FINAL GRADES

All grades for the spring semester should be reported to the Registrar's Office not later than 9:00 a. m. on Saturday, June 6. In order that the grades may be processed as soon as possible, the Registrar's Office would appreciate having grades turned in at the earliest possible date after the examination.

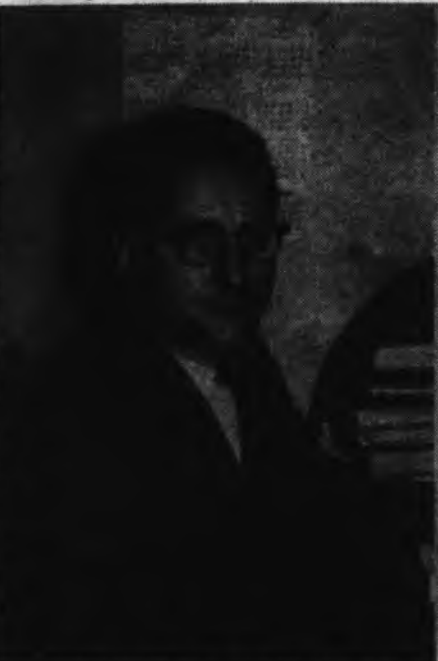

VENETTOZZI'S LEAVING ESC

At the close of the summer term Eastern will be losing two of its finest faculty members. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Venettozzi are leaving us to make their home in Mt. Vernon, teaching at Cornell College. While at Eastern this couple has meant much to the students and teachers with whom they have come in contact.

Mrs. Venettozzi has taught voice and pedagogy on our campus for the past ten years. During that time she has brought wide acclaim to herself and to Eastern by winning third place in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions in 1958. She has also appeared in the "Lamentations" presented in Louisville with the Philharmonic Orchestra, and many times in the Eastern "Messiah".

"Mr. V.", as he is affectionately called, has taught here for the past five years. He received his Bachelor of Arts and Masters Degrees at Eastern, and has done additional work at the University of Kentucky. He has been coach of the debate team, sponsor of Oaks, Vets Club, Student Council, and Young Republicans Club. In 1957 he received the annual dedication in the Milestone. His students will greatly miss his counseling and words of advice.

We wish to Mr. and Mrs. Venettozzi the very best of luck. Their places will not easily be filled for they have left much to Eastern and the furtherance of education on our campus.

MR. V. VENETTOZZI

BIGGER MILESTONE AS RESULT OF YEAR'S WORK

The 1959 Milestone is the result of the efforts of approximately 30 Students and faculty members. These staff members averaged working 10 hours on the book this year, but some worked well over 100 hours.

The 1959 Milestone is different from last year's in several ways. It is 44 pages larger. Most of these extra pages are taken up in the feature pages or Daily Life section.

The faculty section is larger this year as a result of having individual portraits of the faculty instead of group pictures.

A new section, the Honors section, is given over to academic and leadership honoraries and awards.

Intramural Sports have been given a space of their own in the 1959 annual and there are pictures of the winners of each intramural tournament.

The theme of the 1959 annual is the Alma Mater. Each section is introduced by an appropriate phrase from the Alma Mater.

The editorial staff of the Milestone wishes to thank everyone who has contributed time, energy, and cooperation to make the 1959 Milestone a success.

Senior Class Dined At Phoenix Hotel

Richmond, Ky., May 14 (Special) —Dr. William H. Poore, pastor of the Park Methodist Church in Lexington, was the guest speaker at Eastern Kentucky State College's Senior Class Dinner, held on Tuesday evening, May 19, at 6:30 p. m. in the Phoenix Hotel, Lexington.

Dr. Poore spoke on the topic, "Graduation Wishes."

Presiding was Jerry Sutkamp, Bellevue, class president. The invocation was given by Lois Carter, Louisville. Robert Azbill, Waco, presented a solo, and Reverend Poore was introduced by Cliff Swauger, Bellevue.

Accompanying on the piano as the class sang the Alma Mater was Gus Franklin, Bellevue.

Class sponsors are Mrs. Emma Y. Case, Dean of Women, and Mr. James William Stocker, associate professor of Agriculture.

SENIORS PLAN FOR BUSY DAYS

The next two weeks will prove to be hectic ones for all the graduating seniors. There's so much to do in so little time. There are picnics, and banquets of the various clubs to attend, exams to be taken, caps and gowns to be gotten from the bookstore from 1:00-4:00 from May 27 until the 30. This is something special! Don't forget.

Then the once-in-a-life-time baccalaureate service in Hiram Brock Auditorium on Sunday, May 31, where Dr. Homer W. Carpenter, former minister of the First Christian Church in Louisville, will deliver his sermon to the graduating class and friends and families. On June 2, all seniors and husbands or wives are invited to have lunch with President O'Donnell in the Student Union Building at 12:30.

Following the luncheon, all graduates are to meet in the lobby of the Student Union Building to practice for Commencement. Of course, all of these activities are leading up to the Big Day—Commencement, which will be held in Hiram Brock Auditorium Wednesday morning, June 3, at 10:00 o'clock. The message will be given by Dr. Perry E. Gresham, President of Bethany College, Bethany, West Virginia.

There you have it, Seniors. There's an awful lot to be done before June 3, but just think of how nice it will be to walk across that stage and become a graduate.

The Spice of Life

Letters To the Editor

The writers of this column proudly announce that this is the last in a series of psychotic episodes. We're sure all of our readers are tickled pink to hear this. That's the breaks. You finally get your schedule memorized and some slob comes up with the news that the semester is over. As you know, the primary purpose of this column is to confuse you (which isn't hard), so we figured we would do a grand and glorious job of it in the last edition.

As Rand once said to McNally after the Battle of Bunker Hill, "Don't fire till you see the whites of their eggs!" Fortunately this article has nothing to do with Rand-McNally or eggs, or even fire extinguishers for that matter. We would very much enjoy getting in a dig at the 19th century notions about Bermuda shorts that exist around here, but we have no desire to get into trouble over such a silly matter. Suffice it to say that our regional manager for the United-Artists Bermuda Shorts Company lost his job. He was also refused the privilege to eat in the cafeteria. Poor guy!

Our latest "Complex of the Week" concerns a guy who had an extreme Oedipus Complex. He wanted to hit everybody's father and marry everybody's mother. He's an education major. After running across this, we decided to do some research on Sigmund Freud. Here's what we found: He led the Yankees to the World Series in 1888. He invented grill coffee. It all came about by a freak accident when he was trying to find a neutralizer for battery acid. It's even been outselling all other brands at the grill ever since.

While at the Kentucky Derby, hunting for cigarette advertisements for the Progress, we ran into a bookie-friend of ours who said not to place any bets because the race was fixed. Speaking of fixes, he needed one. He was immoral, just like all people who smoke. Actually, contrary to popular belief, all people who smoke are not immoral. But that is only the opinion of this column and in no way does it reflect the attitude of the rest of the staff.

Hitherto, moreover, and all that jazz, between insidious remarks about some of our more deplorable problems, it might be exceptionally wise to remind the reader that Rome wasn't built in a day. Memorial Hall was.

When Noah Webster was trying to intersect his first arc in the Math Department at Menlo Park University, Johnny Stompanato was busily stomping his first sonata in Carnegie Hall. Meanwhile, back at the ranch, Karl Marx's brother, Groucho, was organizing United States Steel in the Everglades of Wyoming. While all this excitement was going on, Brigette Bardot was just getting her start. Her first job was a post-office clerk in the grill at the age of four-and-a-half.

It wasn't but a few years ago when Mr. I. Sling Mudd, of Tator Gap, Idaho, said, "Football Builds Character." Well, he was right, cause those football players are really characters. Incidentally, Mr. Mudd is now the athletic director of Crappon U.

Speaking of Orval Faubus, did you hear about the latest adventure of Mike Gassaway? Well, it seems as though "Gaseous" Gassaway was sitting in his room eating some crushed razor blades when some screwball (i. e., Bill Zimmerman) came running in screaming that his roommate had just turned into a "Praying Mantis." (This guy had just sat through the third showing of the award-winning movie, "The Fly.")

Why is it that some people have a weakness for girls? Well, we don't know either, but it sure is a heck of a lot of fun. Speaking of cruelty jokes, have you ever seen our editor?

Thought for the day: Men are born. They die. Their remains become fertilizer. Makes the grass grow. Horses and cows eat the grass. Then they excrete waste products. The moral of this story is: Watch where you step; it might be a relative.

Memories Are Made Of This

Sullivan 206 — How I wish I had a picture of my face when I first saw that place. It was a cozy little leftover from the space not used by newly added commode stalls. If they had decided to put in one more commode, I would have had to bunk in the hall. Vaguely, I remember my frantic mother furiously explaining to some calm lady named Mrs. Claxton that no daughter of hers "would live in that cell," and that Dad and I walked around nonchalantly and pretended we weren't with mother. And then, of all things, my mother settled everything (I kept 206 — four square feet would be easily kept clean) and my parents actually considered leaving me — alone — with those "odd wads." In spite of a horrible urge to scream and dash after the car, I was very brave and decided I would make it — somehow.

Then came the teas and the parties, and I was right in the middle of a "gay social whirl" commonly called "Freshman Week". Naturally, I was impressed by all the attention — to me and to a few hundred others. At 5:30 one morning I found myself and three-fourths of the Freshman Class waiting in a long line to register before anyone else got up. Of course, I had not had breakfast and I remember distinctly that I passed out on seeing a doughnut a few hours later. Sometime during that fateful day, I was stomped, spit on, cursed, pushed, and irritated but I emerged victoriously or at least I got all my classes.

And then there were classes — grammar, biological science, psychology and I started feeling like an educated cultured college girl. But it did worry me when I realized that college was remarkably like high school except that one had to walk further to change classes.

How well I remember that I had my first cup of coffee in the grille and after deciding to wage a campaign against Brazil, I learned that all coffee didn't taste that way. Having finally become an avid java fan, I can at least say I learned the hard way.

"Hurray for Homecoming!" was soon the cry of the masses and everyone scurried around stuffing napkins, shining convertibles, and buying formals. Being too lazy to be a nonconformist, I slapped paper mache, nailed, and sang "Hail, Hail, Eastern Maroons" with all the other gang of students and preparations for the big day hurried along. Thousands of people came in droves and cries of "How have you been? How many children do you have? Are you married yet?" filled the November air. Ah, 'twas a gayle event, but I was tired.

Class spirit ran high and we were all proud of our poised president, Gus, and awed by our spirited sponsor, Mrs. Case. In fact several of us even went to class meetings and enjoyed them.

Spring came and in the spring a young Easternite's fancy turns to Ebonese and suntans. I learned all about beach schedules, and I was feeling more and more like a real college coed.

Our class started the White Rose Formal which was strictly for Freshmen and we felt so exclusive and smug.

All of a sudden — Sophomores — we really had it made. We girls were able to move out of Sullivan into the great big, luxurious Burnham Hall. Naturally, we were impressed — but only until we saw our rooms. We also got lonesome when we realized that our old "floor buddies" were no longer in screaming distance. But such was becoming big brave sophomores and we struggled along.

Speck's was unconditionally "the place" to go to meet friends and enemies and socialize. We made all sorts of fun of freshmen and became "big sisters" in order to show the children "the ropes".

Uniform and medals decorated the Military Ball, and we looked forward to all the pomp and circumstance.

And speaking of formals, there was a lovely prom that year and Jonnie Sue Zocchi looked positively beautiful.

Letter-to-the-Editor Department
Eastern Kentucky State College
Richmond, Kentucky
Dear Editor:

Relative to my recent remarks relative to accepting cigarette advertising in college newspapers, I was more than mildly surprised. So far, two people have responded favorably, that I know of. Probably any response is better than no response.

Should a democratic society guarantee every citizen the right to think and believe as he pleases, and further, to give voice to any idea, whether or not he may subscribe to it personally, as long as he does not advocate overthrowing the government by violence? Where this freedom is lacking, or is sacrificed, then is the right of each individual to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness the price which that society pays? Is this just as true in the eastern part of Kentucky or Mississippi or any other state or nation as it was at the Boston Tea Party? The real question is not around smoking necessarily, per se; for purposes of providing a vehicle, the resolution might just as well have used any academic topic of debate such as motherhood, government, or euthanasia. The real question devolves about our willingness to give up without a struggle our right and the right of all generations to come to free decisions for thirty pieces of advertising revenue.

I toy with the thought that a college or university is probably the natural home or spawning place of ideas. Minds trained in the open-minded, objective gathering of evidence before drawing conclusions do not become panicked and hysterical when an idea is presented. Where a hostile response to a suggestion is evoked simply on the basis that it is different, then I should assume that that particular locality places a very low value on the process of inquiry.

I still feel that a college turning out public school teachers who will influence young people for the next 40 years or more (until the year 2000, or the turn of the next millennium) has a tremendous responsibility to students, to the state, and to unborn generations in the kind of activities provided, in the kind of advertising accepted in the college paper, and in the deliberate program of character developed which it accepts responsibility for.

Yours truly,
Willis Parkhurst

in the ravine. "Carousel" was presented, and even though it was marred by plentiful weak spots, it was still progress on Eastern's campus.

It seems as if we juniors worked all year on the prom and we used Hawaii for our theme. Naturally we thought it was beautiful and I hope the seniors did.

The annual that year was late but good, and Peggy Hinkle was very relieved.

Seniors! We made it — the big year arrived. And it was a grand year. Homecoming was "bigger and better" and Regina Dick looked as regal as any monarch.

But our glory came in basketball. We cheered and stomped and boosted our team, and dared anyone to deny that they were terrific. "Everyone who was anyone" went to the game in Lexington, and even when we were defeated, we were still proud of Eastern's Maroons.

In "Winterset" I had my first part in a three-act even though it was only a couple of lines with a lot of action.

Finally, we were able to cast our raincoats aside and appear in "casual clothes". Naturally, that was quite a step and we were all grateful for our chance to look collegiate.

Banquets, initiations and speeches were next on the agenda, and the weeks flew by.

Our four years are shot — and although we are not really anxious, we are ready to go out on our own "to seek our fortune". We look forward to graduation, but to Eastern, our Alma Mater, we will always be "faithful, loyal, true".

BIG SISTERS

All girls who would like to become a "Big Sister" and have not already signed up, please contact Kayce McConnell in room 331, Burnham Hall.

IT'S SAFE TO READ

If you have a guilty conscience, — if we have been stepping on your toes with our editorials, — if you hold your breath until our next editorial, — or if you think we gripe too much, then this editorial is for you. It's safe to read because we are doing none of the above in this editorial.

There have been events on the campus this year which are to be commended.

The ROTC boys did a fine job during registration. Homecoming was a big success and better than usual — thanks to KYMA.

Attendance was way off at football games — but we said we wouldn't gripe this issue.

Basketball season started off with a bang thanks to the faithful student rooters. The Junior Class sponsored a swell dance the night we won the OVC, and thanks to Dean Case for letting the girls stay out later.

Studying was easier in the newly re-decorated library and it must have done some good as thirty-four seniors were elected to Who's Who.

There was no lack of school spirit the Tuesday evening over half the college went to Lexington for the "last" basketball game.

There was also no "passing the buck" when Dean Case sent out a call for workers during the Vocational Conference. And how those students worked!

Women's and Men's Honor Days proved the students had done something besides enjoy their college days as some 400 men and women were honored.

The juniors organized — and did a good job of it — to put on the Junior-Senior Prom. As lovely and as well-attended a Prom as was ever held on the campus.

Now, you see — we've done it. We've written an editorial without mentioning any of our gripes about the new paths, or long-hoped for cleanliness in the grill, or without asking for shorter class hours, reduction in fees, or longer vacations.

Anyway, "all's well that ends well" and as long as "God's in his heaven, all's right with the world".

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

By Mike McGrath

Metamorphosis Of An Agnostic

by Elmer Banks

The speaker looked cheerfully around and said, "What colleges are represented?" Someone said "UofK", and a group from the University stood so everyone could see them. Encouraged by this, other little groups from various colleges jumped up to be seen. And then; a little bunch popped up, and affirmed proudly that they were from Western. I could stand it no longer. I slowly rose and announced timidly that I was from Eastern. I was diffident, not because I was ashamed of Eastern, but because I was a lone agnostic, among Christians. All the other colleges were represented by several cheerful, bona fide Christians, but from Eastern there was only the one, timid, cowardly, agnostic.

Perhaps I should explain what this is all about. Levi-Jackson State Park, in London, Ky., was the site of a weekend conference sponsored by Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. The schedule for the weekend including such things as listening to an excellent speaker, Peter Haile, from Oxford University. Bible discussion groups, hymn singing, sports, hiking, and most important of all perhaps, something they called a "quiet time." Everyone would rise an hour before breakfast and wander off alone into the woods, for Bible reading, prayer, and meditation.

All of which began to take effect upon me. My skepticism became less dogmatic, and my carefully worked out theory of Deism began to wonder what was happening to it. Saturday night, I cornered Mr. Haile, from Oxford University, and carefully explained Deism to him. He seemed interested, listened patiently, then prescribed Christ, and gave me two books to read. That night a strange prayer was prayed. "God, if you do exist, in the sense that these people seem to believe, I accept. If not, I want nothing else to do with it!"

In November, there is another conference, and I plan to go, not as a confused bundle of isms, this time but as a confident Christian.

Maroon Corner . . .

by Larry Knarr

The Eastern gridders finished up with a 3-6 slate. The victories were picked up at the expense of Murray, East Tennessee, and Morehead. The defeats came from Toledo, Louisville, Middle Tennessee, Youngstown, Western, and Tennessee Tech. The Maroons sported a 3-3 record in the OVC.

Seniors Dave Bishop and Bob Callahan did most of the ball carrying for the Maroons. Bishop gained 325 yards in 30 tries for a 4-06 average. Callahan picked up 304 yards in 89 carries for an average of 3.41 per carry. Other leading ground-gainers (in order) were Hade Durbin, Gilly Layman, Gary Jump, Shannon Johnson, Sammy Incaido, Jerry Wilhoit and Tony Harris.

Freshman Tony Lanham led the quarterbacks with 17 completions for 33 attempts good for 176 yards. Tony Harris had 12 for 33 and 122 yards. Senior Ronnie Polly completed 6 of 15 for 106 yards and 2 touchdowns. Hade Durbin and Bob Callahan were the leading scorers. Each tallied 18 points.

Graduating seniors are Bishop, Callahan, Wilhoit, Jump, Ronnie Spenlau, Babe Walton, Jim Black, Jim Patton, Jerry Abney, Sal Marchese, Burt Bradley, and Ronnie White.

Of course, it was the Eastern hoopsters who made the finest showing of all by vaulting all the way from the OVC cellar to the top spot and the trip to the NCAA that goes with it. Naturally, everyone was disappointed when the Maroons lost out in the initial round, but it was a great achievement to get there in the first place.

Seniors Larry Wood, Dale Moore, and Bernie Kotula along with the rugged sophomores Jack Upchurch and Carl Cole ran roughshod over their OVC opponents after dropping a spine-tingling thriller to Western at Bowling Green in the loop opener. The Maroons clinched the OVC Crown with a revenge win over the Hilltoppers and gained some sore of national recognition when they upset high-ranking North Carolina State at Raleigh near the end of the season. The Maroons ended with a 16-6 record.

One key to Eastern's fine showing was their fine bench. Bruce Springate, Roland Wierwille, Ray Vencill, Larry Redmond, and Phil Estep were tremendous in substitute roles. Rex English and Jerry Slayback looked good in the limited amount of time they played.

Coach Paul McBrayer is looking forward to next season with the hope of duplicating the performance of this season's team. It is a pretty high goal.

Dale Moore led the Eastern basketballers in scoring with 422 points in 21 games for a 20.1 average. He also paced the team with 10.9 rebounds per game. He hit on 43.6 per cent of his field goal attempts and 80 per cent of his free throws (a new school record). Dale was drafted by the Cincinnati Royals of the NBA.

Larry Wood, who was named to the to the UPI All-America honorable mention list along with Moore, was the team's leading playmaker. Wood, all-OVC three timer, was named the outstanding senior college basketball player of the year in the Kentucky-Indiana area by WEAS in Louisville.

Unfortunately, our other athletic teams were not quite as successful as far as wins and losses go, but they all made creditable showings. The swimming team, coached by Don Combs, finished up with a 9-2 record. The Eastern Mermen won the Kentucky Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships held at Lexington. Members of the swimming team were: Angus Begley, Eddie Hatch, Ed Anderson, Don Giles, Bud Will, Ray (Rabbit) Leger, Ant Belmonte, Jim Snodgrass, Bob Goss, Bill Varvary, Bob Parker, and Bob Bohannon.

The other sports schedules have not been completed as yet, but the track, tennis, golf, and baseball teams are all doing fairly well.

The resignations of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Venetozzi, effective with the close of the summer session, were accepted by the board with regret. Mr. Venetozzi, English department, and Mrs. Venetozzi, voice faculty, will teach at the state college in Grinnell, Iowa, next year.

The board approved appointment of two other new faculty members who will begin their work at Eastern in September. They are Fred A. Engle, Jr., commerce, and Miss Hazel Chrisman, English.

Miss Chrisman is a graduate of Berea College and has the master's degree from the University of Kentucky where she has also done considerable work on the doctorate. She has taught at the University of Denver and at Elmhurst College in Illinois. She is now a member of the faculty at the University of Kentucky.

New Dormitories Proposed
President W. F. O'Donnell reported to the board that the college's application for a loan of $1,900,000 to finance the construction of a dormitory for women, a dormitory for men, and 80 apartments for married students has been given tentative approval by the Housing and Home Finance Agency but that final approval must necessarily await the appropriation of funds for college housing loans by the present session of Congress.

He said that it is understood funds for these projects will be authorized immediately when and if the housing bill is passed by both houses of Congress and is signed by the President.

President O'Donnell stated that plans for the men's dormitory and for the married student housing will be completed this month and that he hoped that a contract for these badly needed facilities can be let by July 1.

President O'Donnell also reported that the state has employed architects to make program estimates of the cost of construction of a new training school on Eastern's campus and for a maintenance building. He said that when the new training school is constructed, the Cammack and University buildings will be used for college classes.

Traffic Bumps Authorized
The board of regents heard a report from President O'Donnell that requests for dormitory reservations for 1959-60 are running considerably ahead of requests received during any previous year and that the college is sure to have a record enrollment this fall.

The board authorized the construction of traffic bumps along College Drive and Park Drive through the campus in order to check the speed of careless motorists who use these drives.
