"There's no other way to clean the road than to walk the road with a bag." — Bob Rasmusson

Corey Wilson/Progress

Trash along Goggins Lane will be picked up this Saturday by the athletic department as part of Earth Day Clean-up.

Students and residents work to keep Madison County clean

By JAMIE VINSON
News editor

Saturday is a day for spring cleaning all around the city. "Madison County Road Clean Up Day" will be held this Saturday from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. as part of Earth Day celebrations.

Bob Rasmusson, solid waste coordinator in Madison County and director of the event, said this event has taken place for several years.

"I plan one every single year," Rasmusson said. "Clean-ups have been going on for more than a month and will continue through the middle or third week of April."

Rasmusson says this is part of a national program called "Keep America Beautiful" and is celebrated for several weeks. He added that Madison County is a member of this program and Eastern students have always been involved in clean up efforts.

Cities all over the country are part of "Keep America Beautiful," but this year the effort is being implemented into part of Eastern's Earth Day Celebrations.

Rasmusson says there is one sole purpose for the project, keeping the roads clean.

Alice Jones, Eastern's contact for the project, justifies her reasoning for the purpose of the clean up as highlighting the condition of area roads.

"It says a lot about a community when you drive down the road and there is litter by the mile," Jones said.

Rasmusson said advertising is the key to getting the word out. He added that Madison County, through Keep America Beautiful, is sponsored nationally by Pepsi, Kroger, Yardman and Glad Bags. They provide things like bags and gloves to help.

Clean up relies on volunteers like scouts, churches, neighborhoods and members of sororities and fraternities.

"Most participate because they want to," Rasmusson said. "It's very diversified, everyone who participates is part of it. I really get pleasure out of writing the report afterwards to send in to the state."

Rasmusson said the project is a total community effort. Anyone can participate in the event. The process, however, is very tedious.

"We separate out all appliances and recycle everything," Rasmusson said. "There's no other way to clean the road than to walk the road with a bag. We have no giant vacuum."

Rasmusson said trash is a problem in Madison County, and the bottle bill being beat has not helped the situation.

University rules Pace was not full-time student

SGA president must repay fall scholarship

By DENA TACKETT
Managing editor

While Student Government Association President Chris Pace was enjoying Spring Break in New Orleans with the rest of the Board of Regents, university administrators were busy deciding what to do about his failure to meet the hour requirement for his position last semester.

Last Friday, Pace received a letter at his home in Winchester advising him that the division of financial assistance had decided that he would be required to pay back the approximately $1,800 fall portion of the scholarship which comes with the position.

University Counsel Kacey Coleman made the decision after an investigation into Pace's status during the fall semester. The investigation began the week before Spring Break, she said.

Coleman said her office determined Pace did not sustain full-time status during the fall semester.

Pace still disagrees, but said he is positive the situation will work itself out.

"I haven't spoken with Dr. Kustra about this yet," Pace said.

"I believe the situation will be taken care of. I am optimistic about the situation and I think it was all just a misunderstanding."

Pace said he hasn't tried to talk to Kustra yet, but that his father, Donald Pace, former superintendent of Clark County schools, has scheduled a meeting with the president.

"I think the truth will stand in the end," Pace said.

Tuesday Pace produced two affidavits from the professors of the classes in which he did not receive credit last semester. It was those two one-hour classes that brought him below full-time status.

Pace had already taken the classes, which is why he did not receive academic credit for them.

Jill Allgier, registrar, said a student may not receive credit for a class in which he or she has already taken and received a passing grade.

"If a class has a fixed number of hours and you earn those hours, then you may not earn those hours again for credit," Allgier said.

Again, Pace disagrees.

Perry gets $55K to end his contract

Candidates interview on campus this week

By JEREMY STEVENSON
Sports editor

The athletic department has worked overtime recently to reconcile the situation concerning the men's basketball team. New agreements had to be reached in order to satisfy old ones and the search for a new headman got underway.

When Scott Perry resigned as men's basketball coach on March 6, Eastern and Perry had to reach an agreement on the remaining two years of Perry's contract.

The agreement reached requires Eastern to pay Perry $55,037 by July 8, according to documents obtained through an open records request.

The employment separation agreement signed by Perry, Athletic Director Jeff Long and President Robert Kustra also states Perry will be paid his salary through the completion of his current contract, which expires June 30.

Perry's original arrangement with Eastern was a base salary of $68,000 yearly for the position of head coach.

Perry resigned his position as head coach after three years and only 19 victories. Perry was the third Eastern men's basketball coach in the last decade.

The search for a new head basketball coach began this week.

Jeff Jones, 39, was the first to interview for the job. Jones was formerly the head coach at the University of Virginia. Jones, an Owensboro native, coached at Virginia from 1990-1998 and compiled 146 wins and 104 losses in eight seasons.

While at Virginia, Jones reached the NCAA Tournament five times. His 1994-95 squad made it to the Elite 8.

Jerry Eaves was the second person to interview for the position. The Louisville native is currently working as an assistant coach with the Charlotte Hornets.

Corey Wilson/Progress

Scott Perry shows displeasure with one of his players during a game this season.

Eaves graduated from Louisville in 1982.

Eaves played four NBA seasons with three teams including the Utah Jazz, the Sacramento Kings and the Atlanta Hawks.

Before coaching the Hornets, Eaves was an assistant at Howard University and then the New Jersey Nets. He returned to his alma mater from 1996-99 as an assistant under Denny Crum.

The university interviewed a third candidate yesterday. Former University of Kentucky basketball star Travis Ford, who is now the head coach at Campbellville University, was on campus talking to officials about the position.

In a press conference on March 7, Athletic Director Jeff Long said Eastern hoped to have a coach named around the Final Four, which is the end of the week.

Student reports rape in parking lot

No descriptions of suspect is available yet

By JAMIE VINSON
News editor

An Eastern student reported an alleged rape early Tuesday morning, according to Director of Public Safety Thomas Lindquist.

"The individual reported the incident sometime between 1-1:15 a.m. this morning (Tuesday)," Lindquist said.

The incident occurred in Alumni Coliseum parking lot on the Northwest side of the lot near Model Laboratory school.

The woman went to Pattie A. Clay Hospital after the alleged incident, according to Vice President of Student Affairs Thomas Myers.

According to Lindquist, the incident is still under investigation although no description is available and no suspects have been identified. A police report has not been released yet.

"We're re-interviewing the individual tomorrow (Wed.)," Lindquist said.

Eastern is taking safety precautions in light of the incident. Updates have been posted in the residence halls and the Powell Building. Counseling has been offered as well, according to Myers.

"We have gone to an increased level of security," Lindquist said. "We're trying to gather information that will be helpful."

Anyone with any information about this incident should contact any member of the residence hall staff or call the Division of Public Safety at 622-2821.

Student Government Association Elections

Candidates must file for positions by Friday

By JAMIE VINSON
News editor

Friday is the deadline for those wishing to apply for positions in Student Government Association for the fall semester.

Applications must be returned to the SGA office by 4:30 p.m. on Friday.

At Tuesday's senate meeting, the group voted on and passed unanimously the spring 2000 election rules, which outline specific criteria for those vying for the presidential slate and senate race.

According to the spring 2000 election rules, students running in the presidential race cannot exceed the spending limit of $600 in campaigning. Students cannot campaign within 25 feet of the manual election stations nor have verbal or unauthorized written campaigning in any computer lab. The student government office is also not permitted for campaigning.

Campaign material must be removed no later than 5 p.m. on April 20.

Students vying for these positions must also attend and participate in a debate on April 11.

Students running in the senate race must follow the same guidelines as those running in the presidential race with the exception of a spending limit of no more than $50 and are not required to attend the debate.

Online elections will take place April 11-13 from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Ballot elections will take place April 18 from 9 a.m.-7 p.m. in the main floor lobby of the Powell Building.

According to the rules, online results will be kept by the web administrator until the chief election official requests the results April 19. Ballots will be merged with online results.

Ballots will remain in the information technology office until April 24 and will then be released to the chair of elections.

Candidates will be notified by the elections official after the official announcement by the chief elections official.

► Campus Comments

THE ISSUE

Many students are getting ready to see the Indigo Girls play in Alumni Coliseum Friday night. Jamie Vinson, news editor, asked students around campus who else they would like to see come to Eastern.

BEN PARKER
Hometown: McKee
Major: History teaching
Year: Sophomore

I would like to see bluegrass bands because I am a bluegrass musician.

JEY MARKS
Hometown: Lexington
Major: Business Administration
Year: Senior

Someone like Faith Hill or Tim McGraw, but it's probably a little too expensive.

KENSAKU UMEDA
Hometown: Japan
Major: Math and Statistics
Year: Senior

I want to see some kind of rock band like Hole.

DAWN GRAS
Hometown: Irvine
Major: Journalism
Year: Junior

I like Christian Contemporary myself. I'd like to see Steven Curtis Chapman or someone along that line.

JUNKO KURIHARA
Hometown: Japan
Major: International Business
Year: Junior

Some jazz music or groups.

Election expectations

Changes should increase turnout

Change is good. Ok, maybe not always, but the Student Government Association's decision to change elections is one example of a change for the better.

The Student Government Association made the best decision it has made all year March 14 when it decided to extend elections for its new leaders to three days via the Internet. Students can also vote in the usual booths one day. Last year, a mere 700 students entered the voting booths to select the new president and vice president of SGA and the organization's newest senators. That's a shame because these two people are responsible for many of the acts that get introduced and passed by the SGA, which in turn, means they affect each and every student's life.

The elections were only held for one day then, just as they always had been. This year, though, a student court ruling made it possible for the student senate to change the election period and means through a simple majority vote.

This new step taken by the SGA will allow up to three days for voting, and students could be able to vote in three different locations around campus. The option will also be available to vote online, which will take away any excuses students may use not to vote. All the details haven't been ironed out yet, but it is still a good start.

The Student Government Association's decision to change elections is one example of a change for the better.

In the past, students have said that they did not have the time between classes during the one day of elections to make it out to Spring Fling to vote, an act that actually only takes a couple of minutes.

Students have also used the excuse that they were not on campus on the day of elections. That would be taken care of by extending the voting period to more than one day on the Internet.

With no excuses left, students should have no choice but to go to the booths on election day.

Voting still students' responsibility

The only way qualified student leaders will make it into student senate offices is if the student body votes them there.

But with Eastern's history of low voter turn-out, that might not happen.

Student senate elections are only weeks away, and it is every Eastern student's responsibility to vote and make sure the most qualified people become our new student leaders.

The student senate is a place where students who want to represent the rest of the school can become involved and try to make Eastern a better place.

The organization has been instrumental in getting a lot of things for the students, like the Lancaster crosswalk, but those things can only happen if the rest of the student body gets involved in the election process and votes for the people they feel are best qualified to represent them.

Last year, less than 700 students cast ballots on election day. That is less than 5 percent of all students on Eastern's campus. Those low numbers are not a new thing. In 1998, only about 675 students voted and in 1997, voter turn-out was only about 300 students.

This year, student senate is elongating the election process by two days on the Internet with one day set aside for live voting in the booths.

Students will also be able to cast a vote online. The student senate is making it even more convenient to vote, now all students have to do is to do it. All you have to do is stop sometime in between your classes or just point a mouse and click, but either way, make sure your voice gets heard this election. There are dedicated students who want to be on student senate to work for the entire student body, but it's your responsibility to put them there. Go to the debates, listen to what the candidates have to say and ask questions. They are there to serve you.

There are dedicated students who want to be on student senate to work for the student body, but it's your responsibility to put them there.

So, tell us what you think

Do you vote in the student senate elections?

What would it take to get more students to vote?

High standards needed for new teachers

Laura Blaser
Your turn

Blaser is an English and French double major

Sarah Bowles
Your turn

Bowles is an English major.

Just wanting to be a teacher is not enough, students must also have ability to teach

Heather Avera and Kelli Wilson are sure "there are many people out there" who would like to be teachers. We applaud those people who are willing to dedicate their lives to what is truly one of the noblest professions. As children of teachers, we are keenly aware of the hard work, sacrifice and intelligence required of such brave souls. As grown-ups, however, we are also keenly aware of the incompetence that threatens — and in fact, already pervades — America's education system. Also as grown-ups, we have learned that we don't always get what we want.

In a recent issue of the Progress, Avera and Wilson asserted that the current standards of admission to Eastern's Teacher Education Program are too high; specifically, they disagree with the requisite composite of 21 on the ACT. In the course of this article, Avera and Wilson posed a series of rhetorical questions which we feel raise some key issues and demand answers.

Question 1: Is it fair to judge a person's ability to teach by a certain score on the ACT?

Standardized tests do not measure one's ability to teach, nor does the College of Education expect them to. The ACT is relied upon simply to test general knowledge and basic skills. These tests are used nationwide to assess students, and if any of Eastern's programs want to compete on a national level, they must demand proficiency according to a national standard. Besides, the education program does not only look at a student's ACT score. Avera and Wilson themselves admit that, to be accepted into the program, students must submit a portfolio, letters of recommendation and complete an interview with department faculty.

Well qualified applicants are those who can fulfill every admission requirement, and those in charge of the education program are looking for students who can offer a complete package. An adequate ACT score is, and should be, a part of that package.

We agree that standardized tests are not fun, nor are they always completely fair. They are, however, a fact of life. And potential teachers might as well get used to them: in order to become certified, students of education must pass the PRAXIS, and in order to stay certified, they must eventually take the GRE to a complete a master's degree.

If we are to solve the problem's in our nation's education system (and they are numerous — visit the website of the National Commission on Teaching and America's Future at www.tc.columbia.edu-teachcom/ for more information), the answer is not to lower standards, but to create teachers who can help their students exceed them.

Question 2: How many people have actually learned all the information on the ACT? How many people do you know have made a perfect score?

The Education Program is not asking students to learn all the information on the ACT or to achieve perfect scores. They are asking students to get a 21 — three points above the national average. Doesn't it seem logical that teachers be at least slightly above "average"?

Question 3: Is this test supposed to separate the smart people from the dumb people?

To put it simply, yes. We realize that not everyone tests well, but these tests have been carefully designed to accurately reflect the test-taker's basic skills and knowledge. If a student can not score the required composite, she needs to spend her time learning, not teaching.

Question 4: Isn't it a shame that one of the writers can't get into the college of education?

It is a shame that this person is not able to fulfill her lifelong dream, but disappointment is, after all, a part of life. It would be an even greater shame, however, to put an unqualified — albeit enthusiastic — teacher in the classroom.

Question 5: If this is the career of our choice, then why can't we pursue it?

This is the most frustrating of the questions. Somewhere along the way, we have developed the notion that just because we want something very badly, we automatically deserve it. This is not the way the world works. A student can very much desire to be a doctor, but if she does not score high enough on the MCAT, she will have to change her plans. Although Avera and Wilson argue that because they pay tuition they should be able to "determine our own future," they are wrong. Eastern Kentucky University owes its students nothing more than an opportunity to learn. All tuition guarantees is a spot in the classroom — not an easy ride, an A, a degree or even acceptance into the program's of one's choice. To assume that desire and tuition money are all it takes to be a success is unrealistic.

If these students who want to be teachers are sincere in their goals but cannot get into the program, they should keep trying, but the Department of Education should not lower its minimum admission requirements.

This standard is held by virtually every education program in the state and is in no way unreasonable. If the minimum composite continues to be beyond their grasp, they should take the PPST, the SAT or one of the many preparatory courses designed to improve ACT composites. Then, if they still can't meet the minimum standards of their "dream future," it might just be a dream they have to abandon.

'Bottle bill' should have passed this year's legislature

Jeremy Stevenson
My turn

Stevenson is a senior broadcast major from Hopkinsville. He is also sports editor of the Progress.

How many of you remember taking glass soda bottles back to the grocery store with your parents? I do.

A lot of people believe politicians are evil, lying, self-serving, power-hungry animals; some of them are. But every once in a while legislation comes along that is really good for people, young and old.

This year the Kentucky General Assembly had the chance to do something really good for the people of Kentucky, but the House failed to do so.

Anyone who picks up a newspaper with any regularity knows about the "bottle bill." The bill, sponsored by Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, would have made it so those beverage containers would have a monetary value when taken to be recycled.

Many arguments for and against this bill were offered. The bottling companies hated it.

Grocers were divided over the issue.

Seventy percent of the public thought it was a good idea. And we all know that government serves the people, right?

Perhaps the best display of special interest in politics for this session is the "bottle bill."

Frankly, I'm a little angry about this.

This bill was designed to make Kentucky highways and countryside beautiful, to keep trash off the Bluegrass. And like most any other thing in the world, it was going to take money and probably inconvenience some people for a little while, but it would help keep our state clean.

Why wouldn't our elected officials want to do something to make our lives more enjoyable?

Eventually we'll have to start making everything out of garbage because that's all we'll have left, the remains.

Why wouldn't they want people traveling through Kentucky to appreciate the beauty and diversity of our state; from the hills of western Kentucky to the mountains of eastern Kentucky?

Money, money, money.

Here's the problem: the bottling companies spent nearly a million dollars fighting this bill. They hired a powerful lobbyist, ran an ad campaign against the bill, and I'm sure contributed to some of our legislators campaigns at re-election.

The bottlers felt like this would be too much of a hassle, too much trouble to change the way they've done it for years. Coca-Cola said they wouldn't use recycled material even if there were a bottle bill.

People elect representatives to lobby for what the people want, so why don't they do what the people want. Fifty-four members of our House decided that there was no need to pass a bill, which would make Kentucky a better place to live.

Eventually, we'll have to start making everything out of garbage because that is all we'll have left, the remains. Already, Madison County has to pay to have its solid waste transported out of the county and into another Kentucky county.

I know this bill would not have eliminated the solid waste problem many counties in Kentucky face, but it would help. Forty-eight percent of all garbage on the side of Kentucky highways is beverage containers.

I bet people would be a lot less likely to toss that plastic bottle if it were worth money.

▶ Letter

'All people need a chance to get an education'

I would like to comment on a problem, and it is not only in Kentucky, but all the U.S. schools. I attended Eastern in 1957 and wanted to major in chemistry and was told, because I had not had high school chemistry, it was best not to try to major in chemistry. I not only majored in chemistry and biology, but went on to become one of the top scientists for the U.S. Air Force Research and Development in Energetic Materials. I probably would not have scored high on the ACT, if it had existed then, but it needs to be understood, all people need a chance to get an education. I thank Professor Cox and all the science faculty for having faith in me. Stopping some from going is choking the education of Kentucky and the United States. Stop and consider the other humans.

Chief Justice to visit campus

By JAMIE VINSON
News editor

The Chief Justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court will visit Eastern April 4.

Joseph Lambert, along with Penny White, former justice of the Tennessee Supreme Court and professor at the University of Denver, Stephen Bright of the Southern Center for Human Rights and Bankole Thompson, professor in Eastern's College of Justice and Safety and a former judge in West Africa, will address the issue of "Threat to an Independent Judiciary" in a forum.

The forum is free and open to the public and will be held at 7 p.m. April 4 in Posey Auditorium of the Stratton Building. It will include a question and answer session.

Jim McCord, director of Eastern's paralegal program and chair of the planning committee for the event, said there are many reasons to address this issue.

"We think this is an area of great significance," McCord said. "Most people are not aware of various pressures that can be executed in the judiciary system." McCord added that some of these pressures include being impartial, staying neutral, campaigning and elections.

McCord says Justice Lambert got involved because he is very active in making the public aware of the role of the judiciary and because he liked the idea of a forum.

"He felt he had important contributions on judicial independence," McCord said.

There will be a reception before the forum where students and faculty will have the chance to meet the speakers.

The central idea behind the forum is to increase awareness about critical issues involving fairness and justice, according to McCord.

"I think students/faculty will be impressed with the quality of the speakers," McCord said in hopes of a good turnout.

Lambert will speak Tuesday

Eastern professor receives honor

An Eastern education professor received the Distinguished Teacher Educator award this year. The Association of Teacher Educators and Wadsworth/ITP Publishing Company gave Kenneth Henson the annual award.

The Awards Committee looks at professors in higher education who advance teacher education, contribute to scholarly activity, are leaders in the education program and work with other representatives to improve the teacher education process.

"I'm very excited and it felt good to win the award," said Henson.

Any member of the ATE can nominate anyone in higher education, according to Henson. Around 100,000 teachers nationwide could be nominated for the award.

During the 70th anniversary of the association, Henson was also named one of the top 70 teachers in the nation.

Henson was the dean of Eastern's College of Education from 1988 to 1999. He is also a former Fulbright Scholar and a National Science Foundation Academic Year Instructor.

Henson's 26th book, a second edition of "Curriculum Planning: Using Constructivism, Multiculturalism and Education Reform," was published recently. "Teaching Today," also written by Henson, is the textbook used for introductory courses in education.

Tables available for 2000 Spring Fling

Any organization interested in having a table at the 2000 Spring Fling April 11 needs to contact Duane Gill, public relations chair of the Student Government Association at 622-1724 or visit the SGA office at Powell Building Room 132.

Summer orientation leaders needed

The Office of Student Development is accepting applications for summer orientation leaders. Leaders will make presentations to incoming freshmen and parents, interact with university administrators, gain communication skills and get paid. Applications and information are available in room 128 of the Powell Building. The deadline to apply is April 14.

Eppler scholarship applications available

Applications for the Donald E. Eppler Memorial Scholarship Award are available to students enrolled in a Kentucky paralegal education program for the fall semester.

The Kentucky Paralegal Association's Board will give a $1,000 scholarship and a free student membership to the association to a dedicated paralegal student. The deadline is July 1. For more information, contact Laura F. Stewart at 264-1664.

Free Japanese music performance tonight

Eastern will host a performance of modern Japanese music by Daniel Quinn and Paolo Bortolussi at 7 p.m. tonight in room 100 of the Burrier Building. The event is sponsored by the Department of Foreign Languages and Humanities, the Office of Student Development and the Office of International Education.

Search for new SGA adviser hasn't turned up successful candidate

By JENNIFER ROGERS
News writer

Plans change. That's what the Student Government Association has found out in their quest to find a new permanent adviser.

Student Senate President Chris Pace said that the Senate has not named a new adviser yet. The Senate planned to have a new adviser appointed by Monday.

Senators conducted interviews before spring break in hopes of finding a successor to Thomas Myers, vice president of student affairs and former senate adviser.

Those interviews were supposed to produce a nominee for the position. However, they didn't go according to the senate's wishes.

"We didn't find a candidate that we thought would fit our needs," Pace said. "And we're not going to settle for second best."

The senate announced the appointment of their interim adviser on February 29. Aaron Thompson, coordinator of the office of retention and associate professor of sociology, anthropology and social work holds that position, and will while the search continues.

Pace is not ruling out Thompson as a possible candidate for the full-time position.

"There's still a possibility that he could be the full time adviser," Pace said. "But if he's not, then he's going to help in the process of finding another one."

"We had three candidates," Pace said. "We did two interviews because one candidate dropped out."

The senate is looking for new options in their search.

"We are now taking applications," Pace said. "We've had some more people suggested actually by Dr. Thompson and some other people, and we will continue until we find the one that we think fits our needs."

Pace: Meeting with Kustra is scheduled

From the front

"You can do that for the status," Pace said, adding that the Colonel Connection had simply made an error in his schedule.

After Coleman finished the investigation, which was ordered by Kustra, she sent her findings to Kustra and Michael Marsden, provost and vice president of academic affairs.

"The key issue for me as provost was when the scholarships were awarded, was he a full-time student?" Marsden said. "That was the issue before us."

Pace will remain in office until the organization's elections are completed April 18 unless the student court takes action against him for violating the rules.

"That's a student issue," Marsden said. "The students elected him, and it's a student matter. It is not an administrative issue at this point."

Pace's scholarship was returned in the middle of last semester.

Kustra said he felt the student court, who censured Pace for violating election rules and took away the scholarship, acted outside its realm of power.

"It is a Board of Regents sanctioned university scholarship," Coleman said. "It comes directly out of the office of scholarships and financial aid."

Trash: Event kicks off month of activities

From the front

"Ask anyone to just look out and you'll see a problem," Rasmusson said. "If you don't see a problem, I need to talk to you. It's not necessarily on campus though."

The event is co-sponsored by the Berea College SENS Program. Rasmusson says there will be two booths, one in Madison County and the other at Union Church in Berea.

Volunteers working from Eastern will most likely cover the northern end of the county and Berea volunteers will cover the southern end of the county.

Rasmusson says it is not just a job of being "garbage police," but keeping track of what places need to be cleaned up.

"Everyone feels good about it afterward," Rasmusson said. "The experience of picking up trash on the road will stay with you."

Jones says there are several benefits to participating in an event such as this.

"It shows that, yes, you can

Corey Wilson/Progress

A plastic trash bag hangs around a street sign on Goggins Lane.

make a difference," Jones said. "There's a lot that little old you can do, and we're giving you a chance to do it. We're hoping to have a really good turnout."

Participants should meet at Alumni Coliseum at 9 a.m. to register. Jones said there will be two-hour shifts and you will receive bags and gloves during registration.

Women's higher ed experiences focus of national teleconference

By SHA PHILLIPS
Assistant news editor

In the 19th century, women were not encouraged to attend college. Today women are welcome openly in higher education.

However, the University of Minnesota held a teleconference called "Women's Lives, Women's Voices, Women's Solutions: Shaping a National Agenda for Women in Higher Education" to gain more equality for women.

Several Eastern faculty members and students met for the conference on March 27 in the Crabbe Library to view and hear keynote speakers talk about women's needs in higher education. The group met early Monday to discuss what they could do at Eastern to improve women's experience in higher education.

One of the group's ideas was to incorporate gender into the new general education curriculum, according to Director of the Women's Studies Program and

James Branaman/Progress

Eastern female students and teachers watched, via remote, a national teleconference March 27 about women's experiences in higher education.

English professor Isabelle White. "We are interested in the ways gender issues might be integrated into the new general education program," said White.

Kaelan Hollon, a senior philosophy major from Powell County, was interested in how to start a class focusing on women in philosophy.

"I've only studied two women philosophers," said Hollon.

Most of the women who attended the conference decided to form an Ad HOC Committee for Gender Issues. The first action the committee discussed was starting a survey for students, faculty and staff. They want concrete research to understand how women at Eastern feel about their treatment. The committee hopes to attach the survey onto the evaluations given at the end of each semester.

"It's valuable for us to be discussing these issues because a lot of the time we go about our work lives in a fog," said Meredith Wells, assistant professor of psychology. "We don't really see these big issues and it's important for us to be aware of some of these gender issues on campus."

Eastern sent its ideas to Minnesota for other universities participating in the teleconference to discuss before they met again on March 29.

New intention policy 'student-friendly'

By SHA PHILLIPS
Assistant news editor

When you came to live on campus, did you get matched with the best possible roommate or were you looking for somewhere else to stay after the first week? Eastern is trying to work out a better system of pairing roommates for next semester.

Eastern's dorm residents went through a new housing intention policy this semester.

The intention forms residents were required to fill out two weeks ago were detailed with lifestyle questions about smoking, sleeping habits and housekeeping. Students returned the completed forms to designated boxes at the front desk in each hall.

"We will now begin to better match roommates through these lifestyle forms," said Kenna Middleton, housing director.

While returning students will not see much effect from the new policy, incoming freshmen will be served better and quicker. If a student's roommate does not return for the next semester, the housing office will use the forms to match the student with a roommate with similar needs, according to Middleton.

Some students say they do not believe the new policy will make a difference.

"You may have the same characteristics of a person through the forms, but once you start living with them, you may find out that they're not as cool as you thought," said Mark Fages, 22, a broadcasting major from Cincinnati.

Others feel the forms will benefit students.

"It's kind of a hassle, but it's not a bad idea," said Wendy Lewis, 20, an art major from Wooten.

The matches will be made through a new computer system instead of the previous manual system.

Indigo Girls make triumphant return to college campuses

By SAM GISH AND JENNIFER ROGERS
News writers

The Indigo Girls are getting back to their roots on Friday night when they come to play at Eastern.

Amy Ray and Emily Saliers, better known as the Indigo Girls, started out as a college band, playing on their own campus at Emory University in the early '80s.

Since then, they have continued to focus on the college scene.

"We always play colleges," Saliers said. "We started out as a college band early, supported by college radio and using our college experiences as a springboard early on. We've just maintained a relationship with college students."

Saliers says she feeds off the college shows like the one at Eastern.

"The energy is great from students in the college community," she said. "The people who put on the shows work really hard, are really conscientious. I really feed off that energy."

The Indigo Girls' first single was released in 1985 with an album that followed in 1986. Their concert Friday will reestablish a link to their past in an intimate way.

"We're just playing acoustic this time, just me and Amy," said Saliers. "So it's going to be very stripped-down, sort of like back to our roots."

Indigo Girls Concert

When: Friday, 8 p.m.

Where: Alumni Coliseum

Cost: $10 for students, $20

for non students and purchases at the door

The concert will also mix their old work with new.

"We're going to play half the set off our new record," Saliers said.

"The other half of the set will be a mixture of songs from the older records, a balance of ballads and rockers, a balance of Amy's songs and my songs, and a couple of solo songs."

Fans will be able to hear songs as they were originally written.

Saliers hesitates to categorize the Indigo Girls' sound.

"I think we are sort of acoustic folk-rock," Saliers said. "When we play with our band obviously we are electric. We have folk influences and Amy has a lot of post-punk, more edgy."

The band was influenced early in their career by such people as Joni Mitchell and Neil Young. But Saliers think those influences have changed over time.

"Now it's just more like people inspire you rather than directly influence you," Saliers said.

Saliers seems appreciative of all the band has achieved.

"I'm very grateful for the way it's all gone," Saliers said. "When we were starting out, I never thought it would go like this."

Music wasn't what Saliers originally set out to do.

"I was going to be an English teacher," she said. "Recently I opened up a restaurant with some friends. But for a living, I'd rather be doing music than anything else."

The band keeps up a busy schedule.

"When a record comes out once every two years or so we tour for a year and a half after that," Saliers said. "Then we take a break and go home and write more songs."

Saliers doesn't think the Indigo Girls have broken any new ground.

"I don't consider us pioneers really," Saliers said. "We were just doing the thing that we'd been doing for most of our lives."

The Indigo Girls' return to campus is part of First Weekend activities.

The concert will take place in Alumni Coliseum Friday night at 8. Tickets are still for sale at the Powell Building information desk and in the Coates Building at the billings and collections office.

The cost is $10 for students and $20 for non students and all people purchasing tickets at the door.

All tickets are general admission.

Famous musicians spice up Jazz Festival

By KRISTAL ROARK
Assistant Accent editor

Eastern is preparing to jazz it up Saturday night with a little help from two internationally acclaimed musicians.

Flutist Jim Walker, a native Kentuckian, and trumpeter Bobby Shew will perform at Eastern's annual Jazz Festival Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Brock Auditorium.

The award-winning Free Flight combo, a standard rhythm section of piano, bass, drums and flute, will accompany Walker. Walker and Free Flight have performed on "The Tonight Show" and have been named the Jazz Combo of the Year by jazz critic Leonard Feather.

The Eastern Jazz Ensemble will accompany Shew.

"The talent level is going to be pretty high-powered," Jonathon Martin, festival coordinator and assistant music professor, said.

Walker has performed in over 300 movie soundtracks, including "Titanic," "Poltergeist" and "A River Runs Through It." His flute playing can also be heard in several television theme songs, including "Little House on the Prairie."

Walker is the former principal flutist of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and he and the Free Flight combo played with the Lexington Philharmonic in 1998.

A Muhlenberg County native, Walker was recently featured in the March issue of Kentucky Monthly.

Martin said Walker seems excited to come back to his home state. Along with Walker's popularity with Kentuckians, his excitement makes him a good addition to the festival.

"He has a nice audience and draws people," Martin said. "I'm hoping for a huge turnout."

Walker is currently a full-time lecturer and flute coordinator at the University of Southern California School of Music. He has also conducted clinics in Canada, Europe, South America, Korea and Russia.

Also a trumpet player, Martin, whose relationship with trumpeter Bobby Shew began 15 years ago, considers Shew a big influence on his music career.

"You'll be amazed at what he can do on a trumpet," Martin said.

Known for his jazz improvisations and lead trumpet playing, Shew was nominated for a Grammy in 1980, and his album, "Heavy Company," was named Jazz Album of the Year in 1983.

"Bobby Shew is about as versatile as you can get," Martin said.

Like Walker, Shew's work can also be heard in such movie soundtracks as "Grease," "Rocky" and "The Muppet Movie" as well as in television shows like the late "Hawaii 5-0."

"It's not elevator music. It's serious, straight-edge jazz."

Jonathon Martin,
Jazz Festival coordinator

"Most people have heard Shew whether they know it or not," Denver Dill, a senior music merchandising major and trumpet player in the Jazz Ensemble, said.

Shew will arrive in Richmond on Friday for one rehearsal with the Jazz Ensemble before the show on Saturday.

"That's the way professionals do it," Martin, who will be conducting the Jazz Ensemble, said. "It's a good experience for our students to learn how they do it in the music world."

Dill, who plays lead trumpet for the Jazz Ensemble, said he is a little nervous about playing with the trumpet legend.

"I'm playing what he does for a living," Dill said. Shew also spends much of his time travelling to college campuses to teach trumpet clinics.

"He's not only one of the best trumpet players in the world, but he's also a great trumpet teacher," Martin said.

Shew and Walker will each conduct free master class clinics Saturday for those interested. Those attending are encouraged to bring their instruments. Shew's clinic will begin at 1:30 p.m. and Walker's clinic will begin at 3 p.m. Both will be held in Room 100 of the Foster Building.

"It's not elevator music. It's serious, straight-edge jazz," Martin said. "The students are going to love it."

White Hall State Historic House, located near Ft. Boonesborough, will reopen for the 2000 season April 1.

PROGRESS PICK

House full of history

If you've heard the name but never been, then maybe you should visit White Hall State Historic House. The well known tourist attraction is reopening for the 2000 season and plans to welcome tourists from around the state and nation.

Upcoming events this season include the "Mystery Weekend" and a return of the popular Ghost Walk and Victorian Christmas events. Last year White Hall hosted over 13,000 visitors.

The historical site is noted not only for its striking architecture, but also for the man who resided there; Cassius Marcellus Clay, well known abolitionist, politician and friend to Abraham Lincoln.

Group helps smokers quit

By JAIME HOWARD
Accent editor

When many people start smoking, they think, "ah, I can quit whenever I want," but kicking the habit might not be as simple as that.

This is the focus of a smoking cessation group started on Eastern's campus by two nursing professors, Sandra Shapiro and Cindi McAlister. The group is now in its second year.

Shapiro, an assistant nursing professor, said she met up with McAlister, also an assistant nursing professor, while working at Charter Ridge in Lexington as a nurse practitioner in adult psychiatry/mental health nursing.

"We saw people with lots of problems," Shapiro said. "For some it was more difficult to get off cigarettes than hard core drugs."

Shapiro believes this is due to the fact that cigarettes are so easily accessible. Shapiro also noticed that many students on campus were having the same problems with quitting smoking. This led to the start of the smoking cessation group.

"We wanted to give people an option to quit," Shapiro said.

The women teamed up with the health department to form the group. The health department already had a smoking cessation program called Cooper Clayton, which was developed by two doctors from the University of Kentucky.

The department felt if a group was established on campus, more students would come.

Shapiro was right in her assumption that several students on campus may have a smoking problem.

During each personal and community health class taught in the Department of Health Education, as part of Eastern's general education program, a lifestyle assessment questionnaire is given to all the students.

Don Calitri, chair of the department of health education, has seen the data for campus smokers from the last four years.

"The average percentage of current smokers (1995-99) for males is 12 percent, for females it is 16 percent," Calitri said.

These are figures for Eastern students under the age of 35. Calitri said over the past four years, the percentage of female smokers has increased, while the percentage of males has decreased.

This data goes to show that students should be aware of the smoking cessation program offered by Shapiro and McAlister, established specifically for those who want help.

Shapiro said the group's job is not to preach at students to quit, but just to let them know that there is a program for them if they should decide to quit.

The first group meeting will take place this Thursday at 1 p.m. in Disney Room 133.

"This is just a get acquainted meeting," Shapiro said. "It's to let people come to meet us, ask questions and for us to meet them."

Shapiro also wants students to know that quitting smoking is not easy, but if they really want to, it is doable.

Cheerleaders off the court

By GINA VAILE
Staff writer

During basketball season, Eastern Kentucky University's pep band helped cheer the Colonels on at home games.

It provided renditions of songs for the fans to dance and sing to. The combination of school spirit and musical hits provided an entertaining atmosphere at all the home games.

Graduate assistant Sandra Siningler conducted the Colonel Pep Band and was thrilled to have the opportunity to work with the musicians.

As a second year band assistant, it was one of Siningler's responsibilities to conduct the pep band. But that responsibility turned into an opportunity to have fun.

"It was a bit intimidating at first because they [the members] were all my peers, but I never felt like I had to ask much of them," Siningler said. "They were willing to do what was asked of them, and they were great to work with. We all had so much fun."

According to trombonist Anthony Palm, fun was a priority in the band.

"We had to be in marching band, and audition to play [in the pep band], but we also had to have school spirit and have fun," Palm said.

School spirit is something the band never lacked. The upbeat songs, such as "Love Shack" and "Smooth," kept the fans in a good mood no matter what the outcome of the game. People danced in the stands and sang along.

One thing, which separates Eastern's pep band from others, is the expressed interest the members showed in the game.

"They came up with their own original cheers for the games. They had homemade signs and offered a lot of support for the men and women on the court," Siningler said. "Sometimes the opposing team would give us dirty looks, but our team usually smiled and appreciated it. The band always made it a point to cheer the team on."

"We didn't get very many middle fingers," Palm joked. "We appreciated people complimenting us. An opposing coach even told us we did really well. That was cool."

Lots of fans expressed their compliments and thanks to the pep band as the season progressed.

"It meant a lot to have people come up to you after a game and tell you how well you played, or that they really liked the songs," Siningler said. "A pep band is there for the basketball teams, but we were also there for the fans to get involved. I feel like we accomplished bringing the fans and players together."

In addition to having courtside seats to every home game for women and men, the members got paid for participating in the band.

"I think it came to about $30 a game. But that wasn't what mattered," said trumpet player Mary Ray. "What was fun was cheering and playing and harassing other teams." The basketball season is over, but fans continue to show their support for the little band. Just two weeks ago, a fan of the pep band wrote in to the Eastern Progress expressing their support for the band.

Next winter, the group will be back on the court, but with a new conductor.

"Every year a different grad assistant will come in and conduct the band," Siningler said. "It is [sad] that I won't be with them, but it was fun to work with the band this season."

Weekend offers activities for all kids

BY JENNIFER MULLINS
Assistant Accent editor

A little brother or sister is no longer a requirement to take part in Little Kids Weekend. The annual event, which had been called Lil' Sibs weekend, has changed its name as well as the way in which it is organized.

Any student, traditional or non-traditional, is invited to bring any child, son, daughter, brother, sister, niece or nephew, to the three-day event. In years past, the event was only open to traditional students living on campus and their younger siblings. The Residence Hall Association, which sponsors the event, hopes the change will attract more students and children.

Little Kids Weekend Activities:

- Breakfast and Cartoons
- Crafts: grass skirts, cardboard ukuleles
- Hawaiian Luau

"Before, students always said something like 'Well, I don't have a little brother or sister, so I can't do it,'" said Brandee Petrey, director of Residential Education. "We're hoping this will get more people to participate."

Petrey said last year around 100 children attended, and that was just on campus residents alone. She hopes the numbers will be higher this semester.

The way in which the event is being organized is also taking on a new look this semester. Traditionally, RHA had been the sole organizer and carried out all of the activities. This year, several different student organizations, including sororities and fraternities will be holding events for the students and their little visitors, something that members of Residential Development feel will work out well for the groups and the kids.

"The student organizations will receive monetary support for their activities from First Weekends and the RHA," said Petrey.

One sorority, which will be coordinating an activity, is Kappa Delta Tau. The group will be hosting a table for participants to make their own ice cream sundaes. The table should prove to be fun not only for the kids, but for the sorority members also.

"We're a service sorority, so this is something we really enjoy. We will have 16 members out there interacting with the kids," said Susan Francis, a senior sorority member from Louisville. "We're not only doing the sundaes, we're also going to have hoola-hooping, Frisbees and bubbles set up for the kids to do."

The table will be set up on the grassy area in front of McGregor

File Photo

Lil' Sibs Weekend was changed this year to Little Kid's Weekend to allow for more than just siblings to attend the activities.

Hall if the weather permits, if not, the table will be in the basement of the dorm.

The theme for this year's weekend is "The Colonels Hawaiian Adventure." The group will rise to a morning of breakfast and cartoons followed by an afternoon of fun. Participants will take part in making crafts such as grass skirts and cardboard ukuleles in preparation for the main event, a Hawaiian Luau complete with music, dance and Hawaiian food.

Other notable activities include a storyteller/singer in the ravine, a showing of the "Wizard of Oz" and several other games, crafts and other activities. The students as well as their guests are invited to take advantage of the First Weekend activities that will be going on as well.

Although it is too late for regular registration, late registration will be accepted until Friday. The cost is $4 per student and $5 per child. To register come to Beckham 100 or call Residential Education at 622-2077.

The Progress offers campus-wide competitions

Have you been in a rut lately and would like to go on an exciting date for free?

Do you think you have the best dorm room on campus?

For those who want a date, the Eastern Progress is sponsoring a night on the town, on us! All you have to do is send us a letter or email telling us a few things about yourself and why you think you should go on the date.

Once all entries have been received, we will pick the best two matches (one male and one female) and send them on a date.

The only catch is that we get to follow you around on the date and report it in the Progress.

The entry deadline for the date contest is April 13.

For those who think they have the best dorm room, send us a photo or let us know via email.

The winner will be featured on the front page of the Accent section.

The deadline to respond is April 20.

Send letters to Donavon Annex Room 118 or emails to www.progress.eku.edu.

Colonels perfect in OVC

By JOHN HAYS
Sports writer

Eastern Kentucky's Chip Albright worked the count to two balls and a strike to Andy Green. On the next pitch, the University of Kentucky's leadoff hitter set the tone for the game, blasting an Albright fastball over the left-field wall. The homerun opened the door as the Kentucky BatCats pounced on the Colonels 13-5 at Turkey Hughes Field March 15.

UK, ranked 18th nationally and off to its best start in 13 years, touched Albright (2-2) for nine runs and ten hits through five innings. The BatCats took advantage of the gusting winds by belting six homeruns, with Green and John Wilson hitting two apiece.

The Colonels (5-10) scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth on Lee Chapman's sacrifice fly and Gabe Thomas' single up the middle, cutting the lead to 9-3. UK doused any threat of a Colonel comeback by adding four runs in the eighth on back-to-back homers by Green and Aaron McGlone off reliever Keith Murnane.

Eastern was led by second baseman Adam Basil who went 3-4 with two doubles, while Kiley Vaughn added three hits and scored two runs.

UK starter Scott Wade (4-1) scattered six hits and allowed only one run over five innings of work, improving the BatCats' record to 18-2.

Eastern needs 16 innings to down the Gavs

Adam Basil scored the game-winning run on a two-base error in the bottom of the 16th inning giving the Colonels a thrilling 1-0 victory over Austin Peay March 18 at Turkey Hughes Field.

With two outs in the inning, Basil advanced to second base on an errant pick-off throw by Austin Peay's Gunnar Tatom. Right fielder Frank Kunich then misplayed Gabe Thomas' fly ball, allowing Basil to score the winning run.

In the opener of a three-game set, Gavs starting pitcher Mike Keel held the Colonels hitless through seven and two-third innings before Tom White's bloop single to right field broke up the no-hitter. Eastern did not reach base for the next four innings when Brad Sizemore singled to center in the bottom of the 12th.

With one out, the Colonels loaded the bases on a single by Kiley Vaughn and a walk to Lee Chapman. Austin Peay's Keith DeGraff held on, striking out Thomas on a 3-2 pitch and getting Jason Sharp to fly out to center ending the inning.

The Colonels countered with Scott Santa, who scattered six hits over nine innings while striking out four. Mike Martini and Nic Lively worked the final six innings, allowing only three hits. Lively earned his second victory as Eastern improved its record to 6-10 overall and 1-0 in the OVC. Austin Peay fell to 13-6 and 0-1 in conference play.

In the nightcap, Corey Eagle hurled a three-hitter and Basil drove in two runs as the Colonels defeated Austin Peay 3-0 in another pitcher's duel.

Eagle (2-4) struck out five while allowing just seven Gavs to reach base and during one stretch, retired seven straight batters.

Kiley Vaughn's fourth inning single followed by Basil's 11th double of the year gave Eastern a 1-0 lead. The Colonels scored again in the fifth as Gabe Thomas came home on an error by Austin Peay shortstop Joseph Peer. The Colonels added their final run in the following inning on a Basil grounder that scored Sizemore.

Eagle held the Gavs to one hit over the final three innings improving Eastern's record to 8-10 overall and 2-0 in the conference.

Colonels beat APSU for third time in two days

Jason Sharp's two-run double in the bottom of the seventh inning lifted the Colonels to an 8-7 win over Austin Peay March 19. The win completed Eastern's three-game sweep of the Gavs.

Trailing 7-6, Basil reached base on a Brendan Loughrey error to lead off the inning. Chapman followed with a base-hit sending Basil to second. Sharp then lined a Gunnar Tatom (0-2) pitch down the left field line, scoring Basil and Chapman with the game-winning runs.

The Colonels potent offensive attack went to work in the third inning. Following a double by Vaughn and an infield single by Chapman, Sharp hit his first homerun of the season giving Eastern a 5-2 lead.

The Gavs would regain the lead with three runs in the sixth off Albright. Austin Peay roughed Albright up for seven runs and six hits in five and one-thirds innings. Spencer Boley (1-0) came on in relief and held Austin Peay scoreless, giving up two hits in three and two-thirds innings.

The Colonels banged out 12 safeties led by Vaughn's three-hit performance, extending his hitting streak to 11 games. Thomas chipped in with two hits in three trips to the plate.

Eastern improved to 8-10 overall and 3-0 in the OVC.

UT-Martin swept away

Behind the arms of Albright, Santa and Eagle and the hitting of Vaughn, Eastern waltzed into Tennessee and swept the Skyhawks of UT-Martin in three games last weekend.

In the opener, Albright (3-2) struck out eight and walked none on his way to a 7-3 complete game victory over the Skyhawks. Albright gave up seven hits and Chapman hit a two-run homer in the third inning to give the Colonels the lead for good.

Eastern tallied three more runs in the sixth on a Mike Schneider double and a pair of sacrifice flies from Adam Crowder Sizemore finished out the scoring for the game.

In the nightcap on Saturday, Santa (2-1) pitched seven innings of one-run ball and Basil's two-run homer in the fourth inning helped the Colonels to a 3-1 victory over UT-Martin. Vaughn went two for three and scored one run.

The Colonels offense went to work again on Sunday afternoon hitting four solo homeruns while Eagle gave another sparkling performance in Eastern's 8-4 victory and three-game sweep of the Skyhawks.

Crowder, Chapman, Sharp and Thomas homered for the Colonels while Eagle (3-4) held UT-Martin at bay, allowing one run over six and two-thirds innings. Vaughn finished the series going six for 10 with three doubles.

The win improved Eastern to 11-13 and 6-0 in the OVC. UT-Martin fell to 6-22 and 0-5 in conference play.

Yellow Jackets steal two from Colonels

Playing its third nationally ranked team in two weeks, Coach Ward and his Colonels traveled to the Peach State to take on 14th ranked Georgia Tech last week. In a pair of heartbreakers, the Colonels saw both games decided by only one run each.

In a series, which saw Eastern's Basil competing against his brother Jason, the Colonels were hoping to gain national attention by upsetting Georgia Tech.

Second baseman Richard Lewis' RBI single in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Yellow Jackets a 3-2 victory in Tuesday's contest.

Eastern's Basil gave the Colonels a 2-1 lead with a two-run single in the third inning. Starter Nic Lively held Georgia Tech to seven hits and two runs in seven innings. After Martini pitched a spotless eighth frame, Sharp (0-1) came on in the ninth, setting the stage for Lewis' heroics.

In Wednesday's game, freshman Tyler Parker's pinch-hit two-run homer off Murnane (0-2) in the bottom of the seventh inning gave Georgia Tech a 5-4 victory and its eighth straight win.

Eastern took the lead in the fifth on a homerun by Vaughn, but the Jackets reclaimed the lead the following inning on an RBI single by Lewis and a double by Mark Teixeira, giving Georgia Tech a 3-2 advantage.

Schneider's RBI single in the seventh knotted the score at three. Eastern had a chance to tie the game in the ninth inning. After Vaughn knocked in Crowder with a single, Schneider struck out to end the game.

The Basil brothers statistics were identical with both going 2 for 7 for the series.

The Colonels host the Racers of Murray State in a double header Saturday at noon.

Most of us who played golf over Spring Break did so for fun, but the Colonel golf team was all business.

Coach Pat Stephens' Colonel golf team played in two tournaments over the break.

The Colonels headed into Citrus Springs, Fla. to play in the first ever El Diablo Intercollegiate at the par 72 El Diablo Golf and Country Club.

The Colonels came away with a very strong fourth-place finish in the three round tournament. The Colonels finished with a three-round total of 904, 25 strokes behind the winner, Baylor University.

The Colonels placed two golfers in the top 20.

Senior Eric Willenbrink finished fourth overall with a 221. Willenbrink shot par for his first and last rounds and scored a 77 on his second round at El Diablo.

Senior Chad Creech finished 16th with a total of 227 for his rounds. Only seven golfers, including Willenbrink, shot better in their third round than Creech's 73.

All of the Colonel golfers finished within the top 50.

Senior Brandon Tucker finished in 21st place with a 231. Sophomores Brad Morris and Sam Covitz finished tied for 26th with a score of 233. Junior James Milam finished in 49th place with a 244 for three rounds.

Eastern finished best out of the three Kentucky schools represented in the tournament. University of Kentucky finished fifth, and Morehead State finished in last place.

After a trip to Florida, the Colonels returned home to Arlington Country Club to host the Eastern Kentucky Spring Invitational March 24 and 25.

The Colonels finished third in their tournament, behind Methodist College and Morehead State. On their home course, the Colonels shot a total score of 900 for three rounds.

Once again, Eric Willenbrink led the Colonels tee party. Willenbrink blistered Arlington with rounds of 71, 71 and 72. Willenbrink's scores were good enough to put him tied for second at the close of the tournament.

The Colonels placed two other golfers in the top 20. Sam Covitz and freshman Lee Ashby finished in an eight-way tie for 17th place.

Chad Collins of Methodist College finished first with a 205. Collins shot under par every round, including a five under par 67 on his second round.

Jackie Biro leads Colonels in Spring Break tourneys

The ladies finished ninth in the 14th Annual Snowbird Intercollegiate, and added a fifth place finish in the Saluki Invitational.

The ninth place finish in the Snowbird Invitational at Pebblecreek Golf and Country Club in Tampa, Fla. placed the Lady Colonel golfers in the top half overall.

The Lady Colonels shot a 635 for the two round tournament.

Junior Jackie Biro led the team with a total of 153, putting her in a tie for tenth overall.

Biro shot a 76 and 77, leaving her 11 strokes behind first place finisher Laura Wells of Iowa State.

Somerset native Kelli Wilson shot a 157 for the Lady Colonels.

Junior Samantha Moses finished her two rounds with a score of 160.

Senior Michelle Biro finished with a 165 and Colleen Yaeger finished her two rounds with a score of 172.

The Lady Colonels also had three golfers compete in individual competition.

Krista Dillman shot an 82 and 78 to finish with a score of 160.

Junior Krissie Kirby finished with a 162, and Leslie Fossitt finished with a score of 166.

After finishing in ninth place at the Snowbird Invitational, the Lady Colonels headed to Carbondale, Ill. to participate in the Saluki Invitational at the Hickory Ridge Golf Club.

The Lady Colonels seemed to like this course better than the one in Florida, as they finished in a tie for fifth place overall.

Jackie Biro was at the head of the Colonel pack once again.

Biro shot a 152 for her two rounds, including a 72 in her first round.

Biro's 152 was good enough to put her in tie for second in overall individual standings. Wilson and Yaeger finished tied for 31st. Each shot a 166.

Moses gave the 50th finishing place to Eastern with her score of 172. Dillman's 178 put her in a tie for 63rd place overall.

Murray State was the only other Kentucky school to compete in this tournament. The Colonels beat Murray by 12 strokes.

The Lady Colonels swing back into action on April 3, when they play in the Fighting Camel Classic in Buies Creek, N.C.

Jonelle Csora got two pitching victories in the Rebel Games over Spring Break

BY DEVIN KLARER

Many Eastern students spent their spring break lazily basking on the sunny beaches of some tropical paradise and partying till they could not stand on their own. For the Eastern Softball team, spring break was not only a time to have fun, but also a time to play some of the best softball of the their season.

The Lady Colonels softball team played in the eight-day Rebel Games softball tournament over spring break and compiled an impressive 7-3 record against some great competition. The women's wins included victories over Drexel, Dartmouth, Youngstown St., Army, Wright St., Lehigh and Troy St.

Two of the three Colonel losses were by only one run and the other loss was at the hands of a powerful Cornell team, who reached the NCAA regionals last season.

Coming into the Rebel Games, the Colonels had lost their last 13 road contests, but the sunshine of Florida helped the women to relax and play to their full potential.

Eastern almost doubled their win total in the first half of the season with their seven wins in Orlando. The Colonels improved their record to 13-19.

To say the Colonels played well offensively in the tourney would be an understatement. Eastern compiled a whopping 48 runs on 72 hits in 10 games.

Eastern put up their highest offensive numbers of the year in their 13-10 win over Lehigh in the eighth game of the tournament. Four Eastern batters had three hits apiece as the Colonels pounded Lehigh for 16 hits to win the game in extra innings.

The Colonels put on an awesome display of power throughout the tourney, with five different players hitting homeruns.

Eastern junior Michelle Williams, freshmen Bethany Herington, Jessica Soto and Jonelle Csora nearly outruns the ball on her way to first base in a Colonel loss to UK earlier this season. Corey Wilson/Progress

Elise Burch all hit the first homeruns of their collegiate careers in the spring break tournament.

Williams' homerun was especially memorable because she was awarded a $100 bill after she blasted the ball out of the park. Williams' grandmother had promised her $100 when she hit her first homerun, and she made good on her promise.

Herrington's homerun, in the Colonels 3-1 win over Drexel, was probably the most important hit of the entire tournament for Colonels.

With the Colonels down 1-0 in the bottom of the seventh inning and facing elimination against Drexel, Herington stepped to the plate and hit a long blast, which ended the game in dramatic fashion.

Freshman pitcher and designated hitter Jessica Soto also provided a game-winning homerun over spring break. Not only did Soto hit the game winning solo homerun in extra innings against Troy St., but she also pitched the last 2 innings of the game to come up with the win.

Soto earned two other victories in the tourney and improved her overall pitching record to 5-5 on the season.

Junior Kristin Mahon and freshman Jonelle Csora also picked up two wins a piece in the Rebel Games.

The three-person Colonel pitching staff matched the great offensive performance in the tournament by combining to give up only eight runs in Eastern's seven wins.

Colonels sign Florida high school football star

Coach Roy Kidd and the Eastern football team released the 2000 schedule (below) and exciting news of a new signee.

C.J. Hudson of Frostproof High School in Polk County, Fla. has committed to play football for the Colonels this fall.

Hudson, a 5 foot 7 185 pound running back, led Frostproof to the Class 11-A Florida State Football Championship.

Hudson gained more than 7,000 yards on the ground in his four years, even though he played behind University of Tennessee star Travis Henry in his freshman season.

He rushed 397 times for 2,396 yards and 22 touchdowns last season. Hudson also played defensive back, coming up with 22 solo tackles, one interception and one fumble recovery for a touchdown. Hudson finished his four year career as the all-time leading rusher in Polk County. Hudson is also the third all-time leading rusher in Florida high school football history, behind University of Florida signee Willie Green and Dallas Cowboy star Emmitt Smith.

Hudson is the 17th player to commit to Kidd this signing period.

Xavier beats men and women tennis teams

The Eastern men's and women's tennis teams headed to Xavier University to play the Musketeers March 15.

The men were beaten 7-2. Coming away with wins for the Colonels in singles play were Brad Herrera and Lee Lester.

Herrera won his match 6-4, 6-2. Lester, the freshman from Harrodsburg needed a tie breaker to win his match 7-5, 2-6 and 1-0 in the tie breaker.

The men were defeated in all three of their doubles matches.

The women's team had bad luck as well.

Xavier beat Eastern 5-4 in some very close matches.

Sandy Swanepoel won her match 6-3, 6-2.

Tara Williams won her match in a tie breaker by a score of 6-3, 2-6, and 1-0.

In doubles action the ladies took two out of three matches.

Susan Ferguson and April Dixon hooked up to win their match 9-7.

Swanepoel and Williams combined to win their match 9-7, 5 well.

Colonel star leading OVC in batting average

The Colonel baseball team is standing atop the OVC standings with a record of 6-0 in the conference, two games in front of MTSU.

Leading the Colonel charge this season is senior second baseman Adam Basil.

Basil is batting .475 with 12 doubles and 26 RBIs through only 24 games. He has also swiped 14 bases so far this season.

Sophomore shortstop Kiley Vaughn is also in the top 10 among OVC hitters.

Vaughn is hitting at a .371 clip with eight doubles and has hit safely in 15 of the Colonels last 16 games.

Sophomore pitcher Nic Lively is second in the OVC with a 2.10 ERA. Lively also has 19 strikeouts in 26 innings.
