Valentines Originate In Roman Era

By NELL LOVETT

Beautiful lacy valentines, charming verses, bright red hearts—these are the signs of Valentine's Day. On this day we express our fondest wishes and hearts' desires to those who are special to us. How did the day dedicated to love begin?

The origin of St. Valentine's Day dates to the early Roman era. It seems that a priest in Rome met a sad fate during the persecution of this early Christians. In honor of him, St. Valentine's Day was begun.

Much time was spent in 1415 in England to compose valentines to suit persons of every trade and profession from a farmer to a doctor. Many of the early valentines have been preserved. Shakespeare paid tribute to St. Valentine's Day in his play "Twelfth Night."

The on-coming of spring has always been our season for exchanging valentines and honoring our special loved ones and friends. It is always a season of candy and flowers and special little "love gifts." Here's hoping many hearts will flutter this February 14 with the exchanging of little tokens carrying the message, "Be my Valentine."

Shortly before the winter season, Dr. Amozola, Spanish professor at Eastern, gave the club members a glimpse of Christmas in Spain, his native land.

Dr. Amozola told the inspiring story of the true St. Nicholas. He also discussed other Spanish Christmas customs.

He stressed the idea that at that time of the year, Americans should remember the many privileges that only people in our country are able to enjoy.

On Wednesday, January 9, Miss Marianne Corneou, an Eastern student who comes from Egypt, took the club on a journey through several African countries.

Miss Corneou talked about languages in Africa.

She said that because there are thirty-two major divisions of African languages and many subdivisions many people have turned to English for convenience and utility.

The National Audubon Society, oldest and largest of the national conservation organizations in the United States, started the Audubon Wildlife Films 18 years ago for the purpose of helping the public to become cognizant of the need for conservation of natural wildlife, forest land and wilderness, scenic areas, plants, soil, and water. across the field, and as he pulled on the leash, the crowd knew that he wanted to be leading his band in spite of the present danger.

The oil painting was done by Mearl Riser, 23-year-old art major from Pineville, who calls his finished work his greatest satisfaction since beginning serious art study. He feels that the painting of "Mo" has real life and portrays the animal as he is seen most often by Eastern's students and as he is remembered by graduates of the college.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Riser, Pineville, and a graduate of Bell County High School, where he received the art and band awards and the all-around boy award, he plans to teach art upon graduation. He has played with the Marching Maroons, for two years, and is vice president of Kappa Pi, art society.

He used a still photograph as a guide for the painting, but studied Mozart closely for about two weeks prior to beginning his work.

Dr. Fred F. Giles, head of the art department, says young Riser is "an incessant worker who will do his very best on a job — he believes in reproducing what he sees."

The painting hangs in the bookstore. This oil painting is not the only token of fame which Mozart has been the subject. In the March 4, 1963 edition of the Courier-Journal Magazine, Mo was featured in a series of color photographs and a full-length article on Mozart around campus.

itself, and take pictures in 3D and color. The Surveyor, according to Mr. Bech, would also be used for determining the type of surface of the moon.

"Hitting the moon isn't easy," stated Mr. Bech. He went on to say that the Ranger III got to the moon 13 hours too early because the satellite fired 1½ seconds too long.

Citing the achievements already accomplished by the NASA, Mr. Bech listed the four rockets now in operation. The first and smallest one, Scout, is a four-stage solid fuel rocket of 72 feet, which is equipped with weather instruments. He continued by saying that the Redstone carried Alan Shepherd 5,200 miles an hour in 1961 in his suborbital flight. John Glenn traveled 18,000 miles an hour in the Atlas-Mercury. Saturn is the second largest preceeded by the Nova which is at present a "paper rocket" in that part of it is still on blueprint.
