Letter From the Commissioner
To the District Tournament Manager:

Will you please refer to your K.H.S.A.A. booklet which gives rules and regulations governing basketball tournaments. You should familiarize yourself with these rules, found on pages 30-38. Your special attention is called to the second paragraph of Tournament Rule VI-A-3, relative to the enrollment of your district coaches in the Kentucky High School Coaches Association.

The forms for your various reports are self-explanatory. The report of games should be mailed to the manager of the regional tournament not later than Monday, March 4. Send your financial report, your checked eligibility lists, and the second copy of the report of games to the Commissioner as soon after the tournament as possible. For your convenience, the following checklist is given:

1. Invite member schools to your tournament AT ONCE, reminding each school to send each other member school in the district a COMPLETE preliminary list of players on or before February 1, and to send you THREE copies of a final list one week prior to the district tournament. See Rule VIII.

2. Announce the time of drawings in your letter. See Rule IX.

3. At your meeting, conduct the drawings and select the officials. The state plan for division of tournament receipts is recommended. If any other plan is used, a majority vote of the participating schools must be obtained.

4. Your attention is called to the last paragraph of Tournament Rule V-A, which says: "An official shall not work a district or regional tournament in the district or region in which he resides." Also note the provisions of Tournament Rule V-C concerning twelve first team high school basketball games.

5. The following procedure has been established by the Board of Control in the selection of tournament officials under authority given in Tournament Rule V-A: (a) Each school represented at the meeting may submit the names of one or more officials. There shall be a minimum of eight names on the list of officials to be voted on. NO NAME SHALL BE MARKED OFF THE LIST. (b) Each school representative shall rank eight officials in the order of his preference, the first choice being assigned eight points, the second seven points, etc. (c) The tournament manager shall communicate at once with the highest ranking official or officials in the order of their rank. If the official who is selected can not be reached within one hour of the time of his selection, or if he is not available, the tournament manager shall attempt to employ the next official or officials on the list in the order of their selection. If the tournament manager attempts to contact the official by telephone and there is no answer, the manager should check with the operator for a possible change in the official's number. (d) If two officials are tied on points, the highest ranking official shall be determined by flipping a coin. (e) If none of the officials on the list is available, the tournament manager shall have the sole responsibility of securing an official or officials for the tournament.

6. Tournament Rule XV says: "The Board of Control is authorized to select, standardize, and purchase trophies for all district and regional tournaments and the cost of these trophies shall be borne by the respective districts and regions." The Board has contracted with The Sport Shop, Glasgow, Kentucky, to supply all of the official K.H.S.A.A. district first place and second place basketball trophies for the 1968 tournaments, each trophy complete with the Association seal and engraving. Your trophies will be shipped to you prior to March 1.

7. It is the responsibility of the tournament manager to secure adequate police protection.

8. THE BOARD OF CONTROL HAS RULED THAT NOT MORE THAN TWELVE PLAYERS MAY BE IN UNIFORM FOR ANY ONE TOURNAMENT GAME, AND THAT OTHER SQUAD MEMBERS SHALL NOT BE ALLOWED TO PARTICIPATE IN WARM-UP EXERCISES, THIS BEING IMPLIED IN TOURNAMENT RULE XI.

9. Please ask your officials to designate the goals prior to the warm-up time for each game.

10. You will receive three copies of a final eligibility list from each school. Have one of these checked by the coach of each competing team, before his team plays, for the twelve players he will use in each game. Use only one list for checking players on each team since the other two copies may be needed by the regional and state tournament managers. Send the Commissioner all of these checked copies with your other reports. Send the two unchecked copies of eligibility lists of the winner and runner-up to the manager of your regional tournament, along with one copy of your report of games, not later than March 4.

11. It has been ruled that the 2:00 o'clock mentioned in Tournament Rule IV-B may be considered Eastern Standard time or 1:00 P.M. CENTRAL STANDARD TIME. This information concerning the starting time of the regional meeting should be given to your winner and runner-up.

12. Send Secretary Ohr of the Kentucky Coaches Association the list of district

Basketball Questions

EDITOR'S NOTE: These interpretations of the rules of the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada do not set aside nor modify any rule. The rulings are made by the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations in response to situations presented.

Clifford B. Fagan, Committee Secretary

16. Play: A1 travels. An official calls the violation. A1 ignores the official and places the ball on the floor in the court at the spot of the violation, after which his teammates and he take defensive positions.

Ruling: Technical foul is charged to A1. This is an infraction for "failure to immediately pass the ball to nearer official if in control when a violation is called . . ." A1 is not to be warned but rather penalized. Failure to penalize denies a free throw attempt and throw-in to Team B to which they are justly entitled.

17. Play: Eight minutes prior to scheduled starting time for a game, an official notes Team B is "dunking" during its pregame drill.

Ruling: The rules committee request, that there be no "dunking" during warm-ups, is made in the interest of conserving equipment. Since "dunking" is no longer part of the game, there is no advantage to practice it. It is anticipated the request will be honored. If it is not, officials may remind coaches of the Points of Emphasis. Officials are not likely nor are they advised to demand "dunking" during practice cease, unless there appears to be a likelihood of equipment damage. Only then should the official rule that the dunking be stopped. If the official orders discontinuance, and this order is ignored, the official is obligated to charge the offenders with a technical foul. A competent official will use this authority only in extreme situations.

18. Play: Are there any situations in which it is possible for the official to correct an error made while the clock is running?

Ruling: Yes, but such situations are extremely limited. The one most apt to occur is for A6 to enter the contest without being beckoned, while the ball is alive and the clock is running. This is an infraction and should be penalized with a technical foul. If the officials fail to detect the infraction and it is noticed by the scorer, he may call it to the attention of the official. When there is an error and it is not penalized immediately, it may be corrected provided it is "recognized before the second live ball following the error."

19. Play: While the ball is in flight, following a field goal try by A1, time for a period expires. While it is in flight and before it enters the basket, B1 fouls A3. The timer's signal sounds following the foul. The timer reports to the referee that the signalling device was defective and that time had expired: (a) before the ball left the hand of A1; or (b) after it was in flight but before the foul was committed.

Ruling: The goal counts in (b) but not in (a). In (a) the ball was dead before it left the hand of A1 and thus the foul by B1 was during a dead ball. It would be ignored unless it were flagrant. In (b) if the foul occurred before the ball entered the basket, it is penalized.

20. Play: The visiting team has been notified well in advance of the scheduled date of the game starting time. Fifteen minutes prior to the scheduled starting time, the home team appears on the floor for the purpose of its pre-game practice. The visiting team does not come to the floor until approximately 5-7 minutes prior to the scheduled starting time for the game. In the meantime, but before the visiting team has appeared on the floor, the home team has completed its warm-up and has returned to its dressing room. When the visiting team comes onto the floor, which is after the home team has left it, the visiting team practices at the same basket used by the home team for its warm-up.

Ruling: As provided by Rule 4, Section 1, the visiting team has the choice of the basket at which it may practice before the game and this basket shall be its choice for the first half. There is no time limit specified in which to make this choice.

21. Play: Coach of team A does not submit his squad list to the scorers at least 10 minutes prior to the scheduled starting time of the game and he does not designate the five starting players at least 3 minutes before the designated starting time of the game.

Ruling: It is one technical foul for each squad member named on the list given to the scorer. Each name is considered individually and is a technical foul. If there were 10 players on the list, there would be 10 technical fouls. If the starting players were not designated at least 3 minutes before the scheduled starting time of the game, there would be five additional technical fouls, one for each player.

22. Play: Both team A and team B present their rosters to the scorer 10 minutes before the scheduled starting time of the game. Neither A nor B designates its starting five players until 1 minute prior to game time. There is no acceptable excuse for either delay.

Ruling: Each team is assessed 5 technical fouls. Each team will be awarded 5 free throws, namely, one for each technical foul.

23. Play: Team A erroneously lists the wrong number for each squad member on the list submitted to the scorer. The error is not noted until after approximately 1½ minutes of play.

Ruling: A technical foul is charged for each player who is in the game not wearing the number indicated in the scorebook for him. Any squad members who become players and require the changing of the number indicated for them in the scorebook are also to be assessed a technical foul. No technical foul is assessed a squad member who has the wrong number listed for him but who does not become a player or, in other words, who does not enter the game.

24. Play: A1 makes a high throw-in to A2, who taps the ball so that it goes into the basket. The tap by A2 is made so that it is not basket interference. Time did not expire during the time the tap was in flight.

Ruling: Legal field goal.

Comment: The ball became alive when it was touched on the court by A2. A live ball went through A's basket, hence the goal counts.

Minutes of Board Meeting

The Board of Control of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association met at the Kentucky Hotel, Louisville, on Saturday morning, January 20, 1968. The meeting was called to order by President Don R. Rawlings at 9:15, with Board members Morton Combs, Don Davis, Ralph C. Dorsey, Preston Holland, Foster J. Sanders, and Oran C. Teater; Commissioner Theo. A. Sanford, and Assistant Commissioner J. B. Mansfield present. The invocation was given by Foster J. Sanders.

Don Davis moved, seconded by Oran C. Teater, that the reading of the minutes of the December 23rd meeting be waived since the members of the Board had received copies of these minutes. The motion was carried unanimously.

Oran C. Teater moved, seconded by Foster J. Sanders, that the following regulations concerning the fees for regional basketball tournament officials be adopted: The official shall receive a fee of $25.00 per game and a transportation allowance of 10 cents per mile for all necessary travel. In the event that it is necessary for the official to remain overnight at the tournament site, he shall be paid an additional $15.00 per day for lodging and meals. The motion was carried unanimously.

There was a discussion of possible new proposals to be submitted by the Board at the forthcoming 1968 Delegate Assembly.

There was a discussion concerning a possible amendment to Basketball Tournament Rule V-B. Ralph C. Dorsey moved, seconded by Morton Combs, that the following be added to Basketball Tournament Rule V-B, to go into effect for the 1969 tournament: "An official who has worked in the State Tournament for two successive years is not eligible to work in the tournament the following year." The motion was carried unanimously.

Ralph C. Dorsey presented a list of several suggestions to the Commissioner and the Board of Control for possible consideration in improving the State Basketball Tournament.

Preston Holland moved, seconded by Ralph C. Dorsey, that all bills of the Association for

In MemoriamRaymond T. Baer

Raymond T. Baer, an All-America football player at the University of Michigan and former coach at two Louisville high schools, died at his home in Louisville on January 19, 1968. He was 62.

Rated the greatest lineman at Michigan in 1925 and named to its all-time football team nine years ago, Ray Baer began his athletic career at duPont Manual High School in the early 1920s. When he graduated at Manual in 1923, he had been an All-State tackle in football for two seasons, an All-Southern tackle in 1922, an All-State forward in basketball for three seasons, and had lettered in track for three seasons. He had been State champion in the high jump.

At the University of Michigan, Baer was voted an All-America by Knute Rockne, Glenn Warner, Grantland Rice and Tad Jones after helping lead the Wolverines to the Big Ten title in 1926.

Returning to Louisville, Mr. Baer was head football coach at duPont Manual from 1938 to 1944. He later coached at St. Xavier during the 1946-51 period. He was the Jefferson County Parks and Recreation Department's first director. In 1966 he was named a member of the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame.

Mr. Baer is survived by his wife and two sons.

the period beginning December 1, 1967, and ending December 31, 1967, be allowed. The motion was carried unanimously.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

The Flying Dutchman

It's tournament time again in Kentucky! In the district, regional and state tournaments in the offing, hundreds of high school boys will set forth to bring honor to their schools and community by their victories on the hardwood. A wise man many years ago made a speech to a group of eager kids at a school chapel program pointing out that it is as important not to reflect dishonor on the community as it is to bring honor to it.

As the jousting begins let's turn back the clock to the time when you were that eager competitor seeing only one goal—the championship. The Dutchman once knew a pretty good tennis player whose heart was set on winning the championship of his state, and he would have had he been willing to trade his honor for a shiny cup. As his opponent drove the ball hard to the base line the linesman called the ball out of bounds which would have given this eager kid the championship, but the kid knew that the ball was a perfect shot on the line. On his next two serves he purposely double faulted to even the game at deuce. The kid finally lost that game and subsequently the match—but he had won a lot more, namely self-respect and the respect of hundreds who recognized his magnificent gesture.

Some time when you are at Bellarmine College drop in on Eddie Weber, who works with young men who are interested in athletics, and tell Eddie that you read the story of his outstanding act of sportsmanship in the Dutchman's column, because Eddie taught a lot of his young friends that day that the way the game is played DOES matter. Incidentally, in later years Eddie Weber, who formerly directed the Bellarmine athletic program, did go on to win the tennis championship of Kentucky. This chap, Eddie Weber, was a champion in every sport in which he engaged at St. Xavier and the University of Louisville in the late twenties and was a champion in them all because he would never reflect dishonor on any team, win or lose, because he was morally a well trained lad, a gentleman and always a good example for other young people.

So it is that as the tournaments get under way that we honor Bellarmine's Eddie Weber with the Corn Cob Pipe of Honor award for the kind of service he has rendered his community from boyhood to manhood. May your tribe increase!

At a recent ball game, I was appalled by the attitude of some adult spectators who were acting in such a manner as to incite trouble; at another game I was overcome with a warm feeling of pride as I heard a high school girl tell a loud-mouthed spectator that he should move away from her cheering section because he was reflecting dishonor on her school. A father and a mother somewhere did a terrific job of rearing that young lady. May her tribe increase!

You wanta know something, basketball players? The Dutchman played football a couple of years with a big, husky tackle who would delight a few fans by peeling off his football jersey and playing bareback. While a few cheered, there were many more who asked why is the big boy showing off? This athlete was not reflecting honor on his team, but was attracting attention to himself to satisfy an ego. In a different way the Dutchman has been disappointed in a few basketball players this season. Let's look at the picture!

Basketball jerseys are so constructed that they look great when tucked inside the player's trunks, but when worn outside, not only look messy, but create the wrong image of Kentucky for our visitors. Suppose the speaker of your athletic banquet showed up with highly polished shoes, stylish suit, beautiful tie with matching lapel handkerchief—but he let his shirt tails hang out. Now further, picture television covering your banquet showing your speaker to thousands with his shirt tails hanging out! The Dutchman saw a basketball player at a game in Kentucky walk over to a teammate and say, "Put your shirt tail in." This kid realized that the reputation of his school is what the players make it. May his tribe increase!

Kentucky is a sportsmanship capital as illustrated by this story given me by Al Gustafson, one of the best officials anywhere. Two gentlemen in the Louisville area who command real respect are Al and the immortal Walter Beck. You should meet Walter sometime—he's a great one as he pushes the grand age of seventy-five. The story is not about Walter this time, but it does pertain to Gene Carroll, a real gentleman and coach. Here's the story. With Thomas Jefferson playing Seneca, Al Gustafson called a technical foul on Coach Gene Carroll which cost Thomas Jefferson the game by one point. Here's what Gene did as the game ended—he put his arm around Al and walked to the locker room with him. Every fan in the place had to salute Gene Carroll for being a big man. Al Gustafson says that this is one of the nicest things ever to happen to him in his officiating career. On Official Al's recommendation, the action of this coach has won for his school the Abou Ben Adhem award for promotion of the proper relations between a coach and an official in the critical period following a game decided by an official who had the "guts" to foul the coach. Congratulations to Thomas Jefferson High School! To Coach Gene Carroll the Dutchman says, "May your tribe increase!"

Let all of our coaching, playing and cheering spectators bear in mind in the action-packed games ahead that there will be penalties assessed for acts contrary to the rules, and this is as it should be. If a law is broken a penalty must be paid. This has been true back through the ages. A number of years ago a great guy and a friend of everybody returned to his car at a state tournament in one of Kentucky's large cities and found a traffic ticket for overparking on the windshield. A friend of his said, "I can get that fixed for you." The reply was, "I broke a law and I will pay the penalty." This fellow taught the Dutchman a great lesson. This morning I read that this great man had died. We will always remember you, Bain "Tiny" Jones, and what your life has meant for the creation of finer young people. May your tribe increase!

25. Play: Dribbler A1 stops close to the side line on the side of the court at which his squad's bench is located. A1 continues to dribble, but does not advance. His coach leaves the bench and confers with A1 briefly. Just before the coach returns to the bench, he puts his arm around the waist of A1 and/or pats him on the back, as an indication of confidence.

Ruling: The coach commits a technical foul when he leaves the bench in this situation.

26. Play: In the front court of A (the back court of B) A1 passes to A2. B1, attempting to secure the ball, bats it well down the court toward B's basket. The ball bounces several times before B1 recovers it in B's front court. B1 then dribbles to his basket and scores.

Ruling: Legal.

Comment: The bat of the ball by B1, in this situation, is not considered part of the dribble. Neither is B1 considered to have control of the ball until he secures it following the bat. The situation related, as far as the bat is concerned, has elements which are identical with tapping the ball, as during a jump, or when two or three players are attempting to recover a loose ball on the floor. As covered by the definition, "A dribble is ball movement caused by a player in control . . ." Securing control, maintaining control, and loss of control are factors to be considered and determined in administering the dribble. Technically, B1 has not had control during the bat.

27. Play: A1 dribbles in the mid-court area for 3 seconds while being closely guarded by B1. A1 then dribbles out of the mid-court area and into the front court and holds the ball for 2 seconds, during which time he continues to be closely guarded by B1.

Ruling: Nothing has occurred in the situation described to cause a held ball. When A1 dribbles out of mid-court area, the count is discontinued. A new count starts when A1 holds the ball in the front court area for 2 seconds. A held ball will occur if A1 holds the ball for an additional 3 seconds, while continuing to be closely guarded by B1.

28. Play: (a) A1, in his back court, dribbles for 8 seconds and then throws the ball against the leg of B1, recovers it, and holds the ball; or (b) A1 passes toward A2 and the ball is batted by B1 but continues on to A2 who then controls it.

Ruling: In both (a) and (b) the ball remains in control of team A. The 10-second count continues.

29. Play: A squad list of ten is supplied the official scorer prior to the start of the game. During the game A1 is disqualified. The coach does not provide a replacement for A1, indicating that team A will continue the game with four players and that none of the five substitutes will become a participant.

Ruling: Team A is required to have a team of five players as long as there is personnel available. The referee should notify the coach of team A that five players are required. If the coach of team A does not cooperate, the referee should assess a technical foul for delay of game. If team A does not then provide a fifth player, the game should be forfeited to team B.

Comment: The question following Rule 3, Section 1, provides that a team may play with fewer than five players only when there are no substitutes available. However, the interpretation definitely indicates that when there are substitutes available, a team must have five players.

30. Play: While in the act of making a field goal try, A1 is held by B1. The ball: (a) enters the basket; or (b) does not enter the basket. In both (a) and (b), A2 commits basket interference at his own basket.

Ruling: In both (a) and (b) the goal does not count, and A1 is awarded two free throws.

31. Play: A1 travels. As the official sounds his whistle to kill the ball, he notices there are 2 seconds remaining in the period. However, the timer does not get the clock stopped promptly and time expires.

Ruling: Timing errors which may be corrected are restricted to those which result from the timer's neglect to stop or start the clock as specified by rules coverage. The rules coverage does not permit the referee to make allowance for the reaction time of the timer which results in a "lag" in stopping the clock.

32. Play: Team A is granted a time-out. The electric timer indicates no time remains in that period. However, the signal has not sounded.

Ruling: If the electric timer is working properly the signal must sound to terminate the period except when the ball is in flight on a try or there is a foul to be penalized.

33. Play: Prior to a free throw attempt by A1, B6 replaces B2. The attempt by A1 is successful. B2 reports to the scorer and desires to reenter.

Ruling: B2 may not reenter before the next opportunity to substitute after the clock has been started following his replacement.

34. Play: A1 ends his dribble. He then passes the ball against the back of: (a) B1; or (b) the official. In each case he then recovers the ball.

Ruling: In (a) the action is legal and A1 may dribble again. In (b) it is a violation as soon as A1 recovers the ball. When the ball touches the official it is the same as if the ball touches the floor where the official is standing. When A1 recovered the ball in (b) he committed a double dribble.

35. Play: A1 ends his dribble and then passes the ball against the backboard of B2 and catches the rebound.

Ruling: Violation. Ball is awarded to team B at spot out of bounds nearest to where the violation occurred.

36. Play: A2, in attempting to screen, takes a stationary position in the path of moving B2. The position of A2: (a) is so close that B2 cannot avoid A2 and contact results; or (b) is far enough away so that B2, who is aware of the position of A2, has an opportunity to avoid A2 but contact still results.

Ruling: In (a), the foul is on A2 for blocking. In (b), B2 did not use the opportunity to avoid A2 and, therefore, he is responsible for the contact and the foul for charging is committed by him.

37. Play: A1 is dribbling toward his own basket and attempts field goal. B1 reaches out and pulls on A1's shirt, as A1 tries for field goal. The ball enters the basket. Does the official award two free throws for intentional foul?

Ruling: Yes. Intentional foul for which two free throws are awarded.

38. Play: A1 is in the act of trying for field goal. B1 makes contact with A1 after the ball has left the hand of A1 and the attempt is successful. Is A1 awarded the 1 and 1 bonus throw even though the foul was neither intentional nor flagrant?

Ruling: If bonus rule was in effect A1 would be awarded a bonus try if his first try was successful.

39. Play: Free throw by A1 goes in basket but both B1 and A2 are in the lane too soon. Referee erroneously rules that on double violation the point counts. How can B get correction?

Ruling: The error occurred while the clock was stopped, therefore, if the attention of the official is called to the error before the clock is next started, official should cancel the point.

A Mother's Point of View

The role of a wrestling mother is a hard one, and, if you are new on the mat, you have much to learn.

Of course, you won't really be on the mat, at least hope you won't. You'll just feel as if you were. When you stagger away from your first meet, your muscles will ache from vicarious wrestling as you strain to help your little darling who is on the mat.

But first there are certain prerogatives and status symbols that you will recognize as part of your new role.

The costume is important. You can always tell a neophyte. She'll have on a wool suit or a sweater too good to fall on the floor under the stand. She'll be dressed for a PTA tea and it just won't do.

The very first thing you'll learn is that there is no place this side of Hades as hot as a wrestling room. You wear a cotton dress or a cotton blouse and a sweater that preferably is expendable.

Chewing gum is frowned upon in some circles, but it's part of the equipment for these events. Life Savers help, too. You can alternate, but any mother in the know will have one or both in her purse.

You can't tear your hair when Junior prances out on the mat to face that monster who is obviously five years older and 10 pounds heavier than your son, but you have to do something!

Now, about this sport: a technical expert could make it complicated, but we'll try to give you a simplified explanation—from a woman's point of view, so to speak.

A match is divided into three parts. For the first, the opponents stand in a circle and glare at each other. When the referee blows his whistle, they start a sort of dance—round and round with much lunging and plunging.

The object is to overpower the other fellow, bring him to the mat, and land on top of him more or less. That accomplishment is called a "takedown" and is good for two points.

One dramatic way to get a takedown, used by the more robust at times, is to lift the opponent into the air, sort of waving him around like a flag, then slam him bodily onto the mat. If your son is the flag, this is not a good system!

Now, we have two more rounds to go. (You've had enough? Grit your teeth, Mom. It'll get worse before better.)

In each of these, one man is "on the bottom" and one "on top." This is determined by the impartial toss of a coin and alternates, the winner having his "druthers" the first time.

If he thinks he can get away from the big ape, your boy may choose to be down, since to reverse him means two points. The chances vary with size, shape, and wind of the opponents being factors.

Now for the sake of this treatise, let's assume that Junior is on the bottom. The whistle blows. Whoops! Who is where and why? Looks like a couple of snakes coming out of hibernation—whose leg is that anyway? He's going to break his arm! Wait, it's all right; your clever son has reversed him.

That means that he is now on top and in control—two points for that one, too.

Now just suppose that that beast should break away . . . not reverse, just break loose and get away. That is known as an escape and merits one point.

That's enough for your first lesson, though.

Did I mention that it's also permissible to scream, beat on the girl in front of you, or as one well-known

Ralph E. Hill, 87, for twenty years Registrar at the University of Louisville and former Secretary-Treasurer of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association (1922-37), died in Louisville on December 23, 1967.

Mr. Hill was a native of Petoskey, Michigan. He received his Bachelor's Degree from Albion College, his Master's Degree from the University of Louisville. He taught mathematics at the Louisville Male High School for more than twenty years.

From 1920 to 1927 Mr. Hill was Superintendent of Somerset City Schools. He joined the University of Louisville faculty in 1927 as Head of the Mathematics Department, becoming Registrar in 1929. When he retired twenty years later, he had seen the University grow from an enrollment of 1,913 to 8,260.

A Rotarian for many years, Mr. Hill was a Past President of the Somerset Club, and in 1947 was Governor of the Rotary Western District. He was an Elk and a Shriner. He was a member of the Bardstown Road Presbyterian Church.

mother of wrestlers used to do, hide your head in your neighbor's shoulder until the worst is over.

Nor will practice improve your lot. The more you know and the more you go, the larger butterflies you'll entertain, but you'll sit bravely on, living for the moment when your match is over, and never, never letting on to son that you had qualms once.

If he wins, you may praise him with restraint; if he gets clobbered, you talk about something else.

Immunization And The Athlete

An athlete must respect the fundamentals of defense as well as offense. If not, he is incomplete in his readiness for competitive sports and vulnerable to a worthy opponent. So it is with an athlete's health. The athlete who hasn't the basic defenses against the threats of disease also is vulnerable to worthy opponents.

The analogy can go further. The nature of defensive strategies and techniques varies from sport to sport, from opponent to opponent, and from athlete to athlete. Likewise, preventive measures against disease vary with particular diseases, circumstances, and individuals.

One of the most effective defenses man can offer against communicable disease fortunately is the easiest: immunization. Simply by visiting a physician periodically, a person can protect himself against an ever-increasing number of infectious diseases. This requires no further conscious thought, change in behavior, nor self-discipline. A number of diseases still defy the immunization process, and for these, other defenses must be employed. Too many persons, however, have not acquired those defenses currently available from immunization and thus remain unnecessarily vulnerable.

The high school athlete probably will have acquired immunity against some diseases such as measles, chickenpox, and perhaps mumps by having had these diseases during childhood. As a child, also, he probably has been immunized against other diseases such as whooping cough, smallpox, diphtheria and polio via vaccinations. Just as in sports where periodic review of one's defenses is necessary to utilize or contend with new offense adaptations and defense innovations, so must an athlete's immunization schedule receive periodic evaluation.

Late in 1966, the American Medical Association Council on Environmental and Public Health, in cooperation with the U. S. Public Health Service Communicable Disease Center, brought together experts on immunology to review the latest information on immunization schedules. The consequent recommendations apropos to the athlete of secondary school or college age follow. Post-immunization soreness and transient symptoms should be anticipated and the immunization schedule put well in advance of a season's onset:

Tetanus is an ever-present hazard for the athlete. Having been deposited on the ground in the excreta of animals, the tetanus bacteria in spore form have a long communicable period in the dirt that frequents play areas. Puncture wounds, lacerations, and abrasions into which dirt has been forced pose a special threat. The incidence of tetanus infection remains about 400 annually; but the high mortality rate (almost half of those infected), plus the fact that the agent cannot be eradicated, give this disease its dread character. Immunization with tetanus toxoid every ten years, plus possibly a booster dose when a tetanus-prone injury occurs, provide simple but vital defenses.

Smallpox has not occurred in the U. S. for several years, but an outbreak could take place at any time. Athletes should be vaccinated against the smallpox virus every three years. The potential severity of the disease merits faithful attention to the recommended frequency of revaccinations.

Poliomyelitis is no longer a majorcrippler of youth thanks to the vaccines recently developed by Doctors Sabin and Salk. But it is not yet down and out, and outbreaks do occur. The oral vaccine is preferred because it rapidly develops a long-lasting immunity and because it is easier to take. Athletes who are certain they have received the recommended doses need not request further immunization.

Influenza immunization recommendations are not as firm as for other diseases. Its relative protection becomes significant primarily in an impending epidemic, and the injection ordinarily is given in the fall to the aged and debilitated to reduce the severity of the disease if contracted. Yet, there is some justification for routine use of the vaccine for those who are continually exposed to large groups of people and whose day-to-day performance levels are of significance. Since a winter sport athlete fits these criteria, he should seek local medical advice with respect to immunization.

Measles immunization is the latest of the defensive breakthroughs against a major disease. The seriousness of the potential complications associated with measles has prompted an all-out national campaign by the medical profession to immunize every child with the new vaccine. Most high school athletes are immune to measles from a childhood infection, but those who state they have never had the disease should be protected against this disease by vaccination.

Diphtheria is still on the essential list of immunizations because sporadic outbreaks occur in the U. S. In early childhood, diphtheria vaccine is often combined with tetanus toxoid and whooping cough vaccine to provide a convenient one-dose protection against all three diseases. Later on, the whooping cough vaccine is dropped since it is not a serious threat to older children and adults.

Protection against a number of other diseases with appropriate immunization procedures on a localized basis is sometimes recommended when exposure is suspected. These include anthrax, brucellosis, Q fever, rabies, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, and tularemia. Because of the modern international mobility of the public, "disease of the past" such as typhoid, yellow fever, and cholera may return as threats. A great reservoir of unprotected unsuspecting persons remain to acquire and transmit such diseases if reintroduced.

Participation in athletics is an opportune occasion to gain an appreciation for the principles of infectious disease control because an athlete cannot afford to leave such matters to chance. The significance of a disease varies from a temporary nuisance to a permanent impairment. To an athlete and his team, any deviation from peak readiness is more than a nuisance. Moreover, the athlete is in group contact constantly and travels frequently. These factors give the athlete more exposure to infectious agents than his nonathletic friends, making inattention to the defenses of immunization not only regrettable but almost inexcusable.
