outstanding educators held June 24-27, 1953 in Miami Beach, Fla.

Mr. Jaggars' report which covered one third of the conference included discussions on the scope and meaning of certification and the purpose of certification based on balanced preparation.

According to the article, "Certification should bring to the schools throughout America those qualified teachers who are able to work effectively with their colleagues, with the children entrusted to their care, and with the parents of these children in developing qualities of living which meet the ideals of democracy."

Dean Moore was in Louisville January 23 for a meeting for the Advisory Committee to Council on Public and Higher Education. He

Members of World Affairs Hear Topics Discussed

By CHARLES FAIR

Two interesting speakers, Dr. R. E. Jaggars, professor of education, and W. E. Hicks, who was a member of the social science department, substituting this past is chairman of this committee, which prepares the curriculum for teacher education programs in the state.

Mr. Jaggars, instructor in the education department, was also attending this meeting in Louisville with Dean Moore to serve on a subcommittee which studies compensation and graduate programs semester for Virgil Burns, associate professor of history and government, recently spoke to the World Affairs Club on topics of current interest.

Dr. Jaggars speaking on the topic, "What's Wrong at the Peace Conference Table?" presented the two conflicting philosophies met at the peace conference table. The conflicts are those who believe in the communistic way of life and those who believe in the democratic way of life. In order to meet this challenge, Dr. Jaggars believes that it is necessary for the Americans to attempt to understand the opposing way of thinking so that Americans will be able to provide answers to arguments that they present.

The speaker concluded with his opinion that perhaps one of the best ways to combat the spread of communism is to know something about it, because, he added, you can't fight something of which you know nothing about.

"France"

"France" was the title of Mr. Hicks' talk. Mr. Hicks believes that the reason France opposes NATO is that she has been run over several times in wars with Germany but the country has never had to fight a war with Russia. Mr. Hicks also presented the "pros and cons" concerning the position of the United States as to whether the U. S. should stay in Europe and hope that through diplomatic channels the unsettled problems can be met or whether the U. S. should get out of Europe and permit the communists to take over.
