Game, concert highlight action weekend

"A Century of Memories 1874-1974" has already begun as students, alumni, and friends prepare for the annual festivities which will be highlighted this year with an Eastern-Western confrontation.

This theme will be followed by the Homecoming Parade starting at 10 a.m. Saturday. More than 60 units, including the ECU Marching Maroons and seven other bands, 18 floats, antique cars, and the fifteen queen finalists in convertibles.

The grand marshal for this year's parade will be Ralph W. Whalin, professor of industrial education.

Whalin, who has been on the Eastern faculty for 36 years, will be a leader of the march, along with a city and county police escort and the ECU Veterans Club Color Guard.

This year's grand marshal was chairman of the Department of Industrial Education for 30 years and has been effective in the growth of that field of study at Eastern from a department with two faculty members to one with 24.

Whalin was the first faculty member of the ECU Board of Regents.

Other units in the parade, interspersed with convertibles carrying Homecoming Queen candidates and floats decorated by various campus organizations, will include, in this order of march:

Convertible carrying Lee Thomas Mills, Frankfort, president of the ECU Alumni Association; the ECU Marching Maroons, 160-member band; the Little Colonels Drill Team; the ECU Cheerleaders; the Shriners Band and other groups; the Y Indian Guides; Madison High School Band; the Pershing Rifles; the Estill County High School Band; the Dune Buggies; The Danville

High School Band; the Valiantes; the Model High School Band, Richmond; Triple I; ROTC Sponsors; Berea High School Band, and the Madison Central High School Band.

Homecoming reunion luncheons will be held by Eastern cheerleaders from 1960 to the present and by the 1963 and 1968 classes. All three luncheons are scheduled for the Powell Building at 11:30 a.m.

The first official event of the weekend will be the Homecoming Dance, featuring the Livingston Road, on Friday evening from 9-1 in the Keen Johnson Building. The fifteen queen finalists will be presented at a 10 p.m. intermission. CWENS has announced that the theme for this year's dance is a "Happy Birthday Party for ECU."

Registration of visiting alumni will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Keen Johnson Building. In addition to the planned reunion luncheons, dinner will be available in the Powell Cafeteria Saturday evening from 5:30 to 7:30.

This year for the first time, the alumni golf tournament will be held at the Arlington Golf Course beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Pre-game ceremonies are scheduled for 1:30 p.m. with Miss Teresa Wilson, the 1972 Homecoming Queen, returning to help crown her successor. Taking part in the crowning will be Steve Slade, Student Association president, Mr. Tom Mills, Alumni Association President, and Dr. Robert R. Martin who will crown the new queen.

Then, the 2 p.m. Clash will feature the powerful Hilltoppers and the young Colonels in the annual grudge battle. The challenge this year is enhanced by Coach Roy Kidd's evaluation, "Western just may be the best football team in Kentucky."

To date, no OVC school has scored against the men from Bowling Green.

"The Golden Age of Rock" will close the Centennial Homecoming as several groups from the 50's will appear in Alumni Coliseum at 8 p.m. Featured on the program will be Jay and the Americans, the Coasters, the Dovells, Danny and the Juniors, Taxi, the Five Satins, and Bobby Lewis.

Tickets are still available for the Friday night dance, the Saturday game, and the Saturday night concert.

As the fires rage, a lone fireman on the ladder sprays the buildings. The scene became a familiar one last Sunday as Richmond suffered one of the worst fires in its history. Five buildings were damaged and will have to be torn down.

Students and citizens alike helped the firemen in efforts to halt the blaze. A lot of student help came from the fraternities which have their houses on Main Street.

Democratic senator

Henry Jackson speaks tonight

U.S. Senator Henry M. Jackson, Washington will speak in Hiram Brock Auditorium Thursday (Oct. 18) at 7:30 p.m. Senator Jackson appears through the Garvice Kincaid Lecture Series. Mr. Kincaid, a Lexington financier, has sponsored an annual lecture at ECU since 1965.

Jackson, a co-funder for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972, is often mentioned by political commentators as a presidential possibility in 1976.

He served six terms in the U.S. House of Representatives and was first elected to the Senate in 1952. He is chairman of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and a member of two other major committees.

As chairman of the Jackson Subcommittee on Operations Committee, he has led inquiries into the role of the National Security Council, government planning and budgeting, relations between the Departments of State and Defense, and NATO.

He also is chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee appointed to monitor the strategic arms limitations talks between the U.S. and Russia.

His is the author of conservation legislation, including the National Environmental Policy Act, the Youth Conservation Corps Act, and a measure available for local recreation purposes.

His National Land Use Policy Act, introduced in 1970, would help state and local governments improve land use planning for environmental, recreation, and industrial purposes.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

Homecoming offers chance for grads to recall

Homecoming's here again and perhaps some students are wondering what it's really all about. Usually there's the traditional Homecoming game--this year against Western--the class reunions, the concert, dance and parties that go on throughout the weekend, all these are a part of the celebration.

Perhaps that celebration means a little more to the alumni who return to the campus than to those who are presently here at Eastern. It gives them a chance to see what has changed around campus, and to see old friends that they haven't seen since they graduated and went separate ways.

It also gives the alumni a chance to be a student again, in some ways, because they go to the football game and cheer the team on, sometimes more enthusiastically than the students themselves. Some of them visit their old dorm rooms and recall the good times they had there with roommates and friends. Others return to favorite places from their college days--to members of athletic teams, it may be the training rooms or locker rooms, to club members a favorite meeting place.

But, many of the alumni will find things changed from the way they were when they attended Eastern. Many new buildings have gone up and the Jane Campbell Building is currently being constructed. The Powell Building is a new sight to many returnees and the Fitzpatrick Building is undergoing a facelifting so it will be different also.

No longer is the grill a dingy little place located in the basement of the Keen Johnson Building across from an even dingier bookstore. It now occupies the lower floor of the Student Center along with a bowling alley, barber shop and dry cleaners. The bookstore also has a new place to call its own as it takes over the entire lower half of the Johnson Building.

The Class of 1963 will indeed find many things changed if they have not been on campus since they graduated. The Class of 1968 will not feel so out of place perhaps on campus since they saw many changes while they were attending college classes, but can you imagine the feeling the cheerleaders when they see how much cheerleading and things in general have changed since they took the field or floor before a game. New uniforms, students and yells have all come into being since the early days of cheerleaders

Homecoming is the weekend and for many students it will be only another game, a concert to go to and a dance to attend. But for the alumni, it will be a chance to recall good times and see old friends. Perhaps Eastern students should look at it this way when they see the alumni on campus; someday we, too, will be alumni and come back for a look at our past. The Homecoming weekend will be made as nice for us as it is being made for the present alumni. We also hope that Eastern beats Western Saturday.

Progress commends students' voluntary help

Last Sunday, Richmond suffered what some people are calling the worst fire in the city's history, and it may have well been.

The fire on Main Street gutted five buildings before it was finally brought under control by the firemen from Richmond, Madison County, Lexington, Winchester, Waco Berea and Blue Grass Activity fire units.

About six million gallons of water was poured on the buildings, causing some water damage to buildings that were not burnt.

While all of this was going on, Eastern students were right in the thick of things--two ways.

First the Progress would like to commend the Eastern students who helped to bring the fire under control. Their aid was probably invaluable to the firemen in their efforts to contain the blaze in the area before it spread to the other buildings on the block. Some of the students were voluntary members of the Madison County Fire Department, others were just there to help out when they were needed.

Eastern students have a tradition behind them of helping when they are needed. A few years ago, a flood occurred in Eastern Kentucky. Eastern students loaded many trucks with clothing and food for the people of that area and took them there in an effort to help those less fortunate.

One of the fraternities; on campus is now selling first aid kits to help a fraternity brother who has been injured in a freak accident.

So, you see, many people say that students only cause trouble and never do anything good. But, apparently they weren't at the fire Sunday, or they didn't hear about that flood or they haven't been approached to buy a first aid kit. These are things that students are doing to help others and they are to be highly recommended for doing so.

However, there are students who do cause trouble. For example, the students who called in a false alarm to the fire department Sunday while the fire was still blazing. These students caused a useless run to the campus, when those firemen were desperately needed downtown. These are the students who make the rest of us look bad, and who are publicized, not the ones who help out when they are needed.

It appears that these people are not old enough to be the college students that they are, and should they be caught, be severely reprimanded or punished to the extent of the law.

And then one night it happened; a fire broke out in the downtown metropolis of Richmond.

It started when a small blaze went out of control. Two minutes later an entire poolroom was engulfed in flames.

"Hello?" a fireman answered the phone in the firehouse.

"Help! Help! There's a fire in the poolroom!"

"A what?"

"A fire?"

"So what am I supposed to do?"

"That's your problem!"

"Hello?" the mayor answered his phone.

"Uh, I don't want to disturb you, sir," the fireman said. "But someone just called and said there was a fire. What am I supposed to do?"

"Don't you know?" the mayor exploded. "You took a correspondence course in Fire Fighting and you don't know what to do?"

"I flunked the course."

"This is a job for SuperBob!"

"Yes Commissioner," said meek, mild Rob Mar-ton, who in reality was SuperBob. They were speaking on the Hot-line to SuperBob's headquarters on the Eastern campus.

"There's a fire downtown," the mayor said. "We need you to help put it out!"

"Aw, I don't want to go downtown tonight. The Steak-Inn is closed due to a fire."

"That's what I'm talking about!"

"Well, alright," said the caped crusader who always fought for liberty, justice, and an extra helping of Mom's apple pie.

"Up, Up, and Getoutahere!" At that, Super Bob leaped through his window and, forgetting to open it first, ended up in Pattie A. Clay for stitches.

Later, in downtown Richmond:

"Look! It's a bird!"

"If it is, then it's the biggest bird I've ever seen."

"It's a plane!"

"More like a blimn."

"It's...it's..."

"It's me...SuperBob!"

"SuperBob," a fireman asked when the mighty hero landed. "How are you going to outwit this fiendish fire?"

"I'm not certain yet. It has already destroyed three buildings. Why isn't any fire equipment here?"

The Readers' View

Students pull prank

Dear Editor,
This past Sunday, Richmond saw one of the worst fires in its history. Three buildings were completely destroyed and the damage may go over one million dollars. Elements from eight fire departments fought to contain the blaze which broke out at 1:15 p.m. Shortly before 2:00 the Madison County Fire Department, which was preparing to aid in the large Richmond fire, was called to Eastern's campus on a false alarm. With all the chaos downtown, someone thought they'd add to it with such a prank.

Consequently, the county fire department was delayed in its efforts to help contain one of Richmond's worst fires. A false alarm be it to a fire department, ambulance, or police department, cause needed equipment to be unavailable in time of real emergency. Let's support these public servants, not hinder their efforts.

Homecoming unorganized

Dear Editor
It has been brought to the attention of many organizations on campus, including the Women's Inter-dorm, that the Student Activities office could have been more efficient in organizing Homecoming. The notice of deadlines for queen candidates and decorations was only given one week ahead of time. It takes the dorms more than one week to get a queen candidate elected and we feel at least two weeks notice should have been given to organizations. We realize that electing queen candidates is not new. But with the changes every year concerning the date of Homecoming and the difficulty of getting organizations together, a notice sent to the presidents of organizations along with the necessary forms, would cut down on the confusion and make us feel Student Activities is with us.
