Construction Work Begun

The topography of the field east of the Village has been completely changed by a multitude of workmen using giant machines to prepare the sites for the new housing for married students. Some of the floors of these buildings will be poured before this issue of the Progress goes to press. Also, there is a probability that actual construction of the houses will be begun before May 15.

The tennis courts east of the Union Building have been torn up in preparation for the construction of the women's dormitory on this site. The new dormitory will house 400 women.

Grading has been completed on the site for the new dormitory for men, and a road from O'Donnell Hall to Lancaster Avenue has been graded. It will be hard surfaced within a short time.

SHAW AND MORRISON REIGN UNDER THE SEA

The highlight of the Junior-Senior Prom took place at eleven o'clock when Miss Helen Shaw and Mr. Bobby Morrison were crowned queen and king. Their attendants were Mary Kappas and Susan Hammer, seniors, and Paul Burke and Mac Blythe, seniors; Kay Bowman and Sandy Wilhoite, juniors, and Fred Crump and Don Axsom, juniors. The court was selected by the student body vote.

The Under the Sea theme was carried out at the Prom by various underwater creatures of cardboard and paper mache such as fish, clams and starfish. A lovely mural which was done by the Art class depicted the deep sea effect. The good music provided by the Four Sounds enhanced the evening's mood of gaiety.

Following the dance, a breakfast was held in the cafeteria until 2:00 a. m.

CONLEY CROWNED QUEEN

On April 30, in Sullivan Hall, Jo Ann Conley of Paintsville, was crowned Miss Sullivan Hall at the White Rose Formal. This is quite an honor as Miss Sullivan Hall is elected by the girls in the dorm. Besides being pretty, Jo Ann has other talents which include being an Eastern majorette, an active member of the House Council and the Y. W. C. A.

Her two attendants were Miss Betty Dean Weissinger of Danville, and Miss Linda Wood of Austin. Congratulations to all three!

Verner Lee Brown, whose house was destroyed by fire in Vets Village, expresses deep appreciation of the college, the students, the families of the Village, merchants and families of Richmond, and all others who were so nice to help his family to set up housekeeping again.

Axsom Elected President

Don Axsom, junior commerce major from Columbus, Indiana, was elected president of the Student Council in a three-day election. Winning over rival candidate, Tony Harris, Don received a sizeable endorsement from the student body.

Filling out the rest of the slate, Larry Wetenkamp defeated Larry McKinney for vice-president. Larry is a junior from Cincinnati, Ohio.

Sandy Wilhoite, junior from Erlanger, Kentucky, majoring in commerce, was unopposed for the office of secretary and was re-elected.

Jim Showalter, sophomore physics, math major, from Louisville, was elected treasurer over Melvin Young.

Voting this year was conducted on a different basis from the past. Students voted in their dormitories and off-campus students voted in the grill at stated hours. Voting this year with what appears to be a good system was less than last year.

GRANT RECEIVED

A grant has been received by Eastern Kentucky State College from the National Science Foundation for a Science Institute to be held on the campus during the year, 1960-61. The purpose of the Institute will be to improve the background of high school teachers in science and mathematics and to offer new and modern concepts for high school courses in these fields.

Specially designed courses will be offered on Saturdays and the commuting teachers who enroll will have expenses paid during the year. The science faculty at Eastern will teach the courses and the Institute will be directed by Dr. H. H. LaFuze, head of the Department of Biology at Eastern.

Progress Co-Editors Elected

The Co-Editors of the Eastern Progress have been elected by the student body for the year of 1960-61.

Charlie Klonne, 21-year-old social science major from Covington, Kentucky, was elected, along with Larry Stanley, a 20-year-old history major from Pikeville, Kentucky. Both of these boys are kept busy with their various school activities but will begin training now with the present co-editors, Jean Patterson and Sandy Wilhoite. These boys have expressed the desire to make the Eastern Progress a better paper and hope that anyone who is interested in writing for the paper will contact them.

23RD ANNUAL MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAM HELD AT EASTERN

Morris Hall, a senior from Louisville, spoke at the 23rd annual Mother's Day program to be presented at Eastern Kentucky State College on Sunday, May 8th. The service was held in Walnut Hall in the Keen Johnson Student Union Building, beginning at 2:30 p. m., EST.

Parents of Eastern's student body were invited to the campus for this occasion.

Hall, a history and English major who plans to enroll in the School of Theology at the Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville in September, used as his subject, "Our Our Mothers, Their Love and Understanding." A 1956 graduate of Shawnee High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Hall, 1811 Burwell Street, Louisville. While a student at Eastern, he has occupied the pulpit on occasions at the First Baptist Church in Richmond. Among other activities, he is an active member of the Baptist Student Union, the band, and the concert orchestra.

Presiding at the ceremonies was Dolores Niblack, Alexandria. Scripture reading was by Patsy Pace, Winchester, and the invocation and benediction by John Anderson, Columbus, Ohio, and Jimmy Kinser, Harlan.

Special music was furnished by the Eastern choir, under the direction of James E. Van Peursem, director of music. The prelude and postlude were presented by Mary Lynn Brentlinger, Jeffersonton, and vocal soloists were Marporie Dees, Brodhead, and Edward Lyons, Richmond, with Joyce Ockerman, Bloomfield, accompanying at the piano.

Dr. W. F. O'Donnell, Eastern president, who retires after this school year, offered greetings from the faculty.

The memorable event is sponsored annually by the Social Committee, composed of students and faculty members, with Mrs. Emma Y. Case, dean of women, serving as chairman.

Following the Mother's Day program there was an informal social hour in Burnam Hall, dormitory for women.

Biology Faculty Member To Participate In NSF Research

Mr. Robert S. Larence, assistant professor of Bacteriology, has been awarded a National Science Foundation Research Grant to participate in the NSF research program at Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, this summer. He will be working on the production of Antibiotics during Sporogenesis.

Mr. Larence is a native of Louisiana where he acquired the B.S. degree in Botany at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, La., and the M.S. degree in Pathology at Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge. While at L.S.U. he did research on vegetable diseases for the United States Dept. of Agriculture.

He plans to attend the meetings of the American Phytopathological Society at Green Lake, Wisconsin, August 28-31, 1960, before returning to Richmond. Mrs. Larence will accompany him. They plan to leave Richmond on or about June 15, 1960, and return to their home on Crescent Hill Drive about September 4, 1960.

RED CROSS DRIVE SUCCESSFUL

In a recent drive on campus for the Red Cross, Cwens collected $111.80, by means of personal donations, a movie night canvass and two late privilege nights. Nancy Campbell was chairman of the drive.

The Kappa Iota Epsilon men assisted Cwens in the drive. To all those who helped in any way, the Cwens wish to express their thanks.

Helen Shaw and Bob Morrison were queen and king of the Prom.

THE EDUCATOR'S TASK

The Eastern college student is an unique individual. He is unique because his birthplace, his parents, his environment, his social heritage, his cultural heritage, his religious heritage, his intellectual capacity, his educational background have been so combined as to create him an individual different from all other individuals. His thoughts, his dreams, his aspirations are all based upon those elements which have been incorporated to make him what he is.

Because of these elements in the life of the individual, he has in many instances been left a legacy of prejudices which are extremely difficult to dispose of. He is prejudiced in favor of certain foods, certain clothes, certain homes, certain churches, certain people. At the same time there are instilled within him basic prejudices against those ideas, principles, and beliefs that are contrary to his own.

The individual can do nothing, or at least very little, to prevent these prejudices from becoming a part of his thinking before he has become aware of them. When, however, he does become aware of them is the crucial point. Everyone is prejudiced and the person who realizes this fact has taken the first step toward a mature attitude concerning his relation to the rest of the world. It is, on the other hand, the individual who refuses to understand the fact that he is prejudiced who insists upon creating a problem. In his estimation, the ideas and attitudes which he holds are the sole truth, and those which are in opposition to his own, are entirely false.

Most Eastern students are preparing to become teachers—educators of the coming generation. It is the responsibility of the teacher to aid the student to a better understanding of himself and to a realization of his relationship to other people. Without this understanding, the coming generation will be no less prejudiced than the present one; with it, we possess the hope for a society in which all individuals have come to hold a mutual respect and understanding for all men regardless of their differences.

SOMETHING OF VALUE

Everyone hopes to obtain at some time in his life something of value—something which can be prized above all else.

The importance we place on an object determines its value. The amount of work we must do to obtain this "something of value" determines to a degree its real worth.

For many, the greatest reward in life comes from owning a big house or car. To others, money plays a vital role in their lives.

To almost every college student, though, that "something of value" is obtained on the day of graduation—a college diploma.

A college diploma represents hard work to some while to others it is just a meaningless piece of paper which proves to the world that graduation from an institution of higher learning has been achieved. Certainly, a diploma is worthless if some learning has not taken place while obtaining it. Far too many of us lazily drift through "snap" classes for four years on the belief that it is not the knowledge and experience behind the diploma but the diploma itself that makes success.

If our diplomas are to be real "something of value", it is up to us to put forth the effort which will make them such.

COUNCIL ROOM

By FRANK PEARCE

MOODS AFTER, MARDERIE

April 29. For a long long time people on this campus have been yelling loud and long for a big name band. Last night the Student Council fulfilled that request. Ralph Marterie and his Marlboro Men made a romping-stomping appearance in person on the stage of Hiram Brock Auditorium.

There aren't enough superlatives to heap on this band. It was a wonderfully marvelous show. Nothing like it has been on this campus for many a moon—longer than anyone here now can remember except faculty with a lot of seniority. A trumpet like Ralph Marterie's just isn't heard around these parts every day.

Ralph Marterie and his Marlboro Men are the number one college favorite band across the nation. They are the number one ballroom attraction. They have made more band record hits than any other. So you see, by bringing Marterie to Eastern's campus the Student Council brought the tops in the field. This was something which would be hard to equal anywhere. A student from the University of Kentucky, noted for having such attractions on its campus, was heard to say that Eastern was making UK look bad by having such an attraction in Richmond.

The Student Council worked hard in promoting this engagement. It was widely publicized. Tickets were made available to every student for the nominal price of one dollar. At that price, you just can't beat a deal like Ralph Marterie. It is doubtful that anyone couldn't afford it, since a majority of Eastern students waste at least as much as the price of admission every week.

There was one sad note last night, and it wasn't blown by Ralph Marterie and the Marlboro Men. It was blown by the students of Eastern Kentucky State College. The attendance at the concert was very very poor. In fact, more people have been in that auditorium for a Tuesday night campus movie (and a punk movie, at that) than attended the Ralph Marterie Concert. Had the Student Council been another group trying to make money on such an engagement, they would have gone in the hole. The Student Council was not trying to make money; they were trying to do something that the students wanted done. The loss incurred will be made up from the Student Council treasury.

So there it is. The Student Council sincerely tried to do something for the campus. Attendance was poor. This might be considered a failure except for one thing—those who did go thoroughly enjoyed the concert. To you, those who did go, the Student Council wishes to express our appreciation and thanks for the complements paid members of the Council after the concert. To you we are grateful.

Anderson who lives in Columbia, is one of 39 science students to go to Oak Ridge between their junior and senior years. He will gain first-hand experience in the career he intends to pursue while working in the Oak Ridge National Laboratory Neutron Physics Division.

BEHIND THE PODIUM

Commencement: Beginning or End

In a few weeks the college careers of a large group of young men, at Eastern and other cultural watering holes, will be ended. Of these, despite the oratory that will inevitably stream from a succession of beefy, sweat-soaked jaws and quivering dewlaps to the effect that youth in general and this graduating class in particular are faced with tremendous challenges and opportunities, and that being abnormally intelligent, daring, imaginative, and strong, they will certainly take advantage of them, the vast majority will be no more intelligent than they were at twelve, no more daring than a three-toed sloth, no more imaginative than a prune, and no more strong than a dish of custard pudding, and will beyond doubt live unimaginative, groping, ordinary, and perhaps ultimately desperate lives. The word "commencement" then, for this group, will be somewhat ironic, a word like "ending," or "finis," being more appropriate. The fact is that most people are waiting eagerly to be devoured by time, to go quickly and efficiently through the expected course of job, marriage, family, advancement, house, grandchildren, death, decent, moderately expensive burial, and to have done with it all. These years will probably be for most the first years of free choice and adult responsibility ever granted in our late-developing society. At the same time this period will represent perhaps the only opportunity for free, practical experimentation with life and with the possibilities of the individual. As such, it will be a pitifully short time before society again asserts its demands. It will be the only time of its kind ever, and the understanding and use of time will have to be learned for it to be taken advantage of.

Time is one of the subjects about which writers most like to be witty. Some clever remarks have been made about it, such as Blake's "Time is the mercy of eternity; without time's swiftness all were eternal torment," or Dylan Thomas' "Time held me golden in the mercy of its means," or Eliot's "Hurry, up, please, it's time," or the Biblical "To everyone there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven; a time to be born, and a time to die, a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted." From these and other statements we gather that time is paradoxical—it is what we cherish, and what we want to get rid of, it is threatening in that with each gift, each tomorrow, each fulfillment, it takes away something permanent, and yet it can not be kept, or saved, and is spent best when it is used most quickly, that is, when "real" time or duration is shortest proportionately to chronological time. Most people think of time as linear, and on its well-marked chart, like markings on a ruler, trace the things they must somehow "get in" before the end of their quantity of grains of sand. For these people eternity is also quantitative, more and more and more time, a queasy prospect before which the mind boggles. For others, however, time is recognized as largely subjective. Those long moments and hours of boredom during which one is grimly aware of the passage of time are certainly not to be marked "plus" in any sort of eternal credit sheet, no matter how many of them we are allotted. Those moments and hours during which time "stops"—during lovemaking, absorption in interesting work, aesthetic experience, mystic trance—time psychologically, are recognized as what is valuable, what is to be sought in life, whatever the chronological duration. Eternity, then, would have to be conceived as something like these, a permanent stoppage of the sensation of the awareness of time. Blake's poem "Eternity," refers to an eternity in life, reached by a moment of perception; the result of the perception being

To see a World in a Grain of sand
And a Heaven in a Wild flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand
And Eternity in an hour.

It would seem then that often the most time is the least, and the least the most, that, as someone once said, he who saves his life shall lose it, and vice-versa; and that the middle-class use of time, the careful hoarding, the attempt to increase it, to use it with life-denying prudence, may be criticized as severely as Alfred Doolittle in Pygmalion by implication criticized the middle-class use of money, when, thanking his benefactor for a small gift, he exclaimed:

* Don't you be afraid that I'll save it and spare it and live idle on it. There won't be a penny of it left by Monday. I'll have to go to work same as if I'd never had it. It won't pauperize me, you bet. Just one good spree for myself and the missus, giving pleasure to ourselves and employment to others, and satisfaction to you to think it's not been thrown away. You couldn't spend it better.

The course that is counselled is not, however, a wild spree, or a round of dissipation, but only a certain amount of caution before involvement in further routinized, directed activity. The upperclasses of England used to make the grand tour, of Europe and the Classical world on graduation. For most of us this is impossible. (Although few of us, perhaps, have any appreciation of the lush beauties that lie right next door, in the fields and valleys and beyond our own Richmond.) But a period of investigation, exploration, freedom is not impossible. If any competent judge thinks highly enough of your talent to recommend a year's suffering or semi-starvation or struggle in cultivation of a gift in music, writing, theatre, sports, or whatever, for God's and my sake, do it. This is the time that will never return, this is the time when you must find out about yourself, this is the time when the hoarding of time will result in its eternal waste in a lifetime of regret. One of my high school teachers, feeling called upon for a word of advice to his departing pimple-faced flock, said, "In a word—dare." It was obvious, looking at him, that he had not dared much. Advice seems always given by those who have not followed it to those who are incapable of following it. But it being the season for sage advice, it can't be avoided; take a trip to Mexico, or California, or New York, and perhaps stay there. Don't be deluded that college life or any school life is any but a small and unrepresentative portion of the world. In the words of good old E. E. Cummings:
Listen: there's a hell of a good universe next door; let's go.

SHOW TALK

By BARRY BRENNEN

On May 2 the gala crowd (if you could call thirty-five people gala) gathered for the opening night performance of the Little Theater Club's latest effort, See How They Run.

See How They Run is a British farce having something to do with the Anglican clergy. All of the action takes place in the impossible living room of the vicarage at Merton-Cum-Middlewick and in the surrounding garden. The play is a comedy of errors of the first rank, and in general the cast did it justice.

Gretchen Wuerdeman, who played Ida, the maid, was really excellent. Her Cockney accent was perfect—not too much, not too little, but just right. Gretchen appeared earlier this year as one of the daughters in House of Bernarda Alba. Ida is an improvement.

Nancy Turner was Miss Skillon, the village busybody and gossip-monger, and was really superb in spots. The unevenness of her performance was solved by keeping her in a closet most of the time. Skillon was the hardest part in the play, and Nancy did as well as anyone could have been expected to do.

Don Cleaver played the vicar all evening as if he were afraid the audience would snicker. But, the vicar's wife, Penelope Toop, was played to perfection by Eastern's best actress, Mary Margaret Lewis. Mary has appeared in all the major productions this year and brought experience and class to the cast of See How They Run. In spite of her excellent job, however, I feel Mary Margaret is better in a dramatic role.

John Boone played Clive, an American friend of Mrs. Toop, with his usual bravado. With hard work John may one day be a great success on Broadway.

Brian Clark's interpretation of the Bishop of Lax was very good, but he could have played it heavier in spots and gotten more laughs from his audience. (I keep saying that.)

Arthur Humphrey does not come into the play until the third act but when he finally arrives to take the Sunday service, he gets a laugh on every line. Ned Lyons played the Reverend Mr. Humphrey and did a splendid job.

The nearest thing to a heavy in the play was the police sergeant played by Chuck Adams. He played the part with an iron hand.

Tony Harris made his first college dramatics performance in this play. He played the Russian spy effectively and convincingly, and I hope we can see more of Tony.

This play was worth seeing; it was clever, sophisticated, and a play which anyone could enjoy. As one woman said as she left, "It was just as cute as it could be," and it was.

(The above comments on the play were written by a Little Theater Club member working backstage on this play. They are not necessarily the views of the column's usual author, Liz Shaw. As a matter of fact, in some cases, they differ drastically.)

On May 18, members of Mr. Gerald Honaker's directing class will present two one-act plays in the Little Theater. The plays, both serious, will be directed by Merlene Swanson and Liz Shaw.

See you at the plays!

Mid State Track Meet At Eastern On Friday

The Mid-State Conference held its first annual track meet at the Eastern State College track on Friday, May 6th. Starting time was 3:30 EST.

Competing in the meet were teams from Bourbon County, Franklin County, Madison Central, Montgomery County and Scott County.

The meet was under the direction of Eastern's track coach, Glenn Gossett.

ONLY THREE MORE TRACK MEETS

Coach Glenn Gossett announced that there will be only three more track meets before the Ohio Valley Conference meet is held at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, on May 20 and 21.

The Maroons will have a triangular meet with Berea and the University of Tennessee at Berea on May 7. It marks the first time that the Maroons have had a meet with the University of Tennessee and should be something to look forward to.

The powerful Tennessee Tech Golden Eagles will host the Maroons on Tuesday the tenth, at Cookeville, Tennessee. Tech has won four and lost two meets this year.

The Maroons will close out the first season under Coach Glenn Gossett at home with the "Thundering Herd" of Marshall College. Little is known about Marshall.

EASTERN THINLIES EDGE GEORGETOWN

Almost like a nightmare was the 66-65 track meet held with Georgetown at Richmond. Leading by 14 points with only three events remaining and winning was really close. Tossing the lead back and forth from one event to the next got our score keeper dizzy. But when Eastern won all three places in the 880 yard run it swung the pendulum toward Eastern. After building a 61-47 lead, with only three events left and needing five points to win, everyone felt certain that the Maroons would successfully avenge an earlier setback at Georgetown.

DALTON SETS MARK

Ernest Dalton set a new school record for the broad jump as Eastern downed Union's track team 86 5-6 to 42 1-6.

Dalton, who also tied for first in the high jump, set a record in the broad jump of 21 feet 11 1/2 inches. Dennis Sprouse won the 100 and 220 yard dashes for the Maroons.

of a double header in Richmond on May 20th. Other conference games remaining include Middle Tennessee and Morehead.

The Maroons are 6-3-2 for the season. After Friday's meeting with East Tennessee, they next host the Kentucky Wildcats in a revenge battle on Tuesday of next week and Middle Tennessee next Saturday.

Eastern .301 103 020—10 12 5
Union .131 001 110—8 15 4

Farman, Morgan (6), Campbell (8), Pigg (8) and Draud; Moffitt, Cooley (9) and Cariton, West (5).

Ernie Dalton set a record in the broad jump.

Johnson, Goedde Homer For ESC
E. Tennessee Here Friday

Shannon Johnson and Bill Goedde came up with home runs at Union College Tuesday as Eastern State College copped the victory, 10-8.

Goedde's circuit clout took place in the third inning with no mates on base.

Johnson hit his homer in the sixth with two men on. Goedde also hit a triple in the eighth with the bases vacant.

The Maroons return to familiar grounds Friday after being on the road for nearly a month as they host East Tennessee's Buccaneers in an important Ohio Valley Conference game at Maroon Field. Freshman pitching ace, Ken Pigg (2-1), will get the nod to open on the hill against the visiting Tennesseans, a team that is yet to post a win over an Eastern nine in eight previous meetings. The Maroons, on their recent tour of Tennessee, nipped the Bucs 6-2, in the second game of a two game stand after the first game had been halted with the score knotted at 6-6 in the 6th inning.

0-1-1 In League Play

A win for Coach "Turkey" Hughes' charges is a must in order to stay in contention for the conference crown. They are 0-1-1 in league play, having tied Western 2-2 in a game played at Bowling Green that was halted after seven innings due to darkness, and lost to Murray, 9-7, at Murray.

Since then, Murray has lost to Western and Morehead, while Western is still unbeaten. Should a tie result between the Maroons and the Hilltoppers, a play-off would be held on a neutral field to decide the conference champion. All four OVC games remaining for the Maroons will be played at Richmond.

Last Saturday's Tennessee Tech contest was washed out after one-half inning of play and the game will be played as the first game

KENNETH PIGG

Eastern's Pitcher, Ken Pigg, Is Off To A Fast Start

Kenneth Pigg, a strapping 6-1, 193 pound freshman from Newport, is off to a fast start in his first year as a college pitcher.

He has appeared in six games, of the 10 played by the defending Ohio Valley Conference co-championship Eastern Maroons thus far, and has made four starts, going the distance in all four contests.

In pitching 41 and one-third innings, he has allowed just 10 runs, only six of which have been earned, giving him a fine 1.30 earned run average, and has allowed 24 base hits while striking out 36 and walking 18 batsmen. His overall record is two wins and one loss, the setback being an error-plagued 4-2 loss to a strong Carson Newman team last week.

Pigg's wins have come against Hillsdale, Michigan, 6-3, and Georgetown, 1-0 last Monday, the latter being a nifty two hitter. Pigg is also credited with a tie, that coming in a game with Western Kentucky that was called after seven innings because of darkness with the score knotted 2-2.

Campbell Rated Highly

Actually, the best earned run average belongs to freshman Earl Campbell, a slender 160 pound Richmond righthander. A converted infielder who saw his first pitching service against Murray, a team he shut out for the last five innings, after the Racers had built up a 9-3 lead in the early going, he has hurled a total of 14 and two-thirds innings, giving up 11 hits, and two runs, only one of which was earned. His earned run average is 0.61 per game, and he has struck out seven batsmen and walked only one in compiling a 1-0 record.

SATCHWELL TRIUMPHS IN VOLLEYBALL

Bill Satchwell's volleyball team toppled the defending champions, the Roundies, in the best two out of three games to win the intramural volleyball championship.

Satchwell's team defeated the Knockouts earlier that same evening to earn the right to meet last year's champions, the Roundies, a group of Eastern's basketball team, by winning 15 to 8 and 15 to 6.

Sparked by Bill Satchwell, Gary Fraley, and John Brown they took the first game 16 to 14. The Roundies fought back and took the second game 15 to 10 mainly on Jack Upchurch's Bruce Springate's play. But in the deciding game, Satchwell's team was not to be denied. After moving out to a 4-0 lead, they had their hands full as the Roundies tied the score at 5 to 5. Once again after an 8 to 5 lead, the basketballers came back again to tie it 9 to 9. Six straight points then quickly ended the game and crowned a new volleyball champion for 1960.

An award of $7 was given to the winners, to spend as they please and an allstar squad was named by the officials, William Ketchum and Alfred Brown. Here is the allstar team: John Gash, Hell Raiser; Bruce Springate, Roundies; Jack Upchurch, Roundies; Bill ley, Satchwells; and Carl Cole, ley, Satchwell's; and Carl Cole, Roundies.

Evelyn Craft, president of Cwens, and Jim Showalter, president of K. I. E., both sophomore honoraries, are honored this week.

PEARCE'S PORTRAITS

By FRANK BEARCE

The shutter snaps on two superior Sophomores. Jim Showalter and Evelyn Craft, the presidents of Kappa Iota Epsilon (KIE) and Cwens, respectively.

Kappa Iota Epsilon is an honorary fraternity for Sophomore men students. Each spring deserving Freshmen are tapped for membership for the coming year on Men's Honor Day. KIE has been very busy this past year. They started off by holding a dance for the incoming Freshmen. Then they addressed the Freshmen Sociology classes on the value of study. During Homecoming they decorated the library and presented flowers to Miss Kentucky at the game. At Christmas they donated to the needy here in Richmond. They are to be the ushers at graduation.

Cwens is KIE's counterpart for women. Under Evelyn's leadership Cwens have been equally busy. The girls sponsored the Freshman Women's Dinner, which was served by the KIE boys. Collectively KIE and Cwens headed the Red Cross drive on the campus. Special recognition should be given members of these two fine organizations for from their ranks come the campus leaders of the years just ahead.

Jim is a quite likable physics and mathematics major from Louisville. After graduate school he hopes to become an industrial mathematician. His activities include Treasurer of the Sophomore Class, Physics Club, Math Club, and Newman Club.

Evelyn Craft is a biology major who hails from Frankfort. She plans to teach, and you just don't see many female biology teachers these days. Active in campus clubs such as Biology Club, B.S.U., Y.W.C.A., and President of the Sophomore Class, Evelyn is often seen scurrying across campus.

So a heft of the headgear to Jim, Evelyn, Kappa Iota Epsilon, and Cwens.

TO A NIGHT VISITOR

You enter my chamber with a certain stealthiness In the depths of the marvelous night. And then, with certitude, you approach me Placing your white feet down firmly on the wine-red carpet. Your body, in the moonlight through the window, Must astonish and bewilder, yet secretly delight, the gods. You move toward me steadily with the deliberate intensity With which a follower of esoteric rites enters a mystic experience. I feel a keen acceleration in my veins. I have not slept nor will I sleep. I receive you.

Are these gold bars worth two more years of study?*

As a college sophomore, you're nearing the mid-point. Halfway through college—halfway through Army ROTC. Now you face a major decision: Are the gold bars of a Second Lieutenant worth two additional years of study in advanced ROTC?

That question is yours to answer now—before you register for your junior year. As you explore the facts, carefully weigh the traditional responsibilities and rewards of serving as an Army officer . . .

1. Traditional responsibilities. To meet the command responsibilities of an Army officer, you apply the leadership principles absorbed during advanced ROTC training. And your executive potential grows as you gather leadership experience. That's why employers often prefer men who served as commissioned officers. These men already have proven their capacity to shoulder executive responsibility.

2. Traditional rewards. In every organization, greater responsibilities mean greater rewards. Thus the traditional responsibilities and prestige of an Army officer are matched by material advantages. For example, if you plan to marry soon after graduation—an officer's salary can be a distinct advantage. A married 2nd Lieutenant earns a minimum of $355.68 per month—plus substantial fringe benefits.

Need more information? Check with the Professor of Military Science and Tactics at your college or university. He'll be glad to discuss your decision with you.

*Last year, 14,436 sophomores answered "yes" to this question—and entered advanced Army ROTC.

The Man On The Street Broadcast

Here's another victim—ah, pass-erby for us to engage in conversation.

Your name, Sir?
Harold Ferdity, Ph. D.
Your occupation?
Intellectual.

Just what is an intellectual, Mr. Ferd?

A man who thinks for himself.

Oh, and what brand of cigarettes do you smoke?

A man who thinks for himself doesn't smoke.

Would you recommend this action for everybody?

Most certainly. Most people don't think for themselves.

Do you find it hard to keep from smoking?

Yes, sometimes I start longing for green places of high filtration, low filter feedback and relief from hacking cigarette cough.

How do you fight your urge?

I drink to excess.

May I ask what brand?

Most certainly, do.

What brand?

I usually prefer 14K, or millions of tiny flavor bubbles and if I am desperate, I drink the choice of Madison County because it's bitter free as well as pasturized.

What prompted you to be a drunkard?

I'm sorry if I confused you. I am intellectual professionally.

Drinking is just my current hobby. I started drinking to forget my worries.

What do you worry about?

I'm deathly afraid that Red China will get in the United Nations.

Why does that worry you so much?

If Red China gets in the U.N., I will have nothing to worry about, and I will have to give up drinking.

And that means?

That I will have to go to the next hobby on my list.

Which is —?

Marriage.

Why does marriage frighten you?

It would break my family tradition.

What's that?

There have been no women in my family for the last three centuries—just intellectuals.

But how?

Shh! You'll wake him up.

Who?

My pet gold fish.

You have a pet gold fish with you?

Why yes! How did you know?

I guessed.

You'll never become an intellectual by guessing. You must plant you feet firmly on a solid foundation. Don't follow every silly whim.

What's wrong with the side walk?

You must stand on the shoulders of giants in order to see—Dixie?

What's that from, Jack and the Beanstalk?

No! Sir Alfred E. Newman said that on the occasion of the publishing of his great prophetic novel: The Sociological Impact of Mechanization on the Offspring of Future Generations.

Is it truly an intellectual book?

The main content is pure tripe.

However, the volume of foot- notes to the work are very enlightening. In them he forecasts the development of the reclinable automobile seats, the meat grinder, brass knuckles, the switch blade knife and the vending machine key.

He sounds like a great prophet, how long ago did he live?

How long ago? He was in fine shape when I saw him yesterday.

He heads a teenage gang on the other side of the tracks.

Well-uh-er, thank you, Mr. Kerdity.

DOCTOR FERDITY, please!

Thank you Dr. Fred, it has been a delight to have you on this program. Here is a free coupon entitling you to a free permanent and a pound of raw hamburger from Hortenses' Beauty Salon.

This has been old H. C. Horace Clogmo your joyful, inept Man on the Street broadcasting today from the Fourth Street Asylum.

We now return you to the studios for the Livestock Report already in Progress.

ANSWER TO SIT DOWNS

(Editors' note: In the last issue of the Progress, there appeared an article concerning the recent wave of sit-in strikes. Due to the controversy aroused by the article and in accordance with journalistic policy, the following article is being run. It is not a statement of editorial policy.)

What is C.O.R.E.?

C.O.R.E. (Congress of Racial Equality) is an organization designed to help integration by non-violent means. The group stresses the non-violent nature of their movement, and all their demonstrations have been conducted in a friendly, quiet manner. C.O.R.E. has been sponsoring the recent sit-in movement throughout the South. These sit-in's are of great importance to all Americans.

The Constitution guarantees to all Americans equal rights. Since 1954 the Negro has been slowly acquiring his rights, especially in the South has the struggle been bitter. These sit-in's are simply an attempt by the Negro to be served in any restaurant. Thus any American who believes in our democracy and its doctrine of equality, must agree, in principle, that the sit-ins have a legal and moral basis. Many Americans are realizing this and have begun aiding C.O.R.E. and the sit-in movement. Witness the large number of sympathy demonstrations on northern campuses. The Episcopal Church has expressed both sympathy and approval of the non-violent nature of the movement. It has only been in certain areas of the country: Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, and Frankfort, Kentucky, that violence has erupted and citizens working with C.O.R.E., especially college students, have been denied their constitutional rights.

Since racial discrimination is practiced in Richmond in restaurants, theaters and housing, it is not unbelievable that sit-in's might occur here. If this should happen, what should you, the college student, do? Each Eastern student must examine for himself the issue and decide whether he wishes to be guided by moral and ethical reasoning or ignorant bigotry.

John Boone, as a soldier on the town, prays for help. In the play, he really needed it, but all turned out well.

THE WANDERER

"Come unto me, and I will give you rest,"
He said, but I rebelled and went my chartless way
Down many neon-lighted thoroughfares,
Refusing to acknowledge, honor, or obey
His call. Yet, heedless of my insolence,
He sought me through the chimes from shining spires
At noon, when, swallowed by the city's teeming lot,
I fought my way, pretending not to hear:
"He came unto His own; His own received Him not."
By dawn and starlight, too, He called my name,
But I resisted still, until, out on the hills
One night, alone, I met Him searching for His sheep—
A lonely, straggling sheep, for centuries astray.
He looked on me, and I could neither speak nor weep,
But only hasten to His side, for, with a pang,
I realized the one lost sheep was I.
