Research Compares Grade Distributions

BY PAULA GOODIN
Feature Editor

The Division of Institutional Research at Eastern has compiled a comparison of grade distributions of the university for 11 semesters by class level, semester, and department.

The report shows some significant trends which raise various questions about grades given and received. It also attempts to answer some of these questions.

The study shows that the percentage of "A" grades increased successively on each level from 16.7 per cent in 100 level courses to 62.9 per cent in the 600 or graduate level courses for spring semester 1971. As the number of grades awarded per semester decreased conversely from over 12,000 in the 100 level courses to 1650 in the 600 level courses, this seems to indicate that the students who have managed to stay in school make successively better grades or find it easier to do so.

Of the 11 semesters covered—fall 1966-67 through spring 1971—the greatest percentage of "A's" were earned during the summer terms with the exception of the spring semesters of '70 and '71.

A's Increased

Dr. R. Dean Acker, Director of Institutional Research, accounts for this by the fact that those students in summer school are generally trying to graduate sooner; therefore, they are usually the better students.

With the exception of the summer terms the percentage of "A" grades increased consecutively from fall 1966-67 to spring 1971. The increase varied from as little as four percentage points on the 400 level to over 20 percentage points on the 500 level.

In graduate-500 and 600—courses either it has become increasingly easier to earn an "A" or the quality of students has become significantly better.

A grade of "A" was the most frequently awarded grade in the 500 and 600 level courses; "B's" occurred with the most frequency on the 100 and 200 level courses.

Another trend showed that spring semesters have an increase in the percentage of "A's" along with a drop in grades awarded. This is most noticeable on the 100 level.

Variations Noted

The report shows wide variation among departments in the percentage of "A" grades at each level. The greatest variation was 51 percentage points in the number of "A's" awarded on the 200 level compared to 93 percentage points in the number of "A's" awarded at the 400 level (in departments with 10 or more students enrolled).

Music at the 100 level, speech at the 200 level, drama at the 300 level, rehabilitation at the 400 level, 500 level traffic safety, and industrial education at the 600 level represent the departments in which the greatest percentage of students earned a grade of "A" in the spring 1971 semester.

The percentage of students receiving an "F" or "WF" in different sections of the same course varied as much as 20 percentage points in 13 courses at the 100 level 13 on the 200 level, three at the 300 level, and one at the 400 level.

The report summarizes: "There continued to be wide variation in grading practices among faculty members. The evidence in this report indicates that a student's efforts may not be solely indicative of his grade point average."

Enthusiasm seems to have boiled over for this student as he cheers during last Monday night's basketball win over Western. Spirit ran high year.

Progress Starts Semester With Three New Editors

BY LISA COLLINS
Staff Writer

Three new editors have been assigned to the Progress following the resignation of the news, organizations and academics editors.

Replacing Robert Babbage as news editor is Jim House, a journalism major from Richmond and a third year Progress staff member. "My job is to assign all news stories other than sports and edit the copy when it comes in," said House. "Being on a staff like the Progress is the best practical experience relating to journalism you can get while in school."

"The news was handled really well in '71 and I don't plan any big changes with the exception of trying to assign the major news stories equally among the staff members."

Betsey Bell, a junior majoring in journalism and minoring in broadcasting, has been appointed the position previously held by Ray Walker as academics editor.

"I cover the faculty senate meetings and publicize anything academic such as new courses offered at Eastern," said Miss Bell. "This is wonderful experience and I'm glad to have this opportunity. You learn the proper etiquette of journalism through your own mistakes and you meet and learn about new people who in turn teach you something."

In place of organizations editor, Dianna Coleman, is Marla Sample, a law enforcement major from Louisville. All club and organization news is submitted to her for the Club-tivity column.

"It just goes to show," said

Miss Sample, "that journalism is a good thing no matter what your major is. I took it in order to help me with the police reports that I will be doing because officers have to write them up every day and with my Progress experience I feel like I'll do a much better job."

URE March 4

The Undergraduate Record Examination will be given to seniors March 4 in the Ferrell Room of the Combs Building.

The test is free and is required for everyone wishing to attend graduate school at Eastern.

Anyone interested in taking the exam should register at the Institutional Research Office, fourth floor, Jones Building, before Jan. 31.

For June Graduates

Job Hunting To Get Easier

Next June's college graduates may find themselves a little better off than this year's counterparts, according to an article by Robert L. Jacobson in the Chronicle of Higher Education.

Two of the three surveys consulted indicated that the job outlook will be much better than last year, while the other concluded that jobs would be as hard (or harder) to find than in 1971.

The College Placement Council found that 835 employers in business, industry, and government anticipate the hiring of five percent more graduates this year than last.

A 26 percent decrease in the job market from the 1970 figures was noted in a comparable survey conducted last year.

Ph. D. recipients may find job openings increasing by as much as 30 percent, and bachelor's degree holders may expect a nine percent increase over 1971 figures. Holders of master's degrees, however, will have to look even harder, as a five percent decrease is expected.

A survey by Frank S. Endicott, placement director at Northwestern University, showed that 160 corporations expected to hire 11 percent more men with bachelor's degrees but three percent fewer holders of master's degrees.

The overall job outlook for women is a possible 15 percent increase, according to the Endicott survey.

Fifty-four percent of 185 companies surveyed indicated that their general business outlook would be much better this year than last. A poll of similar corporations last year noted only a 28 percent increase over their 1970 outlook.

Placement officers at the University of Michigan compiled the third survey, which predicted another bad year for the job-hunting graduate.

According to the Michigan State poll, job opportunities will drop by about 1.8 percent for recipients of bachelor's degrees; 12.4 percent for holders of a master's; and 26.8 percent for Ph. D.'s.

In short, the survey, which polled 346 employers in business, industry, and government, indicated that the job market will be equal to last years, or worse.

Company recruiting at colleges and universities are down this year, attributable in part to a huge increase of job applicants. The Endicott survey indicated that only 20 of 185 companies planned to contact more colleges this year than last.

Journalists Attend KPA Meeting

A group of journalism students, accompanied by Glen Kleine, assistant professor of journalism, attended a meeting of the 103rd annual Kentucky Press Association held in Lexington Saturday.

Journalism students from Eastern and the University of Kentucky were recognized prior to the legislative panel. The following legislators participated in the panel:

Senate Majority Leader, Walter "Dee" Huddleston; Speaker of the House, Norbert Blume and Senate Minority Floor leader, Norman Farris.

According to Blume, "the legislature is still not an equal branch of government as the constitution designed it to be... It is utterly ridiculous to expect us to handle everything in 60 days." He mentioned that the legislature was not properly staffed, and that the public does not see the work and accomplishments achieved.

Senator Farris said that efforts have been made to facilitate the task of the press in covering all legislative meetings. He said, "I am sincerely convinced that the people have a right to know about their business, and you people are the most qualified to inform them."

Concerning the role of Republicans in the legislature under a Democratic administration he stated, "Republicans are proud to accept their responsibilities. The burden of the Republican at this time is unique."

Regarding the responsibilities of the press, Farris said, "Many times the public is not getting an accurate picture of the work of the general assembly. I'm not suggesting that anything should be glossed

Colonels Smash Western, 96-78

BY JIM HOUSE
News Editor

It was clear at about 7:30 p.m. Monday night that it was gonna be one of those nights.

Eastern's Colonels trotted onto the floor to the tune of a deafening roar, which, like old soldiers, never died. It did not even fade away. It just got a little louder.

It didn't matter that the starting lineup could not be heard—everyone in the place knew who these guys were and what they were there for.

The Colonels, featuring an explosive running offense and a tenacious man-to-man defense, blasted Western Kentucky's lackluster Hilltoppers, 96-78.

'Eating Out Of Our Hands'

The win gives the Colonels a 3-1 Ohio Valley Conference record and a tie for the top spot with Tennessee Tech, forcing a showdown Saturday night in Cookeville.

The 'Toppers made an early run at keeping their dominance over Eastern alive. The Colonels hadn't won since the 1968-69 season mostly due to the hot shooting of Jerome Perry, who fired in four straight in the early going.

Western coach Jim Richards said he thought his team "had Eastern eating out of our hands" as the 'Tops built a seven-point lead with 9:02 left in the first half.

Bryant Returns

By intermission, it was evident that the Colonels were, indeed, eating out of Western's hands. In fact, the bite went clear up to the elbows as George Bryant got his hands on a basketball for the first time in a week, and tossed in two long jumpers to help the Colonels to a 43-38 halftime lead.

Bryant, who has been suffering from the flu and did not play in the Colonels 85-53 romp over Middle Tennessee, scored 7 points in his brief stint.

Eastern continued where it left off in the first half by scoring the first seven points of the second stanza before the 'Toppers could so much as call time out, and did not let up until the final buzzer.

Charlie Mitchell, Eastern's super forward tossed in 26 points to lead everybody in scoring. He connected on 11 of 22 from the field with his patented lazy jumper, usually from 15 to 20 feet out.

Big Dan Argabright put together his second straight near-perfect game, scoring 19 points and hauling down 10 rebounds. He also stopped Ray Bowerman, Western's 6-9 center, who had only nine points.

Charlie Brunner, subbing for Bryant for the second straight game, had a great defensive night, holding cat-quick Rex Bailey to just five points.

Dunagan Silences 'Gun'

Brunner also collected 17 points on short jump shots and twisting layups.

The biggest man on the court, however, was Daryl Dunagan, who at 6-5, held Western's big gun, Jerry Dunn, to only seven points. Dunn had been averaging more than 21 points per game until he ran into Dunagan.

Eastern Coach Guy Strong called it "another great team effort," but singled out Charlie Brunner's superb play. "Brunner has given us a tremendous effort," said Strong. "He has shot tremendously well." Brunner has hit 12 of his 18 field goal attempts and hasn't missed from the line in six tries.

Strong Praises Crowd

Argabright has apparently gained the confidence of the coaching staff because, according to Strong, "Our crowd did a great job of picking our team up and we just wish we had this same kind of enthusiasm every time we played at home."

The crowd of 8,100 also drew praise from Strong. "Our crowd did a great job of picking our team up and we just wish we had this same kind of enthusiasm every time we played at home."

It's going to be hard not to be enthusiastic over a team like this one, Coach.

Legislature Debates U of L's Status

The University of Louisville apparently won't become Kentucky's second major university—nor will it be equal to Eastern and the state's three other regional schools.

This is the majority feeling of the members of the Kentucky General Assembly, particularly in the state Senate as it was revealed in a story in The Louisville Courier-Journal last week.

The status of U of L on the state scale will be short of that held by the University of Kentucky, but higher than the rank of the four regional universities.

At the present, UK is called the "principal state institution for the conduct of statewide research and service programs." A bill in the Senate will limit U of L's programs in research and service. It is, of course, subject to legislative approval.

However, U of L, with its professional schools—namely its schools of law and medicine—will be "number 2" in the state, and the indication of some legislators and the officials of the university are that it will be "trying harder."

Sen. Gibson Downing, a Lexington Democrat, is chairman of the Interim Commission on Higher Education—a commission that has studied the problems of higher education since the legislature last met in 1970.

Downing brought his commission to Eastern early last fall to learn the feelings of Eastern President Robert R. Martin. Dr. Martin has cautioned the legislature for some time about the financial burden that U of L might place on the state since its change from a "private" to a "public" school two years ago.

Downing expressed similar feelings in a Progress interview last September. Last week, with one member abstaining, the education commission voted 4 to 2 to give U of L what Downing calls "quasi-regional" standing.

Those who opposed the move are members of the House of Representatives from Louisville.

Another matter in higher education relative to the problems of financing the state's schools is the proposed merger of the Chase Law School in Cincinnati with Northern Kentucky State College in Covington.

In its 1972-74 budget request, NKSC requested no funds from the state to operate the law school, the merger finally passing its court test some two weeks ago. A bill introduced by Downing would prevent Northern from ever receiving state money for the law school.

College tuition was also the study of the commission. U of L presently charges in-state students $1,050 per year in tuition—some $750 more than a Kentucky student would pay to attend Eastern for two semesters.

A suggestion to the committee would raise in-state tuition at the four regional schools (including EKV) by some $100 per year, and permit U of L to lower its rates—a proposal vigorously opposed by Dr. Martin. Apparently, this will be the commission's recommendation.

WELL HENRY, LET MARCUS WELBY TRY TO TOP OUR ACT!

Education's Goals Are Not Necessarily Utilitarian

Editor's Note: This article was written by Dr. R.G. Chrisman, professor of economics at Eastern.

There are some people who contend that the sole function of knowledge and education is that which contributes to some so-called "useful" purpose. This utilitarian philosophy is certainly not in accord with the thinking of John Stuart Mill who once said: "Men are men before they are lawyers or physicians or manufacturers; if you make them capable and sensible men, they will make themselves capable and sensible lawyers of physicians or manufacturers." It is the opinion of the writer that Mill was correct in his viewpoint.

If there is preparation for a specialty only, where does a person stand? It is highly probable that under automation every job, even the simplest tasks, will change radically and frequently. It, therefore, becomes highly important that once a person has demonstrated his mastery of one job that he be ready to tackle something for which he was not prepared. To do this successfully requires fertility of thought and the ability to adapt oneself to a world of fluid possibilities.

It is a liberal education that provides breadth and depth to specialty training and technical proficiency. In addressing the graduating students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Dr. Clarence B. Randall, Chairman of the Board of Inland Steel Company said: "I employ men for their proven capacity to learn. And in the steel industry I care not whether the man masters metallurgy of the Greek classics as long as he has that final intellectual capacity. I want the precision found in the metallurgist but I want also the power to appreciate the logic and clarity of expression of the Greek philosophers, for both those qualities are required in business."

Liberal education can not justly be looked upon as something dry, withered, and sterile. I sincerely believe that the most likely way to cultivate the bigness of mind needed for real success in business, as well as other types of work, is through the liberal studies. By studying the liberal arts, a person can enlarge his understanding and deepen his insight.

A mastery of the liberal art courses will help to develop accuracy in observation, alertness in seizing upon the main points of a new subject, and discrimination in separating the important from the insignificant in great masses of facts. The liberal studies contribute to mental power in situations which are unpredictable in detail. The responsibility of a man to his job, to society, and to himself can be properly discharged only if he knows and understands what is going on around him.

Granting the need for a good liberal education, what should be studied in order to acquire it? Originally, the liberal arts, or the arts which were appropriate to a free man, included several: grammar, rhetoric, logic, music, arithmetic, geometry, and astronomy. It should be noted that the objective in teaching the liberal arts courses was not simply to fill the memory with facts, but to help the students develop the ability to use their mind, to develop intellectual curiosity, taste, moral principles and imagination.

Today, the scope of the liberal arts has broadened to include such disciplines as literature, languages, and the fine arts; however, the fundamental objective underlying their pursuit is unchanged. The courses in liberal arts equip a person with the basic powers of decision and action.

These fundamental powers are applicable not only to selecting a career and a firm with which to work, but to all of the important and varied aspects of life, including the ability to deal adequately with events that were unforeseen. These are human resources which if not developed result in a failure of making the optimum use of one of the greatest potentialities of mankind.

Through liberal education the accumulated thought and all the experiences of human beings are ours for the taking. Out of these we evolve principles. Principles may be defined as personal rules of conduct which we have accepted after tasting their validity.

Like everything else in existence, from atoms to the stars, business and the professions are governed by principles, not by chance. The business man, the lawyer, the doctor, the teacher, the minister, and others must be able to apply old principles to new challenges.

In subsequent practice the men will have forgotten your particular details; but they remember by an unconscious common sense how to apply principles to immediate circumstances.

Happiness Is A Win Over Western

Happiness is winning an important basketball game.

Happiness is seeing an overflow crowd in Alumni Coliseum rally the Colonels on.

Happiness is knocking off the defending conference champs, but it was called ecstasy Monday night for all Eastern fans, players and coaches as the Colonels not only gained revenge over Western Kentucky but did it in convincing fashion.

The game wasn't built up as highly as last year which saw one of the wildest games in the hotly contested rivalry that Western won 94-93 and clinched the Ohio Valley Conference crown enroute to a third place national finish. But you couldn't have told that to any of the 8100 screaming fans packed into the Coliseum.

One coach put it well by exclaiming he would be excited even if we were playing Western in a game of marbles.

The electricity which is generated by the oldest rivalry in the state seems to captivate the fans every year, and Monday night, Eastern's partisan crowd did itself proud except for a brief moment prior to the game when the EKV rooters began a chant which probably raised the eyebrow of President Robert R. Martin, but the incident was quickly forgotten as the ensuing battle began.

From the moment the Colonels ran onto the floor you could just sense this was the game which would break the recent Western domination of the series.

Great teamwork has become very evident in Eastern's last two games. Early season expectations are now beginning to be realized and perhaps 1972 will be the year of the Colonels. With continued support such as that given last Monday the OVC championship flag will once again drape with splendor in Alumni Coliseum after a seven year absence.

Keep up the teamwork, too, fans by turning out again and again in large numbers and giving that vociferous support. With your help and the continuing improvement of the team, every remaining game can be one that ends with that great feeling of happiness.

"The New York Times called this book superior to (her earlier novel) I Never Promised You A Rose Garden." We agree."—Publishers' Weekly

Joanne Greenberg once had a dream in which God described the writers' hell: each author will have to live through eternity with the characters he created. "So He advised," said Mrs. Greenberg, "Write better books." And after I Never Promised You A Rose Garden, she wrote In This Sign.

Just as Joanne Greenberg earlier had made the closed world of the mentally ill accessible to more than 3,000,000 readers, with In This Sign she lets her readers "listen" to a side of life unknown to most of us: the silent world of the deaf.

Abel and Janice Ryder arrive in the city, newly graduated from a school for the handicapped, brimming with youthful dreams of leading a normal life. But the Ryders are exploited and shunned. They are forced to create their own world which threatens to come apart when they experience the miracle of their daughter Margaret's birth without their handicaps.

From Abel and Janice to Margaret to Margaret's son Marshall, In This Sign is a chronicle of a family's ultimate triumph over a hostile world through a deep and abiding love.

"Joanne Greenberg has taken the world of the deaf and made it an extension of everyone's experience...Writers were invented to produce books like this," said Christopher Lehmann Haupt in The New York Times.

"No reader can possibly remain untouched."—Kirkus Review

Two Profs Publish Paper

A long paper by two Eastern biology professors on the effects of strip mining on small stream fishes in east-central Kentucky will be published soon in the "Proceedings of the Biological Society of Washington."

Drs. Brantley A. Branson and Donald L. Batch say their work shows the fish populations of two small creeks were reduced or eliminated by strip-mine silt. Their work continues to determine if the populations are able to recover.

Branson has recently published several other scientific articles, and he and Batch are co-authors of several published articles.

Two works by Branson have appeared in "Nautilus," one on a new slug species from the Olympic Peninsula and the other on the Biogeography of the Ozarkian plateau. A Branson article on an ecoenvironmental curriculum for secondary school and college freshmen is scheduled to appear in the next issue of the "Journal of Environmental Education."

Articles by Branson and Batch include one on Kentucky mollusks in "Journal of Sterkiana" and another on the reasons for finding two small fishes in the Dix River Drainage in the American Midland Naturalist. This work was supported by ECU's Research Office.

Seminar Scheduled

About 25 Eastern students are expected to take part in World Affairs Seminar at the United Nations in New York Feb. 19-26.

The central theme of the seminar, sponsored by the ECU Political Science Department and the ECU club of the Council on International Relations and United Nations (CIRUNA), will be "Communist China in World Politics."

'Treebeard' Offers Service To Students

BY BETSEY BELL
Academics Editor

Instead of complaining, as many students do, that Richmond has nothing to offer them, Mike Laycock has made his contribution to the community and students. For the past two years he has managed "Treebeard," a boutique-like gift shop.

Now located on South Second Street, the shop was started by Laycock and four other students in 1969. Laycock said, "We were bored and there was no place like this in Richmond."

He said that three of the students left Richmond, leaving himself and Mary Layford, history major from Dayton, to manage the business. They began with an initial investment of $250 each. They made the articles themselves and had people work on consignment.

Laycock said, "At first we were making just enough to keep the business going. Now that business has grown we're able to support the shop and have enough income to pay for our room and board." He and Miss Layford average approximately eighty cents an hour.

Laycock said that some of the obstacles in running the shop were licenses and state and federal taxes. Mary's mother keeps their books so that part isn't so bad.

Many of the items available in the store are bought from companies in New York, San Francisco and Florida. "If we don't know how well an item will sell, we order small quantities," explained Laycock. "We've never made any really bad mistakes in buying merchandise."

He said that some of the merchandise is still handmade. "Mary makes some of the dresses we sell and creates a lot of the leather goods," said Laycock. He said that they have been looking at shops in New York, Denver, Boulder, Colorado; and also in Canada besides attending the Ohio Gift Show.

The shop's biggest income is from the college students. Laycock said that about ninety-five percent of their sales are to the students. They sell mostly to girls and it's worried them that they don't have enough selections for guys.

Laycock explained that he could have done better in another city but that he did have a good location. He said, "Our daily average of sales is twice as much as last years."

Candles are their biggest sales product. Laycock said that other popular items are fishnets, paper lampshades, and wind chimes. He added, "We have some stationary coming in called 'Earth Notes'. This is stationary made from recycled paper."

Laycock is planning to teach after graduation. Undecided on where he will go he said, "I plan on opening a shop wherever I go to teach, adding that he's looking for a new manager for the shop."

Bloodmobile Visits Feb. 8

The bloodmobile will visit Richmond's First Christian Church, Tuesday, February 8, from 12 to 5 p.m. They plan to fill a quota of 300 pints.

The net quota due in 1971-72 for this chapter of the Red Cross is 1,375 pints. The usual quota per visit—there are six visits scheduled (four town and two Eastern visits)—is 230 pints.

However, only 190 pints were collected on October 6 and 222 pints from the Eastern visit which resulted in a percentage of 90. All chapters are expected to achieve 100 per cent or are subject to rejection from the program; therefore the visit quota had to be increased.

A critical shortage of blood that developed over the holidays caused the Regional Red Cross Center in Louisville to collect blood on Saturday when it is usually closed. The Center is concerned that donors might let down after the current critical need is met, and the need goes on continually as the Center serves 37 counties, 56 hospitals and one and one-half million people in Kentucky and southern Indiana. This calls for a weekly donation of from 1,200 to 1,500 pints of blood.

Kleine Is Delegate To Journalism Council

Glen Kleine, assistant professor of journalism at Eastern is one of more than 550 officers and delegates of Phi Delta Kappa who met in the fraternity's 33rd Biennial Council at the University of Illinois from December 27 through 30.

Fraternity in the world, Phi Delta Kappa enrolls 85,000 educational leaders in 390 chapters located in the United States and Canada. There are single chapters in Mexico, Puerto Rico, Germany, and Turkey.

Phi Delta Kappa's chief purpose is to advance publicly supported democratic education through research, service, and leadership.

This council voted down a proposal to admit women educators to Phi Delta Kappa, but authorized cooperation in several projects with three women's organizations, Delta Kappa Gamma, Pi Lambda Theta, and Alpha Delta Kappa.

To expand further the fraternity's professional program the council approved an operating budget of nearly $2 million and authorized a $200,000 to $300,000 expansion of the headquarters building in Bloomington, Ind. These sums represent a 50 per cent increase over current biennial expenditures and require an annual dues increase from $8 to $11.

Kleine served on the Publications Committee which considered a publications program which cost the fraternity in excess of $250,000 per biennial.

The council elected a Phoenix, Ariz., school administrator, Howard M. Soule, to serve as fraternity vice president and president-elect.

Toppers Finally Fall

They finally did it. After two years of frustration, the Colonels knocked off Western's proud Hilltoppers. And they didn't only beat them, they zonked them right through the concrete blocks of Alumni Coliseum before a loud and ecstatic capacity crowd which probably contained a lot of people who had never seen Eastern beat Western in anything before.

You could almost sense what was going to happen when the game first began, when the Colonels' Daryl Dunagan missed two or three crisp shots, seemingly because he was hustling so hard and barreling toward the hoop so fast he couldn't get the ball to drop. Western got ahead for awhile during the early part of the game, but at the very outset you could tell who came to play and who didn't.

Dunagan didn't let his shooting problems bother him. His determination and dogged defensive work on Western's star forward, Jerry Dunn, was a key factor in the Colonels' ability to overcome an early deficit and blow the Toppers away. Dunn, in fact, did so little you hardly knew he was in the game. Somehow he managed seven points, but that was 13 below his season average and nowhere near the devastating show he put on here last year, scoring about 30 points in that unforgettable 94-93 thriller.

If there was a turning point, it was when George Bryant came into the game with Western up by seven or eight points midway through the first half. Billy Burton, who did his usual steady job, and surprising Charlie Brunker both played well all night, but the sight of the flu-bitten "King George," who had to sit out Saturday's Middle Tennessee game, coming off the bench ignited the already noisy crowd. Bryant came into the game, zinged in two of his patented jumpers, and the rout was on.

A word about Brunker: Once again coach Guy Strong has come up with a topnotch performer out of nowhere. Last year, it was Charley Elza; this year it was Charlie Brunker's turn as Monday night he was transformed from a career benchwarmer to an instant sensation.

For two seasons Brunker has picked up a lot

East Tennessee Here Monday

Colonels Battle Tech For Conference Lead

BY JOHN NELSON
Staff Writer

"The Pack is back and he's got Mud and Stone to throw to." This clever phrase tells the story of the 71-72 Tennessee Tech Golden Eagles. Three juniors-Wayne Pack, Al "Mud" Lewis, and Rich Stone-form what is said to be one of the deadliest triumvirates in the OVC. The remainder of the starting lineup is composed of two seniors-forward Dan Furlong and pivotman Maury Schwegman--each of whom started last season and averaged 17.5 and 13.8 points respectively.

The moral to this story, as far as Eastern is concerned, will be discovered after forty minutes of scrappy basketball in Memorial Gymnasium at Cookeville, Tennessee this Saturday, January 29. Each team will be looking for it's fourth conference win in five tries, and hoping to take the lead in the OVC.

Coach Connie Inman is in his third season at Tech and is hoping for his first successful one. He is very optimistic in his outlook and says, "I think we have one of the best guard combinations around." The combination he is referring to is that of Wayne Pack, a 6-0, 160 junior from Indianapolis, Indiana, and "Mud" Lewis, a 6-2, 175 junior from Wheelwright, Kentucky.

Pack is considered one of the finest point men ever at Tech and is also respected for his lightning-quick passes and fancy ballhandling. He was one of only two sophomores making first team All-OVC last year. Lewis was Tech's top scorer with a 17.6 average in 70-71 and set a school and Conference record with 32 consecutive free throws made. He is the Eagle's best defensive player and is well known for accuracy on long-range shots.

The Golden Eagles now have a 3-1 conference record and are tied with Eastern for the lead.

Among their conference victories is a surprising win at Western and a January 24th defeat against Austin Peay (94-77) which came when Tech hit almost 54 percent of their floor shots.

Returning this season is injury plagued Rich Stone, a 6-5 200 forward from Chattanooga, Tennessee. He hurt his ankle last season in the first three seconds of the first game and was benched for the remainder of the season. In 69-70 he led the team in rebounding and was the number two scorer. The coaches feel he is much stronger on the boards than he was two years ago.

Bucs Invade Monday

Madison Brooks began his 24th coaching season with the East Tennessee Buccaneers displaying an outstanding 350-236 won-lost record. He has had only six losing seasons and completed last year with an even 12-12. Coach Brooks' record makes him sixth among the nation's active coaches.

This year the Bucs are depending on better shooting, adequate defense and good speed even though they lost five veterans to graduation. Among the sophomores which coach Brooks will be placing his hopes on against Eastern, this Monday, January 31, in Alumni Coliseum, are Henry White, 6-2, 170 and Ron Mitchell, 6-8, 175.

White will be giving a major boost to the offense with his deadly shooting. He averaged 26.2 points as a frosh and recently scored 21 points in the Bucs' upset over Murray. Defensively White needs improvement but will see plenty of action regardless. Ron Mitchell has great potential, giving added strength on the boards and possessing a deadly shot.

East Tennessee is now 1-3 in conference play. Their lone win came against Murray and their losses to Middle Tennessee, Western, and Austin Peay.

EASTERN'S BASKETBALL CAPTAINS, Billy Burton (center) and Daryl Dunagan (right), present the first place trophy the Colonels won in the All-College Classic at Oklahoma City in December to Eastern President Dr. Robert R. Martin. The presentation was held after Eastern's 96-78 victory over Western last Monday night.

Middle Falls 85-53

Eastern Belts Blue Raiders

By JIM HOUSE

It was supposed to be a defensive game. Middle Tennessee, after all, had the best defense in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Eastern's defense was supposed to be strong, too, but after eleven games, it was questionable.

It was not questionable Saturday night, though, as the Colonels handed the Blue Raiders their first conference loss, 85-53.

Billy Burton, who became a father only two days before, let Middle Tennessee guard Herman Sykes score in double figures. Sykes poured in 10 big points, "only" eleven below his season average.

Charlie Brunker, (the left-handed guy) starting his first game ever for Eastern in place of George Bryant who had the flu and watched from the sidelines, turned in a tremendous defensive game, too, holding Middle's Mason Bonner to just six points.

Charlie Mitchell allowed Jim Drew, who was averaging 14.9 points a game, to hit only 3 of 12

EASTERN'S FIRST HOME WRESTLING match of the season was a success as the Colonel matmen downed Morehead last Saturday in Alumni Coliseum Eastern took this first of three matches this season by a 22-13 score.

Wrestlers Whip Morehead, Wilberforce

The Colonels' wrestling team showed fine form in its home opener against Morehead this past Saturday. This was the first meeting of the two teams in three encounters scheduled for this season and the 22-13 win gave ECU grapplers the upper hand.

The Colonels' 118 pounder Bill Froman started things rolling with a 7-2 decision over his Eagle opponent, followed by a 8-1 win by ECU 126 pounder and captain Dick Loewenstine.

Morehead won the 134 lb. battle by a decision and in the 142 lb. encounter ECU's Mac Nickson drew with his Eagle opponent. At this point the Colonels held a slight 8 to 5 lead when Marvin Alstott, ECU 150 lb., remained undefeated by pinning his Morehead opponent in the third period. Alstott's pin gave the Colonels a 14 to 5 margin over the Eagles.

The Morehead matmen won the next two weights, 158 lb. and 167 lb., by close decisions and closed in on the Colonels' lead. The most exciting match of the afternoon matched ECU 177 pounder Chris Reeder against Morehead's Steve Morgan.

Reeder Remains Unbeaten

After the lead switched hands several times Reeder finally went ahead late in the third period and held on to a 12 to 9 decision. This victory enabled Reeder to remain undefeated and upped the Colonels' lead to 17-11.

In the battle of the brothers at 190 lbs. ECU Ken Bostelman, with a takedown late in the third period, and the Eagles David Bostelman wrestled to a 2 to 2 draw. In the finale Eastern's Hwt. Randy Randolph decisively won his Morehead opponent 4 to 3.

Alstott Wrestler Of Week

Marvin Alstott's pin over his Eagle opponent earned him the honor of wrestler of the week. Alstott is a sophomore from New Albany, Indiana. Marvin is undefeated on the season and two time Kentucky AAU wrestling champ at 149.5 lbs.; each time being named outstanding wrestler of the tournament.

This 22 to 13 victory by the Colonels wrestlers upped their season record to 3-1.

The Eastern matmen venture to the University of Dayton this weekend to wrestle in a triple dual against the University of Dayton, Morehead State University and Cedarville College.

Wilberforce Overpowered

The ECU grapplers got off the a flying start second semester by overpowering the Wilberforce matmen 36 to 6 in a match at Wilberforce, Ohio last Tuesday night. The Colonels won 8 of the 10 matches, 3 by pins, on their way to their second victory of the season. This win put the Colonels record at 2-1 on the season.

Wilberforce spotted the Colonels a 6-0 lead by forfeiting the 118 lb. weight class. Then the ECU wrestlers went on to win the next three weight classes, Dick Loewenstine-126 lb., Dan Nettle-134 lb. and Mac Nickson-142 lb., by decisions.

Colonels Take 21-0 Lead

Marvin Alstott, one of the two ECU wrestlers undefeated this season, scored his first pin of the season in 1:05 of the second period. This gave the Colonels a 21-0 lead.

The Wilberforce matmen won the next two weights, 158 lb. and 167 lb., by close decisions. Chris Reeder, 177 lb., kept his record unblemished by scoring a 13-4 win over his opponent. Then Ken Bostelman, 190 lb., and Randy Randolph, Hwt., finished off the outclassed Wilberforce wrestlers by pinning their opponents in the second period of both matches.

ECU 190 pounder Ken Bostelman was named wrestler of this week for his pin over the Wilberforce 190 pounder. Ken is a freshman from Dayton, Ohio who was matched up against his brother Dave in 190 lb. match when the ECU matmen met Morehead.

Colonels Beat Middle Tennessee

Daryl Dunagan and Dan Argabright held Terry Johnson and 6-10 Chester Brown to six points apiece, while leading the Colonels offensively. Dunagan topped everybody in scoring with 22 points and Argabright pitched in 18.

Mitchell, Bruner, and 'Papa'

Burton collected 13 points apiece. Burton also had 13 assists.

Widest Margin Since Berea

The 32-point rout was the worst in three seasons for a Middle Tennessee team, and the widest margin for the Colonels since they bombed Berea, 111-77, in last season's opener.

Middle Tennessee led only once in the contest, at 3-2, before Dunagan tossed in two free throws to put the Colonels on top for keeps. With Argabright and Dunagan providing most of the firepower, Eastern raced to a 38-22 half-time lead.

Dunagan scored 15 of his 22 points in the second half, and will most likely maintain his lead in the conference field goal percentage category. He connected on 9 of 12 against the Raiders.

Dunagan also had 11 rebounds, and Argabright grabbed nine.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Billy Burton on the arrival of a Little All-American. Let's hope Marty Joe follows in his dad's footsteps.

Eastern Zonks Hilltoppers

more splinters than points, but because of Bryant and Wade Upchurch having the flu bug he was thrust into a starting role. All you can say is that he made the most of his big chance. The senior guard, after a shaky start, settled down and came through with 17 points in a brilliant performance that made everybody who was wondering why he was starting and even playing at all quit wondering.

It wouldn't be fair, though, in talking about the Western game not to mention Charlie Mitchell, the high scorer of the contest, who's been playing super all year. Mitch looks like a cinch for All-OVC this year, something he probably deserved but didn't get last year. And Dan Argabright, who admitted he was afraid of being benched again if he didn't produce, sparkled on offense; it seems like every time he gets his hands on the ball now when he's heading for the hoop the ball ends up in the hole.

The Colonels, with two big wins this weekend, seem to be in good shape in the conference race, considering they haven't lost a home game yet and the way the other teams are knocking each other off. Some big games coming up are with surprising Tennessee Tech at Tech this Saturday, and a week from Saturday when the Colonels go up to Morehead.

Frosh Squad Splits Two Weekend Games

BY JIM KURK
Sports Editor

The Eastern freshman basketball squad split a pair of games this past weekend, dropping a close 76-73 decision to Lee's Junior College on Saturday night and knocking off a stubborn Kentucky Business College 87-81 last Monday night.

Saturday night's contest with Lee's was close all the way, as the baby Colonels held a three point margin at halftime but were outscored by six in the second period. The shooting percentage and rebounding figures were almost as close as the final score, as Lee's shot 35.1 percent from the field compared to 37.6 for Eastern, but out rebounded the Colonels by a narrow 48-45 count.

The Smith boys—Ronnie, a 6 foot guard from Palmyra, Indiana, and Chester, a 6-5 forward from Louisville Male, were high scorers for Eastern and for the game with 22 points apiece. Also in double figures for the Colonel frosh were guard Howard Blakey with 14 and center Doug Murray with 12.

Against Kentucky Business College, the Colonel frosh pulled away to several good sized leads in the second half and threatened to turn the game into a runaway, but Kentucky Business failed to fold and cut the margin to four points late in the game although the colonels held on to win.

The story of this game was told at the foul line as Eastern converted 27 of 42 free throws to Kentucky Business's 11 of 16. Kentucky Business had a 35-30 edge in field goals but committed 27 personal fouls as compared to 11 for Eastern, and the Colonels held a big 60-45 rebounding edge.

Ronnie Smith had another outstanding game for the Colonel frosh as he collected a game high 31 points. The rest of the Eastern scoring was well balanced, as Chester Smith had 15 points (plus 19 rebounds), Larry Kalker 14 points, Jim Ratliff 12 and Howard Blakey 10.

Eels Take Third In Vanderbilt Invitational

BY JIM KURK
Sports Editor

The Eastern Eels traveled to Nashville this past weekend to participate in the Vanderbilt Invitational swimming meet. The Eels finished third in the meet with a score of 251½ points, with Vanderbilt finishing first with 274 and Georgia second with 255.

Rick Murphy, who anchored the 800 yard free relay which was, according to Eastern coach Donald Combs, "the most exciting event of the meet," and Tom Javins, who finished first in the 100 yard breaststroke, scored the most points for the Eels. Both have been selected the "Eel of the Meet," an award each has already won once before.

"We swam particularly well

Friday, the first day," said coach Combs, "and after Friday we were in second place, only 13½ points behind Vanderbilt, and Vanderbilt had already finished their best events. We qualified well Saturday morning, but on Saturday night for some reason we just ran out of gas and died."

"We should have finished second," he continued, "and I think any one of the top three teams could have won the meet if they were swimming in their home pool."

CROC Gains Collegiate Support

BY JILL BARTHEN
Staff Writer

Tired of ridiculous, far-out television commercials? Join CROC and get together with other members to stamp out the worst product advertisements.

The Committee For Rejection of Obnoxious Commercials (CROC) was founded by a Minneapolis public relations man last fall and has already gained the support of over 1000 members from coast to coast.

"We've got memberships from the grade school set to retirees," said Bill Bentzin, originator of the movement. The organization hopes to improve television commercial quality by voting the "10 Biggest CROCs of the Year"—the worst top ten TV advertisements. Winners of the CROC awards will be nationally publicized.

Besides calling attention to the worst commercials, CROC will justly recognize those they feel are good.

"College students I've talked with feel very strongly about improving commercials," said Bentzin. "They're much too sophisticated to be impressed by the ridiculous things that some of the agencies resort to in commercials."

The cost of membership in CROC is $1.00 plus materials to start your own anti-commercial campaign. College student members receive eight "Your Commercial is a CROC" protest cards to warn sponsors that their commercial may be heading for a CROC award; a membership card; a "Let's Get CROCED Together" button; and a "Crush Revoltingly Obnoxious Commercials" poster. This membership also entitles the right to issue a ballot in the spring voting for the ten worst commercials.

The poster, covered with graffiti of various CROC favorites, was designed by a Minneapolis College of Art and Design student. Another CROC art poster is currently being selected from entries of a CROC art competition last month.

To receive CROC membership, CROC materials, and a ballot for the spring contest, send $1.00 to COLLEGE CROC, Box 1022 C, Minneapolis, Minn. 55440.

Noted Scientist Visits Eastern This Week

Dr. Augustus L. Stanford will visit Eastern's campus on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 27 and 28 as a Visiting Scientist in Physics under the auspices of the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Institute of Physics.

Dr. Stanford is a native of Macon, Georgia, received the Ph. D. degree in Physics from Georgia Institute of Technology in 1958, and is presently an associate professor of Physics at Georgia Tech. He was a research staff consultant for six years with the Sperry Rand Corporation.

He is presently engaged in research in the fields of biophysics, solid state physics, nuclear spectroscopy, ferroelectric and pyroelectrics, and phonon scatter in solids.

During his visit at Eastern, Dr. Stanford will engage in informal discussions with students and faculty members

With New Facilities

Benson Sees Strengthening Of Department

BY JILL BARTHEN
Staff Writer

"We foresee strengthening of the department in terms of quality in production, enrollment, style in production, and number of productions," said Dr. Richard L. Benson, chairman of the department of drama and speech.

Dr. Benson was referring to two major changes in Eastern's theatrical facilities. The Pearl Buchanan Theater is being renovated at the present time with hopes of re-opening in the spring term of 1973.

"We are anticipating the completion of the new theater during the spring term of 1974," he said. The theater will be enclosed within the Jane Campbell Fine Arts Building, now under construction between the Burrier Building and Foster Music Building.

Extensive changes in Pearl Buchanan will create a new concept in stage design. "There will no longer be a proscenium arch and an openess stage production," said Dr. Benson. By ripping out the original wavy walls, which gave the stage a rounded off effect, it will now extend six additional feet on each side to the regular walls.

Front modular step units can be removed or inserted, allowing flexibility and more freedom of production. Rooms for make-up, a stage balcony, and costume construction will be located in the rear of the building.

"In addition we're putting in entirely new seating, carpeting, tile under the seats, new paint job, new decorations, and lighting system," he said.

After the completion of the new theatre, Pearl Buchanan Theater will be an experimental theater, used for student directed plays.

Dr. Benson worked alone with the architect to design the new theater in the Jane Campbell Fine Arts Building. Compiling past research, he studied several alternatives to replace the original design. "I worked with original design and adapted them to a more workable theater," he said.

The stage construction will be unique in that many drama styles can be produced. "... that is, not purely a proscenium arch—not purely a thrust stage theater, nor purely an arena theater, but it has the capability of being all of these," he explained.

Basketball Clinic

Dr. Peggy Stanaland, Professor of Physical Education, conducted a clinic for officials of women's basketball recently at Transylvania University in Lexington.

Approximately 65 women basketball referees from Kentucky attended the clinic, 15 of whom have achieved the National Rating in basketball officiating under the auspices of the Officiating Service Area of the Division of Girls' and Women's Sports.

The purpose of the clinic was to bring officials up-to-date on rule changes and new or modified officiating techniques.

Participants had sessions devoted to philosophy, pre-game duties, court positioning, dress code, and rules interpretation.

A special feature of the all-morning clinic was a "stop action" simulated game during which six different national officials demonstrated their duties on the floor.

Dr. Stanaland holds a National Honorary Rating in basketball officiating and has been an advocate of quality officiating in women's sports for a number of years.

Fanfare

Eastern fans took many shapes and sizes last Monday night as they cheered the Colonels to a convincing win over their arch-rival, Western. Not all fans were Eastern students, as shown by a little boy sitting in rapt attention. They did, though, have the same enthusiasm, whether they were students in the crowd or whether they were cheerleaders on the floor wearing crazy hats.

Progress Wants

Staff Members

The Progress is presently accepting staff members for the spring semester.

All students interested in writing, photography, layout design, copyreading or otherwise volunteering talent to The Progress staff members should attend any regular staff meeting on Thursday at 5 p.m. or call the office at 625-3106.

Staff meetings are held in The Progress office, 417 Jones Building. All areas are still open for interested students.

auditorium itself, will seat 463 patrons. The foremost 93 seats are custom made swivel chairs "for ease and comfort of the audience." They are also movable and convertible into an arena or "theater in the round" stage.

To complete the effect, chairs will be placed on the regular stage, the stage apron and the two side stages. This will allow only 250 around the arena.

"The theatre will be completely equipped," he said. This will include adequate scene shop for construction and painting of scenic units, adequate costume room for construction of costumes, generous storage area, men and women's dressing rooms, and the traditional Green Room.

The Green Room is used to entertain guests of the actors after the production. It will be equipped with kitchenette, sofas, and book cases.

The waiting room will be in direct conjunction with both dressing rooms and the stage. These facilities are on the same level as the stage.

A lobby "of generous proportion" will provide the main entrance into the auditorium. It contains coat room, ticket office, house manager's office, and bathrooms.

"An interesting feature as a whole will be the art gallery located right off the lobby," he said. The patrons before and during the show will have access to the art gallery. "This helps to tie the art and theatre departments together," said Benson.

The loft on the upper level will contain a small prop, storage and repair room for the lighting equipment. Another feature will be the location of lighting and a sound booth from a room at the house front; thus, the operator will be able to see action on stage.

George A. Robinson, instructor of drama, is responsible for design of lighting, stage and shop equipment in the new theater. Joan L. Richman, instructor of drama, is responsible for the costume shop.
