Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College
RICHMOND, KENTUCKY

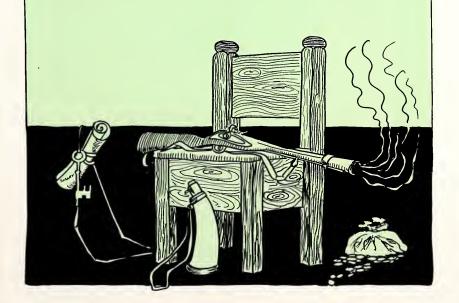

Dedicated

MEREDITH J. COX, B. S., M. A.

Who for many years has been a true and loyal friend of Eastern, serving her untiringly in whatsoever way he could. To his deep and lasting love for Eastern and to the high ideals he personifies as a man, do we, the class of '31, respectfully and admiringly dedicate this volume of the Milestone.

The picture at the top is a view of Eastern's campus as it looked in 1898 when it was the bome of Central University. In 1901 the Preshyterian institution was removed to Danville, Kentucky, and united with Centre College. Below is a view of Eastern in 1931.

The difference between these two pictures really lies in the story of the years between—the story of clucational pioneers who were as bold as the pirates of old; whose treasure chests contained the gold of knowledge. No pirate's adventures could have been more full of hazards, more in need of vision, courage and daring, more fraught with that which could lure the dreamer that the adventures of each leader who cast his lot with the fortunes of Eastern.

On March 21, 1906, Governor Beckham signed the bill that created two State Normal Schools in Kentucky. In April a commission was appointed to locate these schools. After visiting available sites, the commissioners met in Louisville on May 1, 1906 and named Richmond and Bowling Green as the homes of the two schools. The Board of Regents, appointed on May 9th, elected Dr. Ruric Nevel Boark to be the first President of the Eastern school.

After Dr. Roark's death in 1960 Mrs. Roark served as acting president for a year, and in 1910 Dr. John Grant Crabbe was elected. He served until 1916 when he resigned to become President of Teachers College, Greeley, Colorado. On September 5, 1916 the Board of Regents elected T. J. Coates, there of Rural Schools, to the presidency of the institution. After the death of President Coates, March 17, 1925. Dr. Homer E. Cooper served as acting president until June 1st of that year. Since that time Dr. H. L. Donovan, one time dean of the faculty of Eastern and at that time, Professor of Education in Peabedy College, has been President of Eastern.

Thus, these leaders served in their turn in the growth of the school, Thus, passed the first quarter of a century in its history. Changes other than these shown in the picture have followed its at—professional changes, size and morale of the student body, equipment, ideals, hopes and ambitions for the future that measure up to the best in American Education. A Teachers College fully accredited with membership in the Association of Kentucky Colleges and Universities, the Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges of the Southern States, and the American Association of Teachers Colleges; a Teachers College that is not content with its present; a teachers College with a future as well as a past.

Our Senior Class

"Shall Eastern prevail?
We say that she shall.
And our part we'll do
To push her on through
To glorious heights
Through shadow and lights."

The history of our class through the Junior year was recorded in previous volumes of the Milestone. At the end of that Junior year they took the pledge quoted above, and they now record here the things that the class of '31 have accomplished in attempting to fulfill that pledge.

This class claimed the largest enrollment of any graduating class of Eastern Teachers College. They claimed the partial accomplishment of one of Eastern's ideals, that the majority of their class were in continual residence at Eastern since their Freshmen year. As evidence of their part "To push her on through to glorious heights", various members of the class have assumed leadership in many campus activities. Members of the Class of '31 have served, this year, as presidents of the following organizations: Y. W. C. A., Y. M. C. A., Home Ec. Club, Sigma Tau Pi, and Sigma Lambda. The Editor of Eastern Progress, and Captain of the Football Team, were supplied by this Class of '31.

Toward the ideal of establishing customs that would become TRADITIONS at their Alma Mater, they have instituted this year a Senior Class Day, with a chapel program, luncheon, and an afternoon of entertainment. They selected a Senior Regalia and a standard invitation, and presented a Policy Book for the future classes of Eastern.

They have gone forward into various fields, holding high the standards of Eastern, always keeping in mind the helpful association of the faculty, and the camaraderic of a great student body.

The Class of '32

You must remember how you first came to college—young, untrammeled, ready to conquer the campus and assured of success. Nine months as a Frosh took most of that out of you, and you lost your cock-sure arrogance to a steadying quality that was often unexplainable, even to yourself. Your sophomore year drawing to a closs, you decided to do something about it, and so you grow very collegiate, affecting colors to shame the rainbow, nonchalant manners, and entirely too many cigarettes. The opposite sex took on an added importance; and, leafing was your major in which you made excellent grades. Remember? And then came summer vacation.

Before you realized it fall had come and you were back at Eastern again: a Junior. You saw friends, old Ben Adams, wearing his gold basket ball, Jimmie Ault (you heard he was matried), "Mac" McKinley, who was making a name for himself on the campus, and who you later elected your class president, Bill Melton, big and brown after a hard, well spent vacation. You saw Tommie Bennett, who had brought fame to your class the year before in the dramatic field, and big Bill Ramsey. There were the Hale bothers and they said they were determined to play bigger and better basket ball this year. You saw "Hee" Burns and Loraline Namie Shelton were lack. May Evelyn Allen, Z. T. Rice, Kenneth Canfield, Harry Cobb, Cyril Fields, Fred Folmer and dozens of others. These were only a few of the many you ran into every hour those last, warm, September days.

You settled down to studying, or more truthfully, going to classes, and every day you met new people.

It was during your first menth or two as a Junier that you began to do a lot of high powered (you called ith, flippantly) thinking. Life was no longer your plastic plaything; you were here to do something, and if you were true to yourself you did that. The chapel speakers who were really earnest men and women became something to listen to, and chapel was a bit more to you than an hour to steep and yawn through. Such words as purpose, goal, ain and ideals made an indentation on your brain.

You remember thrilling footlall games on days that were cool and crisp with a definite promise of the winter to come. A tea to welcome your new classmates was given and another honoring the basketball team, the members of which most all emanated from your Junior roll call.

You remember basketball games, exciting affairs and you must recall, too, that a great number of those games ended in victory for Eastern.

Your class had a guiding spirit these days for you had been extremely tortunate in having Miss Mahel Politic as your faculty advisor. She was a woman with ideas and ideals for each of you. There was nothing of the dictatorial in her guidance, and you noted, too, with your characteristically conting neverthens, that anotherity was cantinusly exercised. There was something very admirable and statong about Miss [oblit] when the property of something you had read one time of the ideal woman.

As spring came on slowly, subtly, it came to you that next year was your last as a college student. The mistakes, the joys, the heartaches and the pleasures of the pest three years passed quickly before you, and were buried to never again be ressurrected. Tomorrow, next year, all your future lay aheal, and you turned to it with a calculated assurance that you had watured, and developed in the omni-broadening school of experience. You said goodlye to a glorious and self-revealing period of your life—you were a Junior no longer.

The Class of '33

Since it is customary for classes to leave some written record of their achievements, we, the Sophomore Class of 1931, de herewith submit briefly and modestly the high lights in our illumined career at Eastern.

In the fall of 1929 we gathered here as freshmen, and, as all freshmen do, suffered good naturedly the taunts and jeers of our superiors, harboring as consolation the thought that it could not last forever.

The following year we again assembled here, but now we were Sophomores, one hundred fifty strong, a group varied in ideas, interests, ambitions, and intelligence, yet holding mutually the desire to make the Diploma Class of 1931 the most eminent for its accomplishments in the history of the institution. To lead us in this endeavor, we elected at our first class meeting Curtis Howard, President; Sam Routenberg, Vice-President; Louise Rutledge, Secretary; and Jennings Jackson, Treasurer.

It soon became evident that campus activities and the Sophomores were inseparable. Our girls easily captivated the most sought after men on the campus, and while our boys literally monopolized the fair sex, exercising the judgment of connoisseurs in selecting the fairest. Our group supplied leaders for the Alpha Zeta Kappa and the Glee Club, officials in various other organizations, and active members in every organized society on the Campus.

In athletics we did our part, furnishing several players for the football team and one man for our varsity quintet.

In entertainment we showed marked excellence in arrangement and planning, and several times sponsored much enjoyed social functions for the student body. In short, we have, under the guiding hand of our able sponsor, Miss Flovd, co-operated willingly and whole heartedly in any undertaking connected with the school. This semester climaxed for the Sophomores a year crowded with achievements, literary, social and athletic,

Throughout the year we have been envied by the freshmen, admired by the juniors, respected by the seniors and recognized by the faculty. We, in turn, have loved them all. Although we may soon separate, we will in the future retain memories of Eastern which will be as indelible as the blue in the heavens.

FRESHMAN CLASS

TREASURER

PRESIDENT

The Class of '34

On September nineteenth, nineteen hundred thirty, four hundred and three creatures, later to be known as Freshmen, lined up and filed by the Registrar's office to begin the year with the largest attendence that any Eastern faculty or student body has ever witnessed. This beginning marked a radical change in the lives of all of these new comers for they were here for a purpose. They began at the first to strive for that goal, and by the end of the semester were well on their way.

What a disappointed lot they were when they found that the "Mystik Six" required them to wear small red caps incessantly. The same group of mysterious men imposed upon them many other strenuous tasks. When some Freshman refused to obey he was shorn of his locks immediately.

After most of this subsided, they settled down to the more serious things that go with college life. They elected an executive committee composed of a president, a vice-president, a secretary, and a treasurer. The president then chose a program committee, which has furnished the class with many hours of good, wholesome entertainment.

During all this time the freshman athletes were out on the gridiron making history for the school. Thirty-five men received numerals. After foot-ball came basketball, and the freshmen team, by sensational playing, were conceded a Kentucky championship.

Things went well until examination time came around, and tests in Physics, Chemistry, Biology, and Mathematics began to phase the mental ability of many noble freshmen. True to form, however, they come out with few failures, and many of them even stood in the lead.

When the second semester started they welcomed into their classes several old Freshmen and many new ones. This registration set another record for Freshman enrollment.

The Freshmen this year were in every organization on the campus for which they were eligible. All this is evidence that the Sophomore class of nineteen thirty-one and thirty-two will be an outstanding one.

These Freshmen were the "up and at 'em" kind. They were full of pep, vim, vigor, and school spirit. They met everything with a smile and said, "Where there's a will there's a way."

Varsity Football

The fall of 1930 was Eastern's third year to play football as a member of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. The Maroons were very much handicapped because of the fact that they didn't have any new material to draw from, it having been necessary to play freshmen the year before in order to have a team.

This was the second year for "Turkey" Hughes to serve in the capacity of head coach of Eastern. Although he didn't have a winning team, he drew favorable comments from the opposing coaches and officials upon the fighting spirit of his charges.

Injuries hit the squad early in the season. Jennings Jackson, regular half back, suffered a broken shoulder in the first game and was unable to play any more during the season. Kenneth Canfield, hard hitting fullback, twisted a knee in scrimmage and although he played in a few games after this, he was never in top condition.

The Maroons were able to win only one out of the eight games scheduled. However, a quantity of good material was uncovered in the freshman squad and with plenty of hard work next fall, the Maroons should be able to make a creditable showing among the other colleges of the state.

Freshman Football

The 1929 Little Maroons, coached by "Al" Portwood, former University of Kentucky star, were the second freshman team to represent Eastern on the grid-iron. Due to the lack of material on the varsity team of 1928 the freshmen were compelled to tear up their team to lend a helping hand to complete the varsity schedule.

Almost any afternoon last fall one could see these Little Maroons dashing madly down to the Madison High School football field. These efforts were not in vain. Some might call it grit, others might say it was luck, but the extra track work must have helped to make it a successful season.

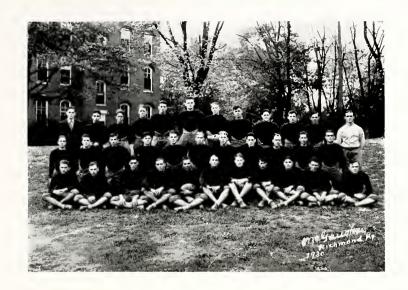

The S. I. A. A. allowed only five games. We opened with Georgetown. The boys were a little slow in getting started, but they staged a real comeback with the Kavanaugh Independent Eleven. That was a real game! The Little Maroons were able to outplay the Independents from start to finish.

Following this came our game with Maysville High School which gave us a scare. In the last quarter of the game, the Little Maroons got a break, marched down the field, kicked a goal, and it was "WHOOPEE" then.

Eastern just mentions the next game, which was with the Kentucky Kittens, but we can hoast of our last game with Transylvania.

Come on everybody and let's give the Little Maroons a big hand. They will always stand out vividly in our minds. Every team has its highlights and ours were Feeback, with his long runs and Boyer with his line bucks. These lads and others like them show great possibilities for a future varsity team.

Varsity Basketball

The Maroon basketball team had a very successful season. In the twelve games played they were able to bring home nine victories. The percentage average for the season being .750.

Western and Weslevan were the only teams that were able to win from the Meandering Maroon's during the regular playing season. Westerns crack basketball team, composed of Lawrence, Kauffman, and Company were able to register two wins in as many days from the Eastern cagers.

As usual Eastern drew the Pioneers of Transylvania as their first round opponents in the State Tournament held at Winchester. The Pioneers, playing inspired basketball, were able to take a two point lead in the last minute of play and hold it. Thus, Eastern was eliminated in one of the biggest upsets of the Tournament. A week later the Marcons met Berea, the Kentucky Champions, and scored a decisive victory over them in the meet at Jackson, Mississippi. In the second game of the southern invasion the Marcons met Centenary, of Shreveport, Louisiana. Centenary proved to be too much for the boys as well as everyone else in the Tournament.

Bill Melton and Herman Hale at forwards, Ben Adams at center, Zelda Hale and Lawrence Hale at the guard positions formed the first string combination. The substitutes were: Howard, Qualls, Lea, Jackson, Hord, and Dowell. Each of these men saw considerable action, and each gave a good account of himself when given a chance.

Freshmen Basketball

Eastern has supported a freshman basketball team for only three years. The first freshman team was singularly successful, losing only two of the eighteen games played. Both of those were dropped to the Kentucky Kittens.

The Little Maroons of this year (1930-31) by virtue of the two defeats handed the Kentucky Kittens, averaged the losses of previous Little Maroon squads, established firmly their claim as the best basketball squad ever to earn Eastern numerals, and won for themselves and their Alma Mater a clear TITLE to the STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

The invincible little team was undefeated in Kentucky, although they met the best freshman teams of the state and some of the strong high school teams, including the State High School Champions, Du Pont Manual of Louisville.

The opening game was played with Berea, and was all that Berea games always are. Since the strength and endurance of neither team were known, the fans for both teams were kept excited from start to finish. When the teams weren't playing, the Eastern and Berea hands took up the competition and hurled brassy challenges at each other.

Supporters of the Little Maroons (and perhaps the Little Maroons themselves) will longest remember the first game played with the Kentucky Kittens. In that game Coach Portwood's lads held a one-point lead for the last five minutes of play, while fans, band members, reserves, coaches and all, gave everything they could in frantic support of their frosh.

Not so exciting, but more indicative perhaps of the real strength of the teams, was the return game played with the Kittens at Lexington. There the Eastern team won by five points, a game, the outcome of which was never in doubt.

The Eastern Varsity, playing after the freshmen, lost some support during both the second Berea and first Weslyan games, due to the fact that the fans were both too limp and too hoarse to support a second game as they had the first. The Little Maroons won both by four points.

Probably the prettiest game the frosh played was the return game with Wesleyan, played on Wesleyan's floor. That game was a real exhibition of the skill and spirit of the Little Maroons. They fought just as hard for that fortieth point, alhough their oppenents had a score of less than half that amount, as they would have for a one-point lead.

Coach Portwood's men who hore the burden of the work in the games played were: Captain Gillis Madden and Gurney Adams of Carr Creek, Jimmie Vest of Walton, Orville "Flash" Feeback of Bourbon County, and T. C. McDaniel of Manchester. The reserves who gave loyally of their time and energy during the season were: Campbell, Phillips, Hanson, Flannery, Green, C. Adams, Harlow, and Cornett.

If Coach Portwood can continue to produce freshmen teams of the caliber of the 1930-31 squad, Eastern's place in the basketball sun of the State will be assured.

he Farm and the Farm Home

Over two hundred farm tasks are now performed by electric power. And farmers, rural service executives of power companies and agricultural engineers of state colleges and universities are finding new jobs for electricity daily.

The farm business is a household enterprise at the core. The farm and the farm home are a single unit—where the kitchen range is productive capital, quite as much

Electric power is of even greater assistance in the farm home than in the field. Over half the current used is applied to kitchen, laundry, and household cleaning. Although the American farm is highly powered in the field, modern engineering did little for the women of the farm until the advent of electric power. For every hour of farm work performed by engines and horses, even now three hours of man and woman power are required. It is in that two-thirds of farm work that electric power can be used to substitute for human labor.
