Combs Has His 'Greatest Day'

BY JOE EDWARDS

He called it "the greatest day of my life.

Th'se former Yankees' Babe R. Combs, who recently was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame after being named to the American League's greatest player, "is tops in my book," said Combs yesterday.
Since 1619, when the first slaves arrived in this country, America has been plagued by friction between the races.

Since that time, the United States has survived two World Wars, its own civil war, and numerous other conflicts. But America has yet to survive, and satisfy the education of the race.

And since that time, the United States has landed men on the moon and returned them safely, found cures for killer diseases which now are puppets to modern medicine and established the technological advances which would have saved even the most forward-thinking individual in 1619. But America's two races, 351 years after the country became integrated, still cannot live together amicably. A current by-product of racial animosity concerns the desegregation of public high schools—desegregation which the Supreme Court ordered the Southern and Border states to do with deliberate speed 15 years ago.

And last year, in the celebrated case of Alexander v. Holmes, the Supreme Court ordered the immediate desegregation of schools in Southern school districts.

The desegregation of schools has been ordered because, as the Court said in 1954 in the landmark Brown vs. Board of Education decision segregated schools are inherently unequal and therefore unconstitutional.

School districts, however, have resisted last year's order, degrading racial advancement with excuses that "it can't be done," "we need more time," or "it's too bad for our community," and others.

But these should be no valid excuses for those who presently are refusing to desegregate their schools. After all, it is the law of the land that segregated schools are unconstitutional—and it has been for 16 years.

But it is the law of the land that schools should be desegregated—and they were ordered 15 years ago—the length of time it has taken to get a high school education and degree and college

The federal government, however, is not entirely satisfied in light of current resistance to the desegregation orders. Had pressure been applied since the order first was issued in 1955, the current resistance most certainly would not be so intense—and a racial balance in schools might already have been attained.

Ideally, of course, what America can hope for is a racial understanding which would result in school desegregation and black and white harmony with an absolute minimum amount of hatred. Then the United States would not be such a misnomer.

GROWTH: Very Quiet, But It Helps

GROWTH, a volunteer tutoring program conducted by Eastern students, is the king of student demonstration that doesn't make headlines.

It's a quiet demonstration of student power that offers a helping hand to Richmond school children when they need help with their school work.

The 15 to 40 volunteers who meet twice weekly with children who need help, demonstrate a willingness to give up their time—two hours for the tutoring session is less than the time students spend preparing a two-hour exam.

The tutors demonstrate their capacity to fill a need—offering friendship to children who need their help.

And the tutors gain satisfaction from taking care of this need, as well as gaining some practical experience.

GROWTH — it doesn't shout for recognition; the program doesn't need to demand it.

GROWTH gains recognition, because it demonstrates—help to the United States would not be such a misnomer."

Virginia Woolf was writing during the "crisis point." The phrase is used to describe the period in the 20th century when the United States was facing significant social and political issues, including World War II and the emergence of the civil rights movement. Woolf's works often dealt with these themes, and her influential essays and novels explored the roles of women in society and the nature of creativity and imagination.

The "crisis point" is mentioned in the context of America at the "crisis point." This phrase is often used to describe a period of significant change or challenge in a society, government, or organization. It suggests that there is a need for significant change or restructuring to overcome the challenges faced by the entity in question.
Council Discusses Alleged Dismissals

BY PATRICK GARR

Alleged unjust faculty dismissals were discussed by the Eastern Student Senate Tuesday evening during a chance meeting by Senate members to discuss the issue.

The Senate passed a resolution requesting that the administration give specific reasons for the dismissals. The resolution was passed 28-11 after Senator Bob War-dance moved for adoption of the resolution.

A 54-member Student Senate met Tuesday evening to discuss the recent faculty dismissals, and voted to call for further investigation into the matter.

A committee to investigate the faculty dismissals will be appointed by the Student Senate. The committee will be composed of 12 members, each representing a different college and chosen by the Senate.

The committee will be given the task of investigating the faculty dismissals and report its findings to the Senate. The committee will consist of representatives from each college and selected by the Senate.

The Senate also voted to request that the administration provide written reasons for the dismissals. The administration was given the following reasons:

- The dismissals were due to budget cuts.
- The dismissals were due to poor performance.
- The dismissals were due to the faculty's inability to get along with students.

The Senate was also informed that the administration had already begun the process of investigating the faculty dismissals. The Senate was assured that the administration would provide written reasons for the dismissals.

Students Can Assess Faculty In Spring

BY PATRICIA GARR

Students will be allowed to assess all faculty members in the spring semester, according to Dr. Alfred A. Hill, dean of the college. The evaluation will be done through a questionnaire, which will be distributed to all students. The questionnaire will be scored by a computer and will provide an assessment of the faculty member's ability to teach, their effectiveness in class, and their ability to answer student questions.

The evaluation form will be distributed to all students in the spring semester. The questionnaire will be scored by a computer and will provide an assessment of the faculty member's ability to teach, their effectiveness in class, and their ability to answer student questions.

The questionnaire will also be available in the last part of May:

- Areas of expertise
- Areas of weakness
- Areas of improvement

Turley’s A ‘Live-In Lab’ For Six Coeds

By Simon Kuehn

Turley House is located in the Valley View School District, on the campus of the University of Kentucky College of Education. It was constructed in 1936 and has been used as a dormitory for the past 25 years.

The purpose of the house is to provide a living laboratory for students in the field of education. The house is designed to be a home-like environment where students can learn how to live together and what it means to be a community. The house is also used as a place for students to practice teaching skills and to observe the effects of different teaching methods.

The house is divided into four sections, each with its own kitchen and bathroom. Each section has a small living room, a bedroom, and a study area. The house is furnished with household appliances, including a washer and dryer, a refrigerator, and a stove.

The students live in the house for a period of six weeks, and they are divided into two groups. Each group is responsible for cleaning and maintaining the house during their stay. The house is also used as a place for students to practice teaching skills and to observe the effects of different teaching methods.

The house is located on the campus of the University of Kentucky College of Education, and it is open to all students in the college. The house is available for rent, and it is used as a place for students to practice teaching skills and to observe the effects of different teaching methods.

John Sullivan makes waves - in the air, that is!

BY JOE LEDVINA

John Sullivan, Co-ordinator of News and Information at WUKY (90.5) for the last five months, was recently named manager of an industrial radio station in Lawrenceville, Ga.

A native of Stearns, Ky., Sullivan has been involved in radio for approximately five months. He then began his career in broadcasting following a stint in the Armed Forces, he worked as a "prop boy" for WCPO-TV in Cincinnati.

He got started in broadcasting while in college at Eastern, where he played basketball and served as public address announcer. Sullivan has appeared in Industrial Radio, where he has been a guest announcer.

"I admire The Exiles because they do what they do in a very professional way," Sullivan said. "I find it difficult to watch a professional act do something the way the Fifth Dimension did."

Mr. William Flax, who is the President of the University of Kentucky, said Sullivan's appointment is a "very exciting" one for the University. Sullivan has also appeared in nightclubs and has been on the radio.

The suit states that the University permitted Miss Hegel to engage in prostitution. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the defendants. Miss Hegel is a "prop boy," one of the fraternity members who have shown great pride in the University's engineering staff headed by Gene Robert.

Sullivan also credited his wife's understanding for a great deal of his success.

He does it all:

Woods Makes All-OVC Team

By KEITH PERRY Sports Editor

Western Kentucky's all-time leading scorer, Jim McDaniels, was named second team All-OVC in basketball for the second consecutive year. McDaniels, a 6'3" guard, was one of the top backcourt players in the conference. He finished the season averaging 14.8 points per game and led the team in scoring with 530 points. McDaniels was also named to the All-OVC Defensive Team for his defensive skills.

Woods was named to the All-OVC Team for the first time and was one of the top scorers in the conference. He finished the season averaging 18.5 points per game and was the leading scorer for the team with 625 points. Woods was also named to the All-OVC Defensive Team for his defensive skills.

All-OVC Honors for Woods

While Woods (20) was named to the all-OVC team this past week, Woods finished his career as the leading scorer in the conference with 2,035 points. Woods was also named to the All-OVC Defensive Team for his defensive skills.

Basketballers Tie For Third

The Kentucky basketball team finished in a tie for third place in the conference. The team finished the season with a record of 18-8, which was the same record as the second place team. The team was led by the scoring of junior forward Mike Powers, who finished the season averaging 15.5 points per game. The team was also led by the rebounding of senior center Bob Fink, who finished the season averaging 10.5 rebounds per game.

All-OVC Honors for Powers

Mike Powers, a 6'11" center, was named to the All-OVC Team for the first time. He finished the season averaging 15.5 points per game and 10.5 rebounds per game. Powers was also named to the All-OVC Defensive Team for his defensive skills.

OVC Coaches Like Western In Spring Sports

Clarksville, Tenn.—Western Kentucky University and Middle Tennessee State University were picked as the OUc's top spring sports teams Monday following the annual coaches' poll, which was mailed to the league's coaches—three of whom did not respond. Middle Tennessee was picked to repeat as tennis champions. Murray State did not wish to make a choice of the four coaches for the coaches' poll. The middle Tennessee tennis team was picked by five of the coaches.

First came the American Basketball Association draft in which Smith was contacted and asked one point for last place. According to the coaches' poll, Murray, Cross County, and Tennessee Tech coaches were asked only to list the first three choices of the four coaches, the same as 1969. In 1969 the OVC coaches picked Murray, Eastern, and Tennessee Tech as the conference's top three teams.
