Early Season Basketball Questions

EDITOR'S NOTE: These interpretations of the rules of the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada do not set aside nor modify any rule. The rulings are made by the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations in response to situations presented.

Clifford B. Fagan, Committee Secretary

1. Play: A1 is awarded 2 free throws for being fouled during an unsuccessful try. Just before A1 is to be handed the ball for his: (a) first free throw; or (b) second free throw, the scorer sounds his signal and advises the official that A1 is not listed in the scorebook.

Ruling: In both (a) and (b) A1 must remain in the game to attempt his free throws. His name must be entered in the book and he is assessed a technical foul. After he completes his free throws any member of team B may attempt the free throw for the technical foul on A1. Play is then continued with a center jump between any two opponents.

2. Play: Dribbler A1 charges B1, thereby committing a player control foul. Simultaneously, B2 holds A2.

Ruling: False double foul. A1 is charged with a personal foul. Because it is a player control foul, B1 is not awarded a free throw(s) for it. A2 is awarded a free throw for the holding foul committed by B2. The ball becomes dead following the free throw attempt by A2 and play is resumed by a jump at center.

3. Play: After the 4th Quarter expires with the score tied, A1 is charged with a flagrant technical foul. Either team A or B then requests and is granted a time-out. At the expiration of the time-out, B1 attempts the first free throw, which is either successful or unsuccessful. Following the free throw, either team A or B requests and is granted a time-out.

Ruling: Legal. The second time-out is not considered to be immediately following the first time-out because the ball has become alive between the two time-out periods.

4. Play: After he has ended his dribble, A1 jumps into the air and tries for a field goal. The try is short and A1, who follows in on his own attempt, catches the ball beneath the basket, then again jumps into the air and throws the ball through a basket.

Ruling: A legal goal. A1 and his team lost control of the ball when he made a bona fide field goal attempt. When A1 retrieved his attempt, he reestablished team control for team control for team A and his second try is legal.

5. Play: A1, in a post player position in the scoring area of his front court, is closely guarded by B1. He has not dribbled. After he has been closely guarded for a 4-second count, A1 tosses the ball from his right hand to his left hand.

Ruling: A1 has dribbled, therefore, the closely guarded count has been broken. It will be restarted when A1 holds the ball in his left hand while being closely guarded.

6. Play: Before the ball is made available to A1 for a free throw attempt, B3 takes a position in the fourth free throw lane space. B3 is in this position at the time the ball is made available to A1. After A1 has the ball, B3 moves backward out of his space.

Ruling: B3 has committed a violation.

Comment: Restrictions apply to the spaces all along the free throw lane, as well as on the semi-circle which is directly behind the free throw line.

7. Play: B is awarded the ball out of bounds for a throw-in. B stands and holds the ball for three seconds when A calls for a time-out.

Ruling: A should be granted a time-out because change of status is not about to occur.

8. Play: '34 gets defensive rebound and excessively swings arms and elbows. During the swinging, he contacts A3. The foul is neither flagrant nor intentional.

Ruling: Player control foul. Ball is awarded to A at nearest spot for throw-in.

9. Play: Throw-in by A1 from his free throw line extended is touched (not controlled) by A2, who is in A's mid-court area. After A2 has touched the pass, it goes into the back court, where A2 successfully gains control of it.

Ruling: There has been no violation.

10. Play: A1 is disqualified by being charged with his fifth personal foul. During the one minute available to Team A to replace A1, the coach of Team A leaves his bench and goes to the sideline to give the team instructions.

Ruling: There is no infraction of the rules. Provided by 10-9 "coaches shall remain seated on the bench except, while the clock is stopped, they may leave the bench to directly encourage players who are on the court." Should, however, players of Team A, except disqualified A1, leave the floor, there would be an infraction.

11. Play: Team B requests time-out while A1 is in possession of the ball. The referee erroneously grants the time-out. The official, immediately after granting the time-out, realizes he has made an error.

Ruling: Team B is entitled to the time-out and the time-out is charged to it. All privileges and rights permitted a team during a charged time-out are available to both Team A and Team B.

12. Play: A1 scores a legal goal. A2 quickly secures the ball and throws to A3 who immediately scores. The official readily realizes what has happened.

Ruling: In these circumstances the official will be correct in disallowing the goal by A3 and awarding ball to Team B out of bounds at the end of the court, where A1 scored. If the official believes that the action of A2 was intentional, it should be ruled as unsportsmanlike action and official, would assess A2 with a technical foul.

Comment: If, in the above play situation, there has been an appreciable length of play, such as 8 to 10 seconds, following the throw-in by A2 and then A3 scores, after which the mistake is detected, the goal by A3 would count.

13. Play: Team A has the ball out of bounds for a throw-in. A2 is in the front court. A1 passes the ball to A2, who, while the pass is in flight, leaps into the air from the front court, catches the ball while he is in the air, and then comes to the floor in the back court without traveling.

Ruling: This is a violation. A2 has caused the ball to go from the front court to the back court.

Comment: As provided by 4-17, A2 has jumped from the front court. When he touches the ball, it becomes alive instantaneously. A2 takes it from the front court to the back court. This statement is in no way in conflict with Comment 201A in the current issue of the Basketball Case Book. The

"But the athlete needs more than his own desire to carry through. He needs a coach who cares. It's the coach's job to train and encourage, to use his experience to the athlete's advantage. If and when the athlete attains his goal, his success is the coach's only reward.

"But what more reward could any coach, any person, want?"

Spectators Ethics

The need for some rules of good conduct on the part of spectators has been felt for some time. In compliance with a request from the Board of Control, the staff of the NCHSAA has drafted the following Code of Ethics and it is presented here with the request that member schools use every opportunity to bring it before students, adult fans and organized groups. In this way we hope to improve spectator conduct at all our athletic events.

It is highly recommended that principals encourage their students to develop their own code of ethics for spectators, using the following as a model.

Believing that sportsmanship is a by-product of a spirit of tolerance and good will and the centering of attention on the good qualities of all involved, and

Believing that my conduct is an important part in the school athletic program, I pledge myself to act in accordance with these principals.

As an athletic spectator I will:

1. EXEMPLIFY the highest moral character, behavior, and leadership so as to be a worthy example.

2. MAINTAIN and exhibit poise, self-discipline, and restraint during and after the contest.

3. CONDUCT myself in such a manner that attention is drawn not to me, but to the participants playing the game.

4. REGULATE my actions at all times so that I will be a credit to the team I support, knowing the school gets the praise or blame for my conduct since I represent my school the same as does the athlete.

5. SUPPORT all reasonable moves to improve good sportsmanship.

6. TREAT the visiting team and spectators as guests, being courteous and fair.

7. AVOID actions which will offend the individual athlete.

8. ACCEPT the judgment of the coach.

9. HONOR the rights of the visitors in a manner in which I would expect to be treated.

10. RESPECT the property of the school.

11. DISPLAY good sportsmanship by being modest in victory and gracious in defeat.

12. PAY respects to both teams as they enter for competition.

13. APPRECIATE the good plays by both teams.

14. SHOW sympathy for an injured player.

15. REGARD the officials as guests and treat them as such.

16. DIRECT my energy to encouraging my team rather than booing the officials.

17. BELIEVE that the officials are fair and accept their decisions as final.

18. LEARN the rules of the game in order to try to be a more intelligent fan.

19. CONSIDER it a privilege and duty to encourage everyone to live up to the spirit of the rules of fair play and sportsmanship.

20. REALIZE that privileges are invariably associated with great responsibilities and that spectators have great responsibilities.

Just To Have Molded The Boy A Little

By Herman L. Masin

Few high school coaches wind up in the 90 percent tax bracket. Not with their take-home pay. They can't even get up there by marrying the boss's daughter. All that would give them is a principal for a father-in-law. Then why, people ask, do coaches dedicate themselves so completely to their profession?

The answer is easy enough. Every coach knows it. But imagine Joe Hicks' surprise when he got it all beautifully written out for him by one of the girls in his advanced physical education class at James Monroe H. S., Fredericksburg, Va.

It started out innocently enough with a class assignment; "Describe a coach in your own words." Look at the paper Joe got from Jan Stockley, a member of the girls hockey and basketball teams.

"Coaching, particularly high school coaching, isn't especially noted for its golden financial opportunities. Why, then, have so many outstanding people chosen it as a career. Is it only because they themselves were good athletes or is it because they saw values in it that could not be gained behind an office desk or computer?

"To dedicate himself to a job, a person must derive satisfaction from it. In coaching, satisfaction can come from the achievements of a team or a particular performer, say a state basketball championship or a high jump record.

"However, the real satisfaction usually lies in working with the athletes themselves, whether they are champions or cellar-dwellers. The communication between athlete and coach can easily develop into a lasting friendship, built on mutual respect and understanding. The coach can gain just as much from this friendship as the athlete, possibly more.

"Once the coach establishes such communication his influence becomes immeasurable. He holds the power to develop not only an excellent sportsman but a sensitive and well-adjusted person.

"The normal barriers between young people and adults usually come down between athletes and coaches. The chance to be even a small part of the panorama of people and the events that shape lives is eagerly seized by a good coach, and he usually profits from it years later when one of 'his boys' accomplishes the unprecedented or impossible. Just to have molded the boy a little is enough; it is the greatest value of coaching.

"Coaching is the greatest because it's alive and always moving. Different people, different situations, different challenges; this is what coaching offers. It never stagnates, because the people that the coach works with - the athletes - never do. They set new goals, try for new records, dream new dreams. The accomplishments of one always becomes the goal of the next to surpass.

THE PROBLEM OF LOSING WEIGHT

By Stanley W. Henson, Jr., M.D.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Henson has the necessary experience and professional training to intelligently present the subject of weight reduction for wrestling. He was a three-time N. C. A. A. champion at Oklahoma State University and is a member of the Helm's Foundation Amateur Wrestling Hall of Fame. In addition, he is a Diplomat of the American Board of Surgery and a Fellow of the American College of Surgery. Weight reduction in wrestling has long been one of the problem areas at the interscholastic level. This paper explains in great detail the reasons why everyone should be concerned with this problem. It is highly recommended for coaches, administrators, parents and athletes.

Clifford B. Fagan

The objective of losing excess weight is to achieve maximum physical efficiency. This should be an important part of any athletic training program.

The objective of establishing weight classes in wrestling is to match young men of equal size against one another.

Neither of these objectives is consistent with a desire to give one boy or one team an advantage in size merely because the coach or trainer is able to sweat more pounds off his team than his opponents.

Ideally, wrestlers should lose the excess weight they carry until they achieve their best weight for maximum performance. They would then wrestle in whatever weight class they fall.

In most instances, a boy can lose several pounds of weight and not be affected by it, especially if it is done slowly and properly. All too often one sees a wrestler badly defeated, not by his opponent alone, but by the program of weight reduction he has followed prior to weighing-in.

How can this problem be resolved? To begin with, the coach or trainer must understand basic problems in weight reduction. He must understand the sources of weight that can be safely dealt with. He must understand how much weight can safely be lost by an individual boy. He must also understand how fast it can be lost and, most important of all, the sources of body weight that should not be interfered with.

There are two main sources of body weight which can be removed from the human body — body fat and body fluid. Depot fat is excess weight for athletes. It is utilized by the body too slowly to be useful during an athletic contest. It can be eliminated almost entirely from the body if done slowly and properly. Unfortunately, this is the hardest weight to lose.

Body fluid on the other hand is not excess weight. Loss of just a few pounds may be dangerous, and to the athlete it can be disastrous so far as his physical and mental efficiency is concerned. It is unfortunate that this is the easiest weight to lose and accounts for most of the mistakes that are made by wrestlers, coaches and trainers.

Now let us consider these two main sources of weight and how they can safely be dealt with. Fat is oxidized in the body into two main components, glycerol and fatty acid. Glycerol is utilized as carbohydrate or glucose with release of heat and energy. Fatty acids, on the other hand, are oxidized further with production of ketone bodies. These ketone bodies are utilized slowly by the body at a constant rate. When fat is oxidized at a rapid rate, ketone bodies are formed faster than they can be utilized. They accumulate in the body and result in a clinical state called ketosis or acidosis.

The body gives up stored fat slowly and reluctantly. Carbohydrates are utilized first and after the available stores of carbohydrates are used, the body converts stored fat into its breakdown products mentioned above. The loss of depot fat is accomplished only by starvation. During this period of utilization of fat, the athlete becomes irritable and restless. He is not in the best condition for active competition until the process is completed. Fat should be lost at a slow rate to prevent acidosis, probably not more than three to five pounds a week. The ideal or optimum weight should be reached before competition begins and the weight held steady within a few pounds of the wrestler's weight class throughout the wrestling season. Vitamin B Complex should probably be given during this period, since certain vitamins of the group act as enzymes to facilitate the oxidation of fats.

Body fluid makes up 70% of our total body weight. We take in fluid through the gastro-intestinal tract with our food, and lose fluid through the lungs, sweat glands and the kidneys. It is the function of the kidneys to regulate the chemical structure of the body fluids. Excess loss of body fluid results in dehydration. An important feature of dehydration is that water loss is always accompanied by loss of electrolytes. Electrolytes are the ions in solution in body fluid which are necessary for all physiologic functions such as transmission of nerve impulses and the contraction of muscle. An effort is made by the body, especially the kidneys, to preserve the delicate ionic concentration of electrolytes by selective excretion of them in the urine. When the process of dehydration is rapid or prolonged, concentration of these electrolytes departs progressively from their normal values because there is a lag in fluid and electrolyte adjustment between the fluid compartments of the body. Initially the water loss is sustained by the interstitial fluid. Nature tries to protect the blood volume and the intracellular fluid volume. With advancing dehydration, kidney function is impaired, there is loss of blood volume, and finally loss of intracellular fluid. With only moderate electrolyte imbalance extreme weakness, mental confusion and muscular incoordination results.

In summary then we might outline a program of weight reduction for wrestlers. First, the trainer or coach should determine what the optimum weight for each wrestler should be. This is the weight at which the individual performs at his maximum efficiency.

Secondly, the wrestler should lose the depot or storage fat that he has on his body. This should be done at a slow, even rate, and is best done before the season begins. It requires discipline, an adequate diet, and perhaps supplemental vitamins of the B Complex group.

Third, the caloric intake must be adjusted to maintain the ideal weight of the individual.

Finally, one should not disturb the fluid and electrolyte balance of the body, because the greater the disturbance, the less efficiently the wrestler will perform and the longer it will take to reestablish a proper balance.

BASKETBALL QUESTIONS

exception to causing the ball to go from the front court to the back court, relates only to a jump ball and does not apply to a throw-in. Here we refer to rule 9-9, 6-1 (b) provides that the ball becomes alive "on a throw-in" when the ball touches or is touched by a player who is inbound. A2 has control when he catches the ball.

14. Play: A5 was in the game when the first half ended. After one minute of play, in the second half, it is discovered that A5 changed his shirt number during the intermission without reporting it to the scorer and an official.

Ruling: A5 is immediately disqualified. Team B is awarded two free throws after which team B is awarded the ball out of bounds at the division line.

15. Play: A1, whose forearm, hand or wrist is injured, has to be protected by a cast, the surface of which is entirely covered with a soft padding.

Ruling: Illegal equipment. Casts and braces for forearm, hand and wrist, made of sole leather, plastic, metal or any other hard substance, are always illegal equipment, regardless of whether these are covered with a soft material.

16. Play: What shirt numbers are legal?

Ruling: Only arabic numbers are legal. Arabic numbers which comply with the rules are: even; 0, 4, 10, 12, 14, 20, 22, 24, 30, 32, 34, 40, 42, 44, 50, 52, 54; odd 3, 5, 11, 13, 15, 21, 23, 25, 31, 33, 35, 41, 43, 45, 51, 53, 55. It is not illegal to use a double 00 or three digit numbers. However, the Basketball Rules Committee strongly recommends against their use.

17. Play: (a) A1, in his back court, dribbles for 8 seconds and then throws the ball against the leg of opponent B1, after which he recovers and holds the ball; or (b) A1 passes toward A2 and the ball is batted by B1, but continues on to A2 who secures control.

Ruling: The ball remained in control of Team A in both (a) and (b). 10 seconds count continues in both situations.

18. Play: A1, is between B1 and B2 on the restraining circle prior to a jump ball. When the official is ready to make the toss, A1 backs off the circle. B2 moves over next to B1 and A2, then moves into the position indicated by B2.

Ruling: When the official is ready to make the toss, positions on the restraining circle are frozen. A player may move off the circle. However, no players may change his position on the circle nor may other players come up and take positions on the circle. The purpose of this interpretation is to eliminate jockeying for position and creating game delay situation.

19. Play: After the ball has been placed at the disposal of A1 for a free throw, A3, who has taken a position in the second lane space moves out of it backward.

Ruling: No infraction. The restriction regarding moving out of the lane space applies only to opponents of the free thrower.

20. Play: What are the dimensions of player spaces on the restraining cylinder (line) of the jump circle?

Ruling: These spaces are assumed to be comparable in size, both depth and width, to the free throw lane spaces. Therefore, they are 3 feet deep and 3 feet wide.

21. Play: During a jump ball, or while the ball is in flight after an unsuccessful field goal attempt, or while it is in flight from the batting of a rebound, the official sounds his whistle: (a) accidentally; or (b) because the ball has lodged on the basket flange; or (c) because a player has been seriously injured and the play is completed in accordance with the note following 5-8; or (d) to signify basket interference or goal tending.

Ruling: Play is resumed in (a), (b), and (c) by a jump ball between any two opponents in the circle which is nearest to where the ball becomes dead. In (d), the penalty for the violation is administered following the ball becoming dead.

MINUTES OF BOARD MEETING

The Board of Control of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association met at the K.H.S.A.A. building, Lexington, on Saturday afternoon, December 20, 1969. The meeting was called to order by President Ralph C. Dorsey at 2:00, with all Board members, Commissioner Theo. A. Sanford, Assistant Commissioner J. B. Mansfield, and Assistant Commissioner Billy V. Wise present. The invocation was given by W. H. Crowds.

W. H. Crowds moved, seconded by Richard Vincent, that the reading of the minutes of the September 27th meeting be waived, since members of the Board had received copies of these minutes. The motion was carried unanimously.

The Commissioner reported that the football championship playoffs continue to be successful, with increased attendance at the first round, semi-final and final games. Financial reports had been received from ten game managers, indicating that all expenses had been paid with shares of profits having been sent to the schools involved. The finals in the three classes, held in Louisville and Lexington, had set a new record in receipts and attendance. He recommended that each team in the three classes participating in the playoff finals be allowed the amount of $600.00 for incidental expenses. W. H. Crowds moved, seconded by Don Davis, that the expense allowance for each of the class finalists, recommended by the Commissioner, be approved by the Board. The motion

Administrators and coaches representing the Boyd County, Paul G. Blazer and Russell high schools met with the Board for the purpose of discussing certain problems relating to football game scheduling in District 1, Region 3, of Class AA. The discussion related to possible re-districting for the football seasons of 1971 and 1972.

The Commissioner stated that he planned to re-schedule the 1970 Class AAA regional and state track meets for boys and girls to the dates of May 15, and May 22, with the approval of the Board of Control. Members of the Board saw no objection to this change in dates.

The Commissioner stated that he had received a letter from Mr. Jerry Rexroat, Chairman of a Hospitality Committee representing several local officials' associations, requesting that the associations be given the opportunity to sponsor a hospitality room at the forthcoming State High School Basketball Tournament. The Board gave its approval to the request.

Chairman Foster J. Sanders of the Retirement Committee stated that his committee had met and was making a study of the current retirement program of the Association, with the idea of making certain improvements in the program; and that certain recommendations of the Committee would be made at a subsequent meeting of the Board of Control.

Chairman Don Davis of the Building Committee stated that his committee had met and was continuing its search for an adequate site on which the proposed new K.H.S.A.A. office building would be erected.

James T. Dotson moved, seconded by Tom Mills, that all bills of the Association for the period beginning September 1, 1969, and ending November 30, 1969, be allowed. The motion was carried unanimously.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

Dear Reader:

For a good many years you have seen our ads in this space. You may have decided that they are repetitious, lacking in imagination, or even inept.

You may be right. But consider our dilemma. Our product is intangible until it is needed - then it becomes very tangible indeed - in terms of prompt service and hard cash to pay the expenses of an injury.

Intangibles cannot be readily shown by pictures or charts in ads. Our interest in and understanding of your problems are real. Our years of experience in providing the best coverage and claim service at a realistic price are also real. The fact that the cheapest is rarely the best or most serviceable has been proven over and over.

But, how do you express these facts? We try in two ways:

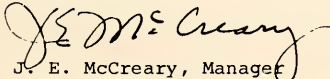

1. By the use of our simple ads.
2. By trying to keep abreast of current trends affecting your insurance needs and offering service and insurance coverage to meet these needs.

The Cooperative Football Plan for Kentucky High Schools is one development we feel proves our awareness of your needs.

If you are not now using our services shouldn't you find out about them?
