EASTERN WILL PLAY BASEBALL

After several weeks of indecision Coach Charles "Turkey" Hughes has decided that Eastern will field a baseball team this year. Practice is slated to get underway April 1, with some fifteen aspirants expected to bid for positions.

Coach Hughes has been writing letters during the past week to a number of colleges and service groups in an attempt to line up some opponents for the Maroon nine. Prospects are University of Louisville, Kentucky, Berea, and several army camps.

The baseball diamond has been in rather sad shape, but is being worked on this week and should soon be in first rate condition. All Eastern students who are interested should see Coach Hughes for further information concerning baseball.

Two other spring sports are also claiming the attention of Easterners. Golf and tennis teams are being organized and games are being sought with Berea, Louisville, Kentucky, Western and any other college that can offer competition. Jim Wade and Dick Moberly will make up the two-man golf team that will represent Eastern. Wade has had considerable experience in tournament competition, and Moberly is one of the top linksmen in the Richmond area.

A tennis team is being organized also. It is hoped that Eastern will be able to produce a regular four-man tennis team, but it is certain that a two-man squad will be ready for action as soon as matches can be arranged. Harry Doepke, who was a ranking performer in the Cincinnati area, and Jim Wade appear as a capable two-man team, but it is hoped that another pair of racquet wielders will step forth to fill out the squad.

Sgt. Wm. Erickson Killed In Action

S/Sgt. William Markham Erickson, Jr., husband of Mrs. Mary Ann Collins Erickson (38) of Richmond, was killed in action on March 1 in Germany during the drive toward the Rhine. Sgt. Erickson was with the 9th Armored Division of the First Army and had been overseas since August, 1944. He was wounded December 16 in Luxembourg and had returned to duty only four days before he was killed.

Sgt. Erickson, 34 years old, graduated from the University of Missouri, where he was a Phi Beta Kappa. He entered the service in February, 1941. His home was in Independence, Mo. He is survived by his parents and one brother, Lt. (jg) Richard Erickson.

Mrs. Erickson has been at her home on the Union Road, Richmond, since her husband left for overseas duty. She received the Purple Heart last week which was awarded Sgt. Erickson for the wound received in December.

For the first time since the commencement of the war, the enrollment at Eastern took a definite upward sweep. The enrollment for the spring quarter stands now at 415.

For quite some time the number enrolled has not decreased, but it has been at a standstill. This increase of approximately one hundred students marks the beginning of what is hoped will be the rebuilding of the student body to its former size.

The college will have an even larger enrollment when the new term begins on April 25.

Win Three Out of Four Games

PEPPERDINE WINS

Eastern's highly potent 1944-45 basketball team crowned an already royal season last week when they journeyed to Kansas City to take third place in the National Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament held annually in that city.

The Maroons won three out of four games in the classy competition at Kansas City, winning the third place playoff from Southern Illinois after falling before the height of Pepperdine of Los Angeles in the semi-final round. In their first attempt the Easterners rolled over Simpson College of Iowa 64 to 52. Central College of Missouri, an undefeated V-12 unit, gave the locals a real battle before bowing out 50 to 48 in an overtime pulse-quickener. Pepperdine, an aggregation of skyscrapers simply had too much height for the Kentuckians to cope with and won 58 to 37. Eastern came back to grab the third spot though, downing Southern Illinois 56 to 49. The tourney was won by Loyola of New Orleans who pushed over the fatigued Pepperdine team in the final round.

Fred Lewis, Eastern's great scoring star, was named captain of the National Intercollegiate All-American team and was voted the most outstanding individual player in the tournament. Lewis poured 99 points through the hoops of Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium for a new tourney record. Most observers regarded the Eastern flash as the finest offensive player to perform in the meet's history.

The Eastern team as a whole was commended on several occasions by the Kansas City press for its polish and smoothly drilled appearance on the floor. The Maroons were rated by many as the team to beat, and judging from the crowd's applause Eastern was the most popular team in the tournament. This was perhaps because of the orthodox brand of ball unrelayed by the Eastern quint in contrast with the rather haphazard style of most of the Western teams.

Bill Miller, rugged Eastern center, barely missed the All-Four-nation team. His brilliant defensive play was not unnoticed by the Kansas City railbirds. Cecil Shryock, Ray Smith and Dick Moberly all pooled their efforts to make the Maroon's tournament activity so successful. The reserves, George Maines, Jim Argentine, Jim Wade and Doyle Lovitt also did their share for the Eastern wins.

The Maroons left Richmond for Kansas City on Saturday, March 15, arriving on the tourney scene Sunday night after being delayed eight hours by flood waters in Cincinnati. The team spent the entire week in Kansas City, not heading back to Kentucky until Sunday, March 25.

Pulling into Richmond on Monday morning the team was met at the station by a large number of students and faculty members whose enthusiastic cheers made the Maroon's homecoming a real experience.

All the squad received silver basketballs with inscriptions signifying that the team had won third place. Lewis was awarded a gold Bulova watch for making All-America and a gold medal for being the tourney's "Most Valuable." All told it was a most successful trip and a fitting climax to a long and brilliant basketball campaign. Eastern finished the season with 20 wins against but five losses, and Fred Lewis's 568 points rate him as one of the nation's top scorers.

SUTTON BACK IN STATES

WAR!!!

By JOE TODD

When the war is over, the countries that have been thoroughly crushed by the brutal methods of the AXIS will look to what they consider the most beneficial form of government for salvation.

One such country is Greece. Centuries ago, Greece was the greatest country in the world; today, she is a minor country. In 46 B. C., Greece's importance was taken by Rome, and later she became a part of the Byzantine Empire. Finally, in 1456, Greece was conquered by the Ottoman Turks, from whom she gained independence in 1829. She has been one of the greatest and one of the meekest of nations.

When the British pulled their latest faux pas in Greece, ELAS was aided by Russia. Because of the fact that Russia helped her, Greece might decide that communism isn't so bad after all. She might even decide to adopt it. Britain did such a rotten job there, Greece will no longer trust her. This will be an unfortunate occurrence for the British, who have had much influence there in the past. Russia will, undoubtedly, aid Greece in recovering from the virulent effects of German occupation. Russia might even try to annex Greece.

If Russia does move in this manner, it will simply be one of many steps for her supremacy; in Jugoslavia the situation is the same. We, as constituents of a democracy have several reasons for fearing such gains by a radical government, which Russia is. We must not let any country become so powerful, for despite the fact that Russia is now our ally, she was definitely not one at the beginning of the war, and just as she turned against Germany, she might turn on us. There is no reason in the world why we should trust the Russians more than we trust the Italians; yet this is the case. The simple fact that we helped them when they needed help would not restrain them in the least, if they should decide to attack us.

We should be very careful and suspicious of any nation that tries to gain too much territory at the peace tables. Great Britain will bear watching, for she will make attempts to increase her possessions as long as she doesn't control the whole world. We must strive, not to be a powerful nation, but to be the most powerful nation.

LINE-CUTTING . . .

At the beginning of almost every quarter it is necessary to write an editorial on the same subject—line cutting in the cafeteria. We wish this were not necessary, but it seems that this quarter has proved no exception to the usual.

We realize that you may be exceedingly hungry and you may have a one o'clock class, but probably everybody in front of you is starving and has a class at one. It's just a matter of common courtesy.

For the benefit of anyone who does not know what line cutting is and does not know that it should not be done, we are explaining just what line cutting is. It is a dire disease that breaks out at intervals, usually in the spring and is very communicable. There are two parties involved, the actors and the recipients. The actors get in the line early. When they have about reached the last flight of stairs to the cafeteria, the recipients rush up from the rec room, and the actors call out, "Oh, come on up, Mary and Suzie. I've saved a place for you." The recipients drop into line. This action serves to infuriate the poor famishing students just behind, who either meekly say nothing or vow that they will cut line tomorrow. This line cutting involves only one person, the actor. He walks boldly past the whole line until he reaches the top, or near top, where he steps into line and gets through his meal long before the many people who got in line before he did.

There may be a number of cures for this dread disease, but the best that we have been able to find is that used by the Army. When a fellow cuts line, the other men immediately take him either peacefully or forcefully to the very bottom of the line. If he is caught a second time—there are always plenty of fish ponds handy.

A group of medics transported an entire portable hospital by hand. The last day of march was 14 hours long. Patrols the following day met enemy fire, then the Jap tanks moved in, hiding in the heavy brush to mow the men down.

One tank couldn't be located. So Capt. Sergeant, a former teacher in Harlan county schools, deliberately exposed himself to draw fire. The tank eventually was knocked out.

Capt. Sergeant was a junior at Eastern the summer of 1939 before entering the service. He has been with the 38th Division since enlisting.

MAROONED
WITH BOB RYLE

The Four Hundred
Eastern can now be classed among the elite. She too has her four hundred. One man has said that 400 was third-thirds nothing; we hope this isn't true of our enrollment. This quarter brought many new faces to enter into the study of education with its many fuses.

On the Spot
We have noticed something in the paper that should cause the health department to sit up and take notice. It concerns one of our most contagious diseases. Our instructors tell us it's easy to contract this disease, but I have been following Dick Tracy quite steadily and he has been trying his darndest for weeks, without success, to catch "Measles."

In Box 416
Every once in a while my post office box manages to be the recipient of communiques from former students. Whenever these are visible above the mass of dust and dirt in the box (I always keep some dirt in there you know, it gives me a good sense of humor), I collect them and take them out. Last week's excavation found a letter from—Roy Gilligan, my former collab on this column, recuperating in England from an attack of yellow jaundice. Look for his new book, a take-off on Forever Amber entitled Temporarily Yellow. . . Paul Brandes, former editor of the Progress, enclosing a picture. He is holding something that might be a bottle of wine, a bowling pin, or a gourd from southern Albania. . . Wally Smith—Regardless of what you think, Wally, I did not twist the editor's arm or gag Mr. Keene to get back on the staff. . . Jim Crowe—Yes Jane Acree is as pretty as ever.

Elegy, Written in the Rec Room
The whistle blows to tell of starting classes,
The lowly students wind slowly
by the ravine,
'Tis one o'clock and all lads and lasses
Should be included in the scene.

But some will not be there this hour
It has come around too soon
They had a class until twelve o'clock
And have been standing in line since noon.

Pendantic Proverbs
1. Assiduously refrain from taking census of the expected progeny of the barnyard fowl before it emerges from its ensheathing calcareous excretion.

2. It is the final bit of dried grass that, when affixed to the burden previously acquired, induces a rupture of the dorsal portion of the ship of the desert.

3. One being killed by suffocation through immersion in a solution hydrogen and oxygen has a natural tendency to lay hold of desiccated culm.

4. The number of craniums next greater than one are superior to a single unit.

5. A carnivorous mammal of the family canidae is the genus homo's most loyal compeer.

OFF THE BACKBOARD

by JIM WADE

Eastern's Maroons leaned back this week and exhaled the sign of satisfaction that is the reward of those who are proud of a job well done. The job involved was the past basketball campaign conducted by Eastern, the satisfying aspect of which was the enviable 20 and 5 record fashioned by the Maroons. As all of you should by now know, the bearers of the maroon and white banner crowned their activities by grabbing third place in the National Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament, a feat that would in itself make the cage season a triumphant one.

Finishing in a tie for third place in the KIAC, the Eastern five was able to defeat Western, Murray, Morehead all in the same year, something no local team has ever done before.

It was a long stretch of basketball. The team started informal practice way back in October. That adds up to close to six months, which is a lot of basketball any way you look at it. And yet the months have rolled by with amazing swiftness. It took a lot of hard work to fashion the smooth machine that you saw in action on those snow-cloaked Wednesday and Saturday winter nights, a lot of work and determination to win. Everyone pitched in to do his share and the glowing record of the quintet attests to how well the job was done.

We like to glance back down the long corridors of memory and recapture some of the moments that made the season so unforgettable. . . . The first week of school when all the fellows were strange to each other, each secretly wondering if he had any business here. . . . the first days of practice . . . the nervous apprehension that gripped us all the night of the Wilmington game that opened the season . . . the trip to Tennessee in the bleak bitterness of December. . . . L.M.U. and their fabulous field house . . . the friendly sailors at Carson Newman . . . the not so friendly ones at Milligan . . . and that game was our first real test . . . we trailed 23 to 7 midway in the first half and then Fred started wearing out the nets. . . . We went on to win that one and didn't break the string until we wandered up to Louisville. . . . That night will not soon be forgotten. The Navy boys were red hot and long before the half we knew we were licked and nothing could save us. The Louisville fray was number thirteen on our list and it was definitely not a lucky number. . . . The team bounced back though and started winning all over again. . . . We recall the long drive down to Murray and Western in the Green Dragon . . . the desperate last half drive that almost brought the Thoroughbreds up even with us in the last seconds of play. . . . Our sigh of relief when Thornberry missed that lay-up that meant victory or defeat. . . . The Western game. . . . Miller knocking gangling Deacon Jones all over the floor while Fred popped away at the basket. . . . Ed Diddle's famous towel soaring high in the air, symbol of the Western mentor's anguish. . . .

And we remember other games . . . uphill battle at Berea for narrow victory. . . . smothering hapless Arkansas State . . . losing heart-breaking'y to Morehead after driving eight points ahead . . . you can't always win. . . .

The trip to Kansas City was the high mark . . . the ride over the flood waters around Cincinnati. . . . Chicken dinner at Mills, and a red hot Burlesque show to pass the lay-over time . . . the swang elegance of the Netherland Plaza. . . . The roundabout trip to St. Louis, and the snug luxury of a Pullman berth . . . the Colorado Eagle which took us on to Kansas City. . . . It only hit the rails twice. . . . The Robt. E. Lee Hotel (now well known in this section). . . . Red and Mabel, and an elevator operator with a cute grin. . . . She thought we were part of a circus. . . . The tournament itself. . . . Simpson College and Central of Missouri. We took them but Pepperdine had our number. . . . Illinois Southern on Saturday night. . . . We only won by seven points but the game was ours all the way. . . . The support we got from the fans in K. C. . . . They were with us all the way, groaning when one of Fred's long ones jumped out of the hoop. . . . They loved that guy out there. . . . The quiet goodbyes to Shryock and Smith right after the Illinois game. . . . Cecil and Ray, a couple of regular fellows that we all miss. . . . They deserve the best of luck. . . .

We could mumble on like this forever when we get wound up, but you are probably getting bored. . . .

Seems as though we might get up a baseball team around here. . . . The only difficulty is finding someone to play. . . . There are at least a dozen better than fair ball players on the campus. . . . Coach Turkey Hughes has about decided to have a formal team. . . . We think it's a good idea. . . . Mr. Keith was out the other day showing some of us how the game should be played. . . . We expect he used to play surprisingly nearly as good a game as he talks in class. . . .
