University groups to participate in event to educate campus about smoking hazards

By Janessa Robinson

Sitting in the audience was Joanne Glasser, Eastern's first campus president. Glasser, a 1975 graduate of Miami University, served as interim president at Eastern, before being named as President of Eastern in November 2017. Since then, she has focused on creating a cohesive campus community that values diversity and inclusion.

Glasser's first address to the Eastern community took place last week, and it's her style, she said — and their input helped make the foundation for what would be the new vice president for student affairs.

Glasser announced Tuesday that Rits Davis, former vice president for enrollment management, will become the acting vice president for student affairs. Davis will succeed Dee Cockrille, former vice president for student affairs, announced her resignation from the position Nov. 5. Cockrille held the position for two years before resigning to accept a position as the vice president of student affairs at Antioch University.

Davis was unavailable for comment. Davis' secretary's said she was in Canada on "EKU business" and would not be back in her office until Tuesday.

Glasser promised to hold an open discussion about the campus in due course, but said she will focus on the short-term and long-term goals for the university's future.

Glasser's address was well-received by the students and faculty present. Many expressed their support for her leadership and looked forward to seeing what the future holds for Eastern under her presidency.

Glasser's address was the first of many she plans to give during her tenure as president. She said she will work with the Eastern community to build on Eastern's tradition and to communicate with every student and faculty member.

University appoints Tudor to Career Services position

By Tracea McLaughlin

Just one week before her first day of work, Amanda, Catherine Tudor and her husband were in Lexington, Kentucky, helping her parents move from Lexington, and the two wanted to be closer to his parents, which prompted Tudor to look at the job the student in the Richmond area.

She was employed as the assistant director of Career Services at Eastern, a position she had held for one year. She worked in the Office of Student Development, serving as the assistant director of Career Services, announced earlier this year she was going into semi-retirement to take care of his wife.

Tudor graduated from Eastern with a bachelor's degree in sociology. She received her master's degree from the Rochester Institute of Technology in the area of career and human resource development. As an undergraduate, Tudor attended Hogwarts in Birmingham, New York. She was a member of EKU's Design.*

Amanda Tudor's first day as associate director of Career Services was Oct. 22. Former director Art Harvey went into semi-retirement earlier this year.

In President Joanne Glasser's first campus-wide address last Thursday, one suggestion continuously echoed from the walls of Throck Auditorium: that Eastern was a family. Glasser used words like "family," "community" and a "shared governance" to make her point.

If we are to view Eastern as a family, it is important to know each of our roles in that group. For instance, Glasser is the mother; the vice presidents and other administrators are the aunts and uncles, the faculty and staff can be the older siblings, with the students as children. Now that we have established who's who, we need to establish certain responsibilities for everyone in our family. As mother, Glasser needs to keep the others functioning like a family. This means she must guide and nurture the rest of us, while taking care of business and bringing harmony to the family. Of course, a single mother must have the help of her brothers and sisters — the administrators. They must be there to show her how to be a good parent and also help look after the kids. Men also will need the help of the older siblings, the faculty and staff, to make sure everything is running smoothly. Just as she depends on them, they will look to her for guidance and, of course, equity. You know how it is when one child thinks you love another more.

Finally, the children, or the students. While the children are expected to be the least responsible, for this family to work they must step up and play a part in the decision-making process. A family is a multi-tiered group, and each tier must do its part to help keep the family working. That means family meetings, where all layers get to voice opinions and concerns. It also means treating every member of the family equally and with respect.

The only problem is if this family doesn't function well, it will be more than an appearance of The Jerry Springer Show or family counseling to help us.

Happy Thanksgiving

The Eastern Progress will not publish an issue for the week of Nov. 22 due to the Thanksgiving holiday. We will resume publication on Nov. 29.

Faculty/students to present posters at capitol next year

By Tricia Shoemaker

News editor

Next year, a new event will be held at the Kentucky State Capitol in Frankfort: "Posters at the Capitol." The idea for this event was born in 2013 with support from the Kentucky Academy of Science (KAS) as their annual meeting moved to Frankfort for an event called "Posters at the Capitol." The KAS is an organization of Kentucky scientists who meet each year to share their research in a format that is easily understood by the general public.

"Posters at the Capitol" will allow Kentucky scientists, including undergraduate and graduate students, to present their research in a format that is visually appealing and easy to understand. Participants will have the opportunity to interact with visitors to the Capitol, including lawmakers and members of the public, to share their research and answer any questions they may have.

"Posters at the Capitol" is open to all Kentucky scientists, including undergraduate and graduate students, who have completed research in the sciences. Participants will be given space to display their posters, and visitors to the Capitol will be able to view and interact with the posters.

"Posters at the Capitol" is a unique opportunity for Kentucky scientists to share their research with a broad audience. It is a great way to engage the public and increase public understanding of science.

"Posters at the Capitol" will be held on the north side of the Capitol Building on the day of the KAS annual meeting, which is typically held on the first Thursday of May. The event will be open to the public, and there is no cost to attend.

The Rocky Horror Picture Show tonight

Eastern does the Time Warp for first time

By KATE WBTKAMP
Staff writer

Grab your garters, dig out the fishnets and tighten the corset. It's everybody's favorite sexually charged movie and "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" is coming to Eastern tonight.

As part of the Thursday Alternative Getaway program, the Office of Student Affairs has set up a big screen in the Keen Johnson Ballroom and found a few students who aren't afraid to dance in their underwear in front of a crowd.

The show begins at 9:30 p.m.

Christopher L. Thomasson is the director and in playing Dr. Frank-N-Furter. There is a cast of about 13, including ten who were most enthusiastic about the film, and who just love the movie and characters.

Thomasson has been in between 40 and 100 shows as Dr. Frank-N-Furter, but he has been seen the movie as many as 250 times. He started the company in Lexington that puts the production at Eastern. He was with the company for six years, but he quit to pursue other activities.

Thomasson has a bachelor's degree in theatre from the University of Kentucky. He hopes to pursue a career in education.

Thomasson was contacted by the Office of Student Affairs for information on how to get permission to show "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," and he volunteered to direct the production at Eastern.

He said the practices were going well and it was easy for him to cast the show because they were familiar with the movie and characters. Blocking is the hardest part, because the movements should match the movements on the big screen behind them.

"If you've never been to the "Rocky Horror Picture Show," then it's probably the most "It's" Thomasson said.

Just watching the movie is not getting the full experience. At live shows there's a pre-show at 9:30 p.m., lasting until around 10:45 p.m. During the pre-show there will be a costume contest in which the first place prize is $100, second prize is $75 and third is $50, Thomasson said.

Interaction with the movie is a must. Props that are wet are not allowed in the theater, but to have fun with it, you may win up to $100. At this point, you should be warned that it might get sticky.

"The show is free to all Eastern students, so bring a valid ID. If you win the costume contest, you would be awarded cash that may contain some offensive material. Dress up to get the show early, you may win up to $100, and you'll enjoy all the traditions of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."" Thomasson said.

Dr. Frank-N-Furter, a scientist

"It's an event like no other," Thomasson said. "At this show you have the opportunity to see some fishnets..."

"Every time you see it, you like to see frat guys and sorority girls in their underewear," said Crystal Neff, a computer science major from Louisville.

The show is tonight at 9 p.m. in Keen Johnson.

Transies in training

"The Rocky Horror Picture Show" is an unusual experience. It has been played continuously in movie theaters for 26 years, mostly at midnight showings. The music is more classic and has many loyal fans that dress up as characters, mimic the movie they love and interact with the movie. Since the movie has so many loyal followers, Thomasson wanted to "make sure he picked the people who were most enthusiastic about the film, and who just love the movie and characters." Thomasson said he wanted the people who were most familiar with the movie as many as possible.

"Despite a possible broken or sprained ankle, Alison Erwin will be playing the part of Fid. She is in pain, but she told me she couldn't get a cast until after the show was performed."

Thomasson was concerned at the beginning of the film it was the wedding of Smith Hushpuppy and Betty Munroe. So he newscasts,  "I love the "Rocky Horror Picture Show," you should throw the rice along with the newlyweds exit the church, you should fight up the theater, you should keep your gloves on and time to rust a fantastic sound effect."

Runaways: Marathon runners practice daily on Eastern’s campus

By COOK BARN Staff Writer

The air on Monday morning was chilly enough for a coat, but it didn’t deter the astonishingly motivated group from running its daily route. The group of 10 or so members stretched, talked about their weekend, cracked a few jokes and slung a few friendly insults back and forth. If you have attended classes at Eastern for a year or two, you may have noticed a group of runners trotting around campus around noon every weekday. What you may not know is that some of these runners started their noon jog over 20 years ago and haven’t stopped since.

“I’ve been doing this for 22 years. That’s how stupid I am,” said Rick Erdmann, Eastern track and cross country coach. The monster run is Columbus was the first for five of the runners and all six runners finished within an hour of each other.

“(The marathon) was just a challenge to see if I could do it,” Bob Geier, 48, of Richmond recalled. Perhaps the most impressive success story in the group is the Rev. Patrick Stewart, 48, of Richmond. Stewart, the local parish father at St. Mark’s Catholic Church, weighed over 300 pounds before he started running with the group. Stewart lost 128 pounds and completed the Columbus marathon in the hours.

“I needed a goal for myself so I could keep at it. It was inconceivable to me that I could ever run a 26-mile marathon,” Stewart said.

If Stewart is the success story of the group, one of the most dedicated members is Bob Turpin, 60, director of purchasing at Eastern. Turpin has logged a total of 33,000 road miles in his running career and run in over 500 road races. He started running 23 years ago and is one of the founding members of the campus running group.

“Everybody has overcome some obstacle through their daily run. For Stewart, it was his weight. Overall used to weigh over 200 pounds and smoked three packs of cigarettes a day.

“It’s a good way to meet a level of fitness. We still consider ourselves athletes,” Erdmann said. Every member has overcome some obstacle through their daily run. For Stewart, it was his weight. Overall used to weigh over 200 pounds and smoked three packs of cigarettes a day.

Chess club invites participants

By Christina Johnson

Eastern's chess club is a new organization open to anyone in the community. The club, which has 12 members, began shortly after the semester started.

Nathan Buchanan, a freshman, chess club member, said the organization is good because he has a hard time finding people interested in playing. Buchanan's playing partner was a student from St. Mark School in Richmond.

"It's hard finding other students here at Eastern to play. If you can find anyone, you better enjoy," Buchanan said. "It's a good opportunity for a lot of students because there are no chess organizations. There's no chess, whatsoever, within miles."

Buchanan was the president of the Freshmen School chess club. He said he played chess for 14 years.

Kevin Jones, faculty advisor of the chess club, said anyone could become a member at any time.

"If you want to learn, or if you want to play chess, just drop by."

The school is so interested in building new buildings, they are at the competitive level yet, Jones said. "We're close. It's a good thing for Eastern," he said. "I know a lot of other schools in the area," Jones said.

The chess club has no fees and organizers don't anticipate any in the immediate future.

When asked about students in the area, "This is an open club. Anybody who wants to come, watch — that's what we're here for."
Final game could mean entire season

This weekend's matchup between Eastern and Tennessee State is the last football game for both schools until August.

For the Colonels, this game is the last chance to make a statement this season. If they win, it would be their first win against Tennessee State in more than a decade. For the Eagles, this game is their last chance to get back to their winning ways after a disappointing season.

This game is important for more than just the teams involved. The winner will take home the Beanpot Trophy, a tradition that dates back to the 1920s. The trophy is given to the team that wins the annual game between the two schools.

In addition to the Beanpot Trophy, this game is also a key in determining the winner of the Ohio Valley Conference. The winner of this game will have a significant advantage in the conference standings.

With the stakes so high, both teams will be pushing themselves to their limits. The Colonels will be relying on their defensive prowess, while the Eagles will be relying on their offensive firepower.

The game kicks off at 2:30 p.m. at Eastern's Homecoming game, and it is expected to be a close contest. Both teams have shown they can compete with each other, and this game is sure to be one of the most exciting of the season.

So, fans, this is your chance to watch a football game that has a lot at stake. Whether you are a Colonels or an Eagles fan, make sure to come out and support your team. This is a game you don't want to miss!

Ennis, Marks lead way as Colonels stop Samford 33-11

By Cory Hall

The Eastern football team took a big step forward in season conclusion, gaining a spot in the Division I-AA playoffs with a 33-11 victory over the visiting Samford University Bulldogs Saturday.

The Colonels were able to pick up where they left off last weekend, outlasting Samford with a 26-yard sprint to the end zone with 4:07 remaining in the second half and a 33-11 Eastern victory.

Freshman Terry Ennis breaks a tackle in the Colonels' 33-11 win over Samford Nov. 10 at Roy Kidd Stadium. Ennis gained 138 yards in the game.

"The best thing I could do was to let it rest," Hudson said. "I'm going to be ready to go against Tennessee State next week."
Vandy too much for Lady Colonels

NASHVILLE — Before Coach Larry Joe Inman and the Lady Colonels faced third-ranked Vanderbilt, everyone had a good chance at winning. But the Lady Colonels led the nation in turnover, and the game was over before it started.

Midway through the first half, the shots looked possible. But Perry's jumper made the score 21-14 at the end of the period, and the Lady Colonels were out of the game.

“We're making too many mistakes,” Ford said. “I'm not happy with our execution on offense. There is too much standing around.”

Inman said his team was still developing this year. He had to climb,” Inman said. “I was very impressed with the way they played, and Earley added a lay-up and a three-pointer to stretch the lead to 27. The Lady Colonels' spirited play impressed Coach Jim Foster.

“They have a great basketball team,” Foster said. “We were very lucky to hold a team that averaged all points in a game last year to 42 points. They have a lot of weapons.”

Wendall Evans led Eastern, followed by Kelley, who finished with 22 points. She had three steals and blocked six shots. Anderson had 22 points, while Earley pitched in with 14. Louisville native Jendi Ross, who finished with 15 each. Dunker also had seven assists.

“With the kind of effort we gave tonight, we are going to be very successful,” Inman said. “If we could hit a few easy shots that would make it easier on us, but they are in there. I am very pleased with our girls.”

Men drop bomb in final exhibition

Vanderbilt Coach Frank Ford said his team was still developing following the 94-62 defeat of the West Virginia Bombers Nov. 12. Despite out-rebounding the Bombers 47-42, and making a 15-3 run to end the first half, Perry's defense forced 20 turnovers.

“I don't think we had too many mistakes offensively, and we're not coming out with a lot of shots we'd like,” Ford said. “I'm not happy with our offense. There is too much standing around. We play like we're in the season.

“We have the ball, but the shots just wouldn't fall,” Inman said. “We're making too many mistakes.”

Inman said the Lady Colonels were still developing. “We are still not the team we want to be,” Inman said. “It's a team sport. All we have to do is play like we did last season and return the core of last season's 22-6 team.”

“We have a lot of depth on this team,” Ford said. “We have a long way to go.”

Shawn Fields scored 19 points and Keypatra Dix added 12 as the Colonels controlled the game from the opening tip, building a 23-9 halftime lead. After the break, Dix scored 12 points in the first stanza, led the Colonels to a 34-24 lead at the break.

“With Eastern shooting 44 percent, Vandy compounded Eastern's problems by hitting 37 percent from the field in the first half and closing out with less than two minutes remaining. Perry's jumper made the score 21-14 at the end of the period, and the Lady Colonels were out of the game.”
