Prom Plans Announced

Next Friday Set As Dance Date

Plans for the annual Junior Senior Prom have been announced the Junior class secretarytreasurer, Barbara McGuire Warf.
Friday, May 13, has been set for the date of the dance. The Maroonlighters, directed by Don Hacker, will furnish music for the evening. Many juniors favored this band because of its popular-club Variety Show. The hours of the dance are from nine to one. A king and queen, chosen from members of the Jnnior class, will reign over the ball. They will be selected at a Junior class meeting. Juniors must attend this meeting to be eligible for election.

This museum was started nearly twenty years ago by Dr. J. T. Dorris, history professor at East-ern. Under the skillful direction of Dr. Dorris, this museum has grown and will continue to grow. Today it contains many interesting and unusual items, and is a good start toward the larger and better museum that Eastern will have in the future. Among the many interesting items of historic significance is a manuscript Bible, prepared by monks in a monastery, before the days of Chaucer. It took one hundred sheep to provide enough vellum for this book. There is now a collection of items from the French Friendship Train. There is a copy of Sir Walter Raleigh's "History of the World," a Babylonia tablet dating back to 2000 year before Christ, a Bible published by Robert Barker in 1615, and part of the first dictionary written in 1828 in Noah Webster's own handwriting.

In these cases are found manuscripts written about the Madison Female Academy and also about old Central University, which was once located on the site where Eastern now stands. The museum contains a petition to the State Legislature written in 1792, which provided for about 18,500 acres of land, and $2,000 if the capital was moved to Boonesborough. In this collec-tion are many books that were published in the seventeen-hundreds, including one book advertising the colonies, published in 1687. Dr. Dorris has found for the museum weapons pertaining to the Mexican and Civil Wars, a collection of shells, a collection of Filipino articles, a pack sad-dle which was brought through Cumberland Gap in 1779, and a collection of German machine-

"Out Of The Frying Pan" Presented

By JIM BARRICKMAN Approximately 350 people braved rain and hail to attend the Little Theater Club's Spring production, "Out of the Frying Pan," on Thursday night, April 14, in the Hiram Brock Auditorium.

The cast, sparked by Blaine Moore as George, and Walter Greene as Mr. Garnet, manipulated "Out of the Frying Pan's" hilarious plot through a series of rapid-fire laughs that left the audience breathless.

The cast, besides Mog Greene, was composed of Ed-ward Strohmeier as Norman Joe Spratt as Tony, Dolore Walker as Muriel, Jane Thomas as Kate, Marge West as Marge; Nancy Henderson as Dottie, William Henderson as Dottie, William Hopp as Mr. Coburn, Billy Wil-son as Mr. Kenny, and Kenneth Wall and Leon Pearson as the

This sparkling success brings us to the next Little Theater Club presentation, a bill of oneact plays to be staged some-time toward the last of May. These one-acts will star several students and will be given, according to all reports, free of charge. This group of short plays offers more chance to your campus dramatic watch club in action before the close of the school year.

Jess Casey Makes Concert Debut

Mr. Jess Casey, of the Eastern Kentucky State faculty, recently maye his Tennessee concert debut playing a piano recital sponsored by the Oak Ridge Music Association, at Oak Ridge (Atomic City) Tenness sophomore in high school, he received the highest award given to any young pianist in Tennessee from the National Federation of Music Clubs. For five years he was given a superfor rating in Tennessee the Manual Federation of Music Clubs. While Mr. Casey was still a was given a superior rating in piano from the Federation.

Mr. Casey, received his B. M. and B. A. degrees from Southeastern Louisiana College. He later attended Eastman School of Music at Rochester, N. Y.

collection of German machineguns used in the recent war.

One case is devoted to the instruments used in the mining of gold at Cripple Creek, Colorado, in the 1890's.

There are original land records dating back to 1780, and also many photostatic copies of valuable history-making documents. One of the most interesting is a copy of George Washington's first and only commission, signed by John Hancock in 1775.

This museum is constantly expanding, and it is hoped that plans will soon be made to provide better facilities for it.

Change Traffic

President W. F. O'Donnell of Eastern State College stated that beginning Monday, April 25, one-way traffic through the campus would enter on Lancaster avenue instead of on South Second street as has been done in the past. This will be a permanent arrangement, Mr. O'Donnell said. The purpose of the congestion on Lancaster avenue at the campus entrance. The plan was adopted at the suggestion of the State Highway Department after a survey had been made.

Honors Day At Eastern

30 Women Inducted Into Honoraries

Honors Day for the women's organizations of Eastern State College was observed at the asprogram Tuesday sembly Hiram Brock auditorium.

Ten junior women were received into the Collegiate Pentacle honorary society for senior women, and 20 young women from the freshman class were received into the Cwens, national honorary society for sophomore women, in a colorful tapping ceremony conducted by the of-ficers of the two groups.

Families To Be Guests Sunday

This year the Mother's Day program will be entirely a student affair.

The students have mailed invitations to their families for the Mother's Day celebration which is planned for Sunday, May 8.

Philip Corey has been chosen to speak at the program which is held at 2:30 in Walnut Hall. He is the son of Mr. Philip Corey, Rahway N. J., and Mrs. Joseph Trefinko, of Carteret, N. J.

Philip is now a graduate student. While at Eastern he has been a member of Alpha Psi Omega, Kappa Delta Pi, Sigma Tau Pi, a member of the college choir for four years, past president of the Westminster Fellowship, and was included in the '49 edition of Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges.

He appeared in the operetta 'Naughty Marietta,'' the Little Theater play "Hay Fever" and as interlocutor in the Veterans Club Minstrel in 1947.

Presiding at this program will be Betty Jane Hawkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hawkins, of Canton, North Carolina.

Betty Jane is a member of Cwens, the Y. W. C. A. cabinet and is secretary for the Kentucky Synod of Westminster Fellowship. She is a biology major and plans to teach in that field. The program will include a prelude, "Araioso," by Bach played by Betty Griffin, of Mt. Vernon; scripture reading by Adelaide Byron, of Ashland; the invocation given by G. T. Cowan, of Carlisle; soprano solo, "To You," sung by Billie Jo Elder, of Richmond.

The greeting will be extended by W. F. O'Donnell, president of the college. The college choir un-der direction of Mr. James E. Van Peursem will sing. The bendiction will be given by John Stephens, Loveland, Ohio. Postlude will be played by Janet Roberts, Valley Stream, New York. Following the program, every-one is invited to the informal reception in Walnut Hall.

On this Sunday, the buildings on the campus will be open so that the students may show their families around. This is the twelfth annual Mother's Day celebration at Eastern. It is sponsored by the college social com-

Are College Students People?

Good evening, Mr., Miss, and Mrs., College, shall we go to press? This is your campus reporter, the eyes and ears of the Ravine, bringing you the latest dormitory anecdote straight from the Gillology

Once upon a time, there was a certain college Joe, whom, for obvious reasons we shall refer to as Joe. Well, it seems Joe had up quite a case with a certain Flaming Mamie (could be short for Mimi, I'm not sure) who we're gonna call-how DID you guess? Now, Joe and Mamie loved each other dearly and madly and all like that but One Fateful Day they had a battle. You know, that sometimes happens, especially on college campuses. As a result of their quarrel, Mame, who had really thought for a long time that Joe was getting too sure of her love, angrily decided to Date Another Man. But-via the grape vine or the cafeteria line, Joe got wind of the Diabolical Plot. He even learned that the Zero Hour was seven o'clock and the point of least resistant-I mean, er-Rendezvous!! was Durn-Em Hall. Now if Joe had been of low mental ability or if he had been less a gentleman, he might have gone off half-cocked and killed somebody. But our Joey was more subtle. He was also very likeable and had many friends due to his wonderful personality. (The facts that he was also varsity fullback and president of the "F" Club, and had a father on the Board of Regents and an uncle who was Dean of the college, helped a little, too.)) Like I said, Joe had codles of pals so about suppertime he went into an 11th hour huddle with fifteen of the most trustworthy and the ones who owed him the most money, and briefed them but good!

At six-thirty Moe (the Other Man) walked into his room, took off his clothes, turned on the water, and stepped into the shower. Completely happy, he sang of Love and Spring until he reached forth his hand for the towel. But there was no towel. "This is indeed strange," thought Moe, "I'd have sworn-oh, well, I'll use my roommates towel." Alas, Roommate had not towel neither. As a facter of mact,-THERE WAS NOT A SINGLE TOWEL IN THE ROOM! But Moe was undaunted. (He Always was.) He could shake himself dry. Then he got ready to shave, but Alas! instead of his razor in the cabinet he found a note which read:

Deer mo, eye hev took yer elctrik razer a purpose to find out if it air as good fer throat-cuttin as th ol fashned kind.

> Cin-cin eerly Yer Rummate frum Gory Geathitt County

"I didn't need a shave anyhow," sighed philosophical Moe, but he was very unhappy when he discovered that "friends" had borrowed all his clothes, apparently while he was out to supper. Except for the ones he wore when he came in. The fiends must have absconded with them while he was in the shower. Well-brought-up young men, they had left identical notes (I forgot to tell you that Joe's sister runs the mimeographing machine), which said:

Sorry you were out when I came. I'm borrowing your. Bring it back Tuesday week, if I don't have a date. Thanks a

And so on for all the articles of clothing Moe possessed. Poor guy! All he could find left was a pair of tennis shorts that had slipped behind the dresser and escaped the wave of larceny.

That's about all the story. You might be thinking that the moral is "Everyman for himself because all's fair in love and war." But you're more than slightly damp, Precocious, on account of the moral really is "A THING WORTH DOING IS WORTH DOING WELL." Mamie and Moe played tennis that night.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

Featuring GARRY LUSS

Doing greater plaudits to this already magnificent publication is a brilliant newcomer to our erudite midst—that quite ingenious and ubiquitous man-about-the-campus (whom many of you may have had the good fortune of meeting) Garry Luss, who, incidentally, is unexcelled in that precariously delicate field of obtaining and dighter out the dist dishing out the dirt.

dishing out the dirt.

Upon arriving at our beloved alma mater (the eve of the impressive Variety Show), Garry was so impressed with the classic atmosphere and serene beauty of our campus that some interval of time passed before he could produce th utterances for which he is famous. It was only after dining in our sybaritical cafeteria on that momentous early-spring evening that the honorable Luss condescended to honor us with a bit of his excellent rhetoric. Rubbing the region of his solar plexus, it is reported that he said: "Gad, what food! 'Twas fit for a god!" A murmur permeated the admiring crowd, and there were some rather enigmatic remarks about certain members of the canine species.

But, since that eventful night when his magic words forver hallowed the walls of SUB, Garry has anchored himself firmly in hallowed the walls of SUB, Garry has anchored himself firmly in the bosoms of many students, and has become, through his magnetic personality and voluminous grey matter, completely familiar with the intricate personal relationships of those shining, eager and eternal pursuers of lore, student and preceptor alike.

After quietly musing in the peace of the Progress office, Mr. Luss has told us something that grieved us deeply. Quoting the master, "Proteges, vituperation is not my intent in saying that, during my pleasurable association enfamille of the convivail intelligensia of your most praise-worthy institution, only once have I found an injustice, an iniquitous act, a wrong-doing of omission."

We listened carefully to the inimitably fair judgment:

"Of the various and sundry extra-curricular events which it has been my good fortune of attending, none has etched itself more memorably on my mind than the superbly original, entertaining, and most satisfying Variety Show. Yet, your publication has never, to my knowledge, given it one smattering of notice."

We hung our heads guiltily and acquiesced that he was correct. It really is "a most unjjust, iniquitous act, a wrong-doing of omission."

Tipping back his chair and lighting his cigar, the kind Mr. Luss began discussing with us several points of interest of an interstudent-inter-faculty nature. Some of the general trends of this most enlightening conversation will prsently follow in paragraph form. Strangely enough, however, most points of the discussion evolved into perplexing questions. If, perhaps, some thoughtful reader is in a more opportune position to acquire definite informationconcerning these bones of contention, Mr. Luss would appreciate his impartation thereof. COMMENTS OF SYMPOSIUM ATTENDED BY GARRY LUSS

"The wife of what member of that clubbable Triumverate of the Coke Machine has recently thrown open her boudoir door, crossed the threshold, and was greeted by a well-known member of the class reptilia, hissing a smooth hello?" This is the question of the week as stated by the honorable Luss. He also added, "It is likely that she was somewhat surprised."

of the week as stated by the honorable Luss. He also added, "It is likely that she was somewhat surprised."

Another point much discussed by the symposium was an ambiguous and even perhaps mythical report on a certain unknown twosome. But just what affable Liberal Arts student with an LL.B. is a recognized authority on the issuing of licenses and free contractors, and what associate of his who, incidentally, attends the same Sociology Class in which the Bard of the Courts expounded his theories, is noted for making th distinction between skilled and unskilled labor concerning the class of laborers that was in question?

In connection with extended weekend trips, Garry Luss stated that they were pleasant for changes. This comment was made after one reporter asked: "What roommate of what enticing little voluptuary makes a weekly sojourn to Winchester, and for what conceivable reason?" A listener said that someone might ask Ann.

It was definitely made clear at this gathering of literatuses that, if there is any truth to the old adage of one crawling before walking, then one of the bathers on Burnam Beach by the name of Joyce would certainly know it.

Someone asked: "What budding bard of Eastern would like to make his home in Beverly Hills?"

In speaking of the many talented columnists of the Progress, Luss stated, and we quote: "I understand that a certain ex-columnist of this flower of journalistic art has lightly turned his they believed. this stated, and we quote: "I understand that a certain ex-columnist of this flower of journalistic art has lightly turned his thoughts to things of nuptial interest." We replied that this was true and someone brought out the interesting facts that the well-remembered "Sanguine Sage" would not need to purchase the conventional precious stone necessary for committing the blessed act, for he has a

"What imbecile has been eating raw poultry ova at a restaurant where shuffleboard is played?" Luss queried. We informed him that no definite reports have been received as to the name of this rare personality, but we must say that he is certainly a credit to his institution, a sui-generis.

What attractive young man with the surname of Davis has been recently singing "Margie" is a question which was left com-

The remaining unanswered questions:

1. Why won't a sweet brunette with the initals L. D. give some of the local yokels a break? (Could it be a Louisvillian interest?) Comment: "Here at last is true love."

2. What coed with the nickname of Georgie is pleased very greatly to see "Tommy" released from the confines of the ill?

3. Who's head was recently injured whil ethe body was performing simian acrobatics on the guardrail of a sewer?

4. Who is this dynamic sophomore outfielder of the Eastern

Maroons who fields the ball in Terry Moore fashion? "His speed is also unexcelled in a more delicate sport, and here, too, he fields a thousand."

BAND TO PRESENT FIRST SPRING CONCERT MONDAY NIGHT The Eastern State College band will present its first spring concert Monday evening at 7:30 in the Hiram Brock auditorium.

The music will be of light character. Solos to be featured will include saxaphone, french horn and clarinet. A soprano solo with band accompaniment will be featured in Victor Herbert's "I'm Falling in Love" and "Kiss Me Again." Drum majorettes, Mary Jean Binder and Betty Henneke, will present a baton twirling exhibition.

Letter To Editor

The Eastern Progress
Eastern State Teachers College Richmond, Kentucky Dear Editor:

On the Berea College campus, there is a group known as the Citizens Committee. We, in the group, have been meeting regularly for two years. Our interest is in the field of race-relations; more specifically, in the problem of what we can do to better the educational situation for our Negro fellow students in Kentucky.

Realizing the existence of other groups and individuals in the state directly interested in the same problem, we hope to insti-gate a state-wide conference at some central point in Kentucky (possibly Lexington.)

Our reasons for wanting to create such a conference are:

1 To foster a strong sense of fellowship, an "esprit de corps among us who are trying to help bring about equality of educational opportunity in Kentucky. Such a spirit fostered will, we believe, help and inspire us to redouble our efforts toward that goal.

2. To discuss and plan for region

2. To discuss and plan for posi-tive political and educational ac-tivitity toward further modification and eventual abolishment of the segregation enforcing Day Law.

3. Possibly to form a central organization to correlate and make more effective, activities and programs already existing throughout the state.

4. To further educate ourselves.
5. To carry out any program agreed upon at the conference by the conference-members.

If and before any such conference can take place, there must be a planning meeting, and some indication of the amount of in-

Therefore, if those who would like to take part in such a conference will write us, we will arrange the pre-conference planning meeting and be the pre-conference center of information.

Those who can help with the planning, please indicate in your

Maroons Down Eagles 4-1

Eastern won its first Ohio Valley Conference Start here Monday afternoon by pounding out a 4-1 decision over Morehead. For Coach Turkey Hughes' Ma-roons it was their sixth win in eight starts.

Don "Buck" Newsome, Maroon curveballer from Independence, handcuffed the Eagle batters by scattering four hits while strik- their fifth win, ing out seven.

The Eagles took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Sonny Allen slammed out a double and drove in Bob Patakos. Eastern rallied in the second and scored a pair of runs to take a 2-1 lead. The Maroons added two more runs in the third frame for their victory margin. A total of 14 Maroons were stranded on the sacks.

Eastern catcher, Tommy Ward, paced the Maroon hitting at-tack with two safeties in four trips.

Eastern Splits With Eastern

In their first doubleheader of the season, played here on April 16, the varsity split the double bill with Eastern Illinois. The Maroon and White romped to an 18-4 winn in the first game, then bowed 8-2 in the second on a frigid diamond.

Luther Wrenn, slugging var-sity left fielder, connected for a grand slam homer to spark the Eastern nine-run uprising in the fifth frame of the opener. Carl Eagle got four for five and pitched five-hit ball in the six innings he worked during opener. He was relieved Steve Pulawski.

The Illinois crew got all its runs in the nightcap off Ralph Parsons. He was replaced in the fourth by Dave Hughes who allowed only a scratch hit the rest of the way. of the way. First game:
