The Board of Control of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association met at the office of the K.H.S.A.A. in Lexington, on Saturday, September 28, 1974. The meeting was called to order by President W. P. Wheeler at 9:00 A.M. Present were Board members Louie Martin, Jack Fultz, Arthur Hawkins, George E. Sauer, Jr., Frank B. Simpson, Ray Story, Fairce O. Woods, Jim Williams, Cecil Reid, Commissioner J. B. Mansfield and Assistant Commissioners Tom Mills, Louis Stout and Billy Wise. Thomas Creamer and Mr. Cecil Reid, Principal of Symsonia High School, who was elected to fill out the unexpired term of Howard Crittenden in Section 1.

Jack Fultz moved, seconded by Frank Simpson that the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting be waived since members of the Board had received copies of these minutes. The motion was carried unanimously.

The Football Classification for 1975 and 1976, as appears elsewhere in the "Athlete", was adopted upon a motion by George Sauer and a second by Arthur Hawkins. All members voted in favor of the motion.

All members voted aye. The successful bidders were The Riherd Sport Shop, Glasgow, Kentucky; The Trophy House, Owensboro, Kentucky; and The Athletics Goods Service, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Minutes of the State Cross Country MeetingK.H.S.A.A. Building September 5, 1974

Regional managers for the Cross Country program met to discuss the tournament sites for the 1974 season. It was recommended that the winner and runner-up teams from each region, along with the first five individuals not on a qualifying team, be eligible for the State Meet. The regional sites were chosen by the managers along with recommendations that the State Meet for all three classes be held in Louisville, with Mr. Eddie Weber as manager, at Seneca Park. The State Meets will be held on October 26 at 10:30 A.M. for Class AAA, 11:30 A.M. for Class AA and 12:30 P.M. for Class A.

It was also recommended that the 1975 State Meet be moved to November 1. The regional sites, managers, and teams assigned to each are listed below. Each school listed will receive from the regional manager an information sheet and entry blank prior to the meet.

"Interscholastic Activities— Some Of Its Problems And Challenges"

by Lyman Ginger
 Kentucky State Superintendent of Public Instruction at the 55th Annual Meeting of the National Federation of State
 High School Associations

Mr. Karlin, platform guests, members of the National Federation, and guests. Even though Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll has extended a warm welcome to the visitors, I would like to add my word of welcome to you and express my genuine thanks for your coming to Kentucky for the Federation meeting.

It has been a real pleasure for me to meet and to renew acquaintances with quite a number of Federation members and Football Rules Committee members I had known in previous years. I am not sure how many years it has been since my first contact with the National Federation. I recall very well going from Chicago to Portland by train. Dave Arnold was on that trip and several other members of the Federation were going to the same conference. I also recall with a great deal of interest that the people of Oregon fed the entire assembly with one fish. Of course, the assembly was not quite as large then but the fish was, I can assure you. From that time until now I have had occasion to be in touch with members of the Federation. Cliff Fagan I have known for a long time. H. V. Porter was one of the first persons I met in the Federation. Therefore, my contacts have been numerous and very rewarding. It was with pleasure tonight that I met Mr. Williams from Idaho and had a chance to visit with him briefly. I believe it was announced that he is retiring soon and I can assure you that he has made a great contribution for his state and for the nation.

I am aware of the fine work that the Federation has done in the development of football rules, basketball rules, the publications that have been distributed, the research projects that have been carried on, and the regulations that have been applied and enforced for many, many years.

In this discussion tonight I would like to raise the general question of the place of interscholastic athletics in the educational venture of this nation and to raise a second question, "Do interscholastic athletics contribute to educational accomplishments?" What I shall say is certainly only one man's opinion but I shall try to reflect on what I believe to be the many outstanding and important contributions that interscholastic athletics do make. I reviewed some of the previous studies that have been made about the educational objectives of this nation. I found that in one study needs were classified as biological, sociological, emotional, and educational and that this particular research believed that everything that is done with the school boy and girl should point in one of these four directions. Another study indicated that fundamental processes, for example, the skills of reading, writing, and communication, civic development, being a worthy home member, health, character development, use of leisure, and vocations were the outstanding objectives. A third study indicated that health and physical fitness, educational skills, citizenship, economic development, the development of scientific method, an appreciation for the fine arts, the proper use of leisure time, respect for other, creative thought, and society and the family as it contributes to the over-all well being should be the aims and goals. You will observe that in all of these there are certain principles that cut through the different studies. You will also observe that in these there is no specific mention of interscholastic athletics and its contribution to society and to education in general.

I would like to make my position very clear at the outset. It is my firm conviction that interscholastic athletics do make a strong, firm, solid contribution to the education of our youth in this nation. I shall not attempt to point out the different number of ways that these contributions are made but to discuss as best I can some of the problems that confront us and some of the things that must be done in an effort to make education and interscholastic athletics fit together in such a way that interscholastic athletics may be accepted by the rank and file of our taxpayers and our parents.

If you will, please keep in mind the three studies I mentioned earlier. It is my belief that anything we do in our schools must be measured with these studies and these conclusions as a part of our measuring stick. Therefore, if you will keep these in mind, you will see how athletics may be fitted into the general program of education.

May I raise a few questions that I shall not attempt to answer but simply throw them out as a stimulus for further discussion. What are some of the specific challenges to interscholastic athletics? How do we fit interscholastic athletics into the total program of education? If we are not able to fit interscholastic athletics in for most of our boys and girls how many boys and girls should be included? What percentage or is there a percentage? What do we do to guarantee the greatest amount of participation?

One of the first problems I would like to mention is that of sex bias—an expression which suggests there is not an equal opportunity for both males and females in our schools. HEW has suggested that there shall not be sex bias in kindergartens, elementary grades, secondary grades, vocational schools, textbooks, or participation in any single program. I am sure that when we examine the content of the regulations of HEW, we will understand that boys and girls must be treated equally under every circumstance and that presentation of material in our literature and our textbooks which portrays the boy as the hunter, the brave guy, the fellow leaving home or the one who is doing the outstanding work for the production of money, goods, and services, and at the same time portrays the female as the demure, kind, sweet, considerate person who stays at home and keeps the home fires burning must come to an end and that any term or illustration which suggests a difference between the sexes will in the future be looked upon with a great deal of disfavor. Shop work in vocational schools must be open equally to both sexes and vocational occupations, such as home economics, sewing and the like, must be open equally to both sexes. Since this is the case, it suggests very strongly that in education there shall not be sex bias and the law suits that have been filed on behalf of females and the decisions that have been made suggest that in competition and interscholastic athletics of all kinds, there shall not be sex bias.

One of the first questions we should ask ourselves, I think, is whether all sports are equally advantageous to both boys and girls. Are the competitive sports, the contact sports—football, wrestling, soccer, ice hockey, and the like—the kinds of sports in which we should encourage girls to participate? We find that while there are about 400,000 boys participating in baseball in high school, there are practically no girls participating and that in basketball where 645,000 males are participating, only 132,000 females are participating and very few females are participating on the same teams with the males. Perhaps our culture and our previous habits and our previous understandings would suggest that sports such as bowling, golf, gymnastics, softball, swimming, and tennis might be more advantageous for young women. However, I would not dare say that these are the only sports that should be open to females. It is strongly suggested in the literature and in HEW regulations and in court cases that if females should request that they be allowed to participate in the competitive sports, that opportunities should be made available on an equal basis with males.

Just the other day I was participating in a press conference and the question of competition for women was raised. I very innocently asked the question, "Should girls participate in football?" Immediately, a 95-pound female suggested that, absolutely, if they wanted to play they should be permitted to play and that she would not object to going out for the football team at her high school and, in fact, she might just do that this fall. The question of safety came to my mind immediately and while I am not attempting to say that all of these things are wrong and should not be done, I am suggesting strongly that the question of interscholastic athletics for women in the years ahead is one that must be handled better than it has been in the past.

The best information I have suggests that about three and one-half million boys participate in high school athletics in some 15 to 20 different kinds of sports while approximately one-quarter million females participate in these same sports. This raises the question, then, do we have equal opportunity for both boys and girls and my answer is, categorically, no, it is not equal for both. It seems to me that we should start asking ourselves now under what conditions will girls play on the same teams and under what conditions will we have sports that are different for young men and young women. Who will decide this and under what conditions will it be decided? It seems to me that since we are in the education business that we should be very clear in our planning—looking ahead for five, ten, fifteen years and making provisions for equal opportunities under every circumstance. I am suggesting strongly that the National Federation must take the lead as it has in every other area of interscholastic athletics. You have been on record for a number of years in the development of policies and procedures in the area of sex bias and sex opportunity and when I use the term "sex" I still am referring to interscholastic athletics. The next responsibility rests with state associations, with principals' associations, with superintendents' groups, with parent-teacher association groups, and with state departments of education. In other words, I am suggesting that this is a broad, big problem that should be approached and attacked in a manner that will be sure that all of society helps to solve.

With this as a general background, may I move to another point. What about the facilities that are needed to provide opportunities for all of our boys and girls? Here I am thinking of large practice arenas, not just central gymnasiums with thousands of seats for spectators, but large practice areas where bowling, swimming, tennis courts, softball diamonds and many other kinds of opportunities are provided and all of this constructed as a part of the school facility so that the school serves boys and girls during the school day, other groups in the afternoon and evening, and on Saturdays and Sundays. It is my belief that if we are to serve all of our people in this educational venture, we must by all means provide adequately by encouraging this kind of construction and not just a large gymnasium where the spectators view the program but very few people participate. If we really believe that facilities should be constructed in such a way that they contribute to the educational venture of all society, then it is my feeling that we should invest in such a way that it does just that—provide for everyone on a twelve-month basis.

The next area of concern is that of coaches—how are they prepared and what kind of preparation will they have? Will they be both men and women and will women be coaching some of the men's sports and men coaching some of the women's sports? I would raise this question with you. Who teaches the skills courses in the universities and colleges in your state? Are they the head coaches and the people who really know coaching and the skills or are they graduate assistants who have a great deal of ambition but not much knowledge? Just who does the teaching of skills subjects for coaches and prospective coaches? I would suggest to you that these should be taught by the very best prepared coaches we have. I can think of nothing that is worse than to have coaches trying to work with teams when they are not able to develop the basic fundamental skills for our young people. For this reason, therefore, it appears to me that the Federation could work closely, not that you are not working closely, but even more closely with all colleges and universities in your state to see to it that the very best college coaches possible are working to develop the very best high school coaches.

To me it is tragic that young boys and girls develop the wrong habits when they are in the formative period of their training and are just beginning to learn. Unlearning is much more difficult than first learning, and some of the coaches I have seen working with junior high teams, little league and similar kinds of programs are certainly not well prepared in the basic fundamental skills. They have kids do wrong things in the wrong way at the wrong time and then to try to break the habit is certainly difficult if not almost impossible. It seems to me that if this is to be a fundamental part of the educational venture, we should insist that our coaches be properly prepared in every aspect of coaching. We make this kind of demand on our teachers of reading, we expect our science teachers to know the subject and to be able to teach it, we expect our math teachers to know and to be able to teach math, and we expect all others who work in the educational venture to be well prepared. Why not expect the same of coaches?

When we consider the needs for well prepared, good coaches, we must also consider at the same time, proper and appropriate salaries for all of our coaches. We must also consider security of coaches. You and I know that in many communities the coach who does not win is in jeopardy and we also know that unless these people can be given security beyond any that they have known in the past, we will continue to be hard pressed to find all of the properly prepared coaches that we need and that it will be difficult for us to fit our interscholastic athletics program into the total educational venture.

What shall be done with winning coaches and teams in cases of pregnancy? This is being handled in some cases in the courts but it appears to me that clearly established policies should be well defined in advance and that it should not be left to the courts for a decision, but how do we handle our coaching situations when they are on leave from classes to take teams on trips? How much extra pay do we have for our coaches and do we treat all coaches alike? Do we have established policies statewide that we recommend to all of our superintendents and do we have a sound educational basis for this? It seems to me that until we are able to face this one honestly and realistically, we will continue to have problems that do not lend themselves to solution in the educational venture.

The next major area I would like to discuss is that of funding, in general. Shall we continue to have booster clubs pay for a part of the uniforms, raise money to help construct stadiums, and raise money to do a number of things that logically belong in the educational budget? It is my strong feeling that booster clubs and similar type clubs not only should not be encouraged but should not be permitted. It is my feeling that if interscholastic athletics can be defended as being a part of the educational venture, it should be a part of the regular tax program and a part of the regular budget and that construction, operation of programs, purchase of equipment, purchase of uniforms, paying for transportation, and all the rest should be handled in the regular education budget. It is further my belief that the money taken in at the gate in all athletic events, with the possible exception of the regional and state tournaments, should go into the general budget as a part of the general revenue and that this would provide a much safer, sounder, better program of funding and budgeting to account for the income in this way rather than to say that our athletic programs must be and are self-supporting. I can see no justification for this in a sound educational venture. It seems to me that just as we, in some cases, purchase band uniforms and band instruments, that all band uniforms and all band instruments should be purchased out of the regular budget; that glee clubs, debating, and all the rest should be operated as a part of the educational program and that salaries for coaches, chaperones, equipment, ticket sellers, and all other miscellaneous costs should be a part of the regular budget. I realize that this is in conflict with the practice that is going on in many parts of the country and in many high schools but I would invite the National Federation and the state associations to work with superintendents and principals in every way possible to place funding on a sound basis and thereby make the total program a part of the educational venture.

I have already stated, I believe, that I strongly favor interscholastic athletics that are appropriate for both boys and girls and I favor their being a part of the education program but we are kidding ourselves, I think, if we believe for a moment that this is not expensive and does not cost additional funds. For example, during our last session of the legislature, one of the members of the House of Representatives stated that all it would cost to have girl's basketball would be a few uniforms so that the girls would be able to participate in proper attire. He had overlooked the fact that transportation costs, cost for extra coaches, and the like would probably be in the neighborhood of four to five million dollars if all schools in the Commonwealth participated in athletics for girls on the same basis that boys are now participating. I think we are shortsighted if we try to make this a "don't-cost-much" kind of program. I suggest that we should do it right and properly and that the cost should be borne just as the costs for science, mathematics, physics, chemistry, library, and all the rest are borne.

The next area I would like to discuss briefly is that of control. It seems to me that the National Federation has done an excellent job in regulating and in working with the states in developing rules and regulations that are sensible and reasonable. My only feeling is that you have not gone far enough. I realize that you cannot control all-star games after high school boys have received their diplomas but I suggest that all-star games are, for the most part, senseless and worthless. I know that it does help to salve the ego of a few people, and I know that it does provide some money for charitable organizations and for those who are trying to raise money the easy way. I realize all of this but I can assure you that this is one of the areas that will and does lead to problems that spill over into the college and professional ranks.

The whole problem of early practice and playing games before teams have been properly conditioned is one you have attempted to solve but in my opinion, that problem is still a pressing one in many parts of the country. The question of how many games shall be played is a question that should be answered in a very critical way. From my viewpoint, many states permit their high school athletes to participate in too many games prior to the tournaments. If we believe that all this is a part of the educational program, these questions must be considered and we must have rules and regulations governing procedures that assure us that we do have doctors, that we do have proper conditioning programs, that we do play the proper number of games, that we do have well supervised early practice, and that these factors become paramount in the educational program.

The next area is one of communications with the public. I do not know how to answer this question. I do not know exactly what recommendations to make but I have a strong feeling that we have not worked with the press, radio, and television enough to have them understand that inter-scholastic athletics should be, and in many cases, are a part of the educational venture. I think that we have not properly met with and worked with them so that they understand the role of athletics in the life of a high school kid. So often, I think, competitive interscholastic athletics is viewed through the eyes of the media as being a stepped-down pro or a stepped-down college operation and I think that as long as we permit this, it will continue to be just this way. It works to the disadvantage of our over-all program and, therefore, without being critical of the press, radio, or television, I understand that they are looking for the sensational, they are looking for the spectacular, they are looking for the controversial and they, the reporters, make no bones about this. It is easy for them to play up some event that has aroused some emotions on the part of spectators or on the part of parents or school officials. Oftentimes the coaches contribute to this wrong impression and oftentimes the impression that the coaches leave is the impression that the coaches wanted to leave. I have great respect for coaches and coaching but I do feel that the question of communication is one that we have skirted. We have talked about it but we have not met it head on in such a way that our students, our athletes, our schools are placed in the proper perspective in the role that they play.

The next area I want to mention I shall mention very hurriedly but I do think it is important. We have not done enough research in all aspects of interscholastic athletics. At what age may boys and girls begin to play without doing physical harm or sometimes emotional damage to that participant? I am not sure but what there are some sports that would be damaging to boys and girls at the pre-adolescent age. What is the attitude of the public toward competitive sports for high school and junior high school boys and girls? What is the attitude of the administration, the attitude of teachers and students? I would suggest that since collective bargaining is on the minds of a lot of teachers these days and that since many states do have collective bargaining regulations, that the effect and the impact of collective bargaining on interscholastic athletics should be examined at this time in its development rather than later. I think that all these things should be researched and the information should be provided so that we will have basic data on which to operate. Oh, I am fully aware of the research that has been done and the fact that it has been done in a sometimes very scattered sort of way, and I am suggesting that the National Federation working with colleges, universities, and high school associations develop a systematic, long-range research project or program, perhaps even with federal funding, that would give us much better information than we have today.

As an aside to this general discussion, I would raise the question as to whether students in Russia or other European countries, in Singapore, Thailand, or South America have programs that may be superior to ours. Very few of their programs are connected with schools. Most of them are operated by federations or clubs and are outside of school supervision. Just a few years ago, a friend of mine from Australia came to this country. He coached national soccer teams in his country and he went to see a high school football game here. He thought that our high schools should not be doing this sort of thing but felt that it should be a free operation where clubs and federations could better operate and where they could have coaches who were doing this because they love sports, not because of the money they might be making. But while he had some suggestions to make about the operation of the program in this country, he still realized that if we are viewing this as an educational venture, that perhaps it was justifiable. I simply raise the question because as I have visited in the European countries and some of the other parts of the world, I have seen the clubs and federations operating good programs. They are not as systematic, the coaches appear to be less qualified, and the facilities are not as good, but there is a spirit of free competition that is a little different from that of our high school competition. I am not recommending that we move in that direction but I am certainly suggesting that we be aware of the fact that there are other ways of handling interscholastic, or perhaps better still, competitive athletics for the youth of this particular age.

I could not complete a discussion with any group without talking about sportsmanship, citizenship, and moral values of athletics. Far too many times, I feel, the adult—the mature individual, the parent—becomes involved to such a degree that the youth of our country get the wrong impression about the importance of athletics. The sportsmanship factor can be promoted, and it is, I think, being promoted in scores of ways in lots of places. I would hope that the press, radio, and television would do a great more than it has done to promote the importance of sportsmanship for, after all, participation in sports is not a life and death matter. It is not the kind of experience that means you are succeeding or failing on the basis of a goal or a tackle or a block somewhere in the competition. It does, I think, provide an opportunity to teach young people respect for the value and worth of an opponent and it does provide an opportunity for our being able to say to these young people, "Your opponent is just as anxious to win as you are. His ideas and ideals are just as high as yours, therefore, may the better producer on this particular evening win." I think that this must be sold to the public as well as to everyone else. It is not the referee, the coach, or the individual player in one play that usually decides the outcome. It is an accumulation of events and activities that make the difference.

Recently, I read an article in which the writer states that he felt that interscholastic athletics had no place in the high schools of the country. He then proceeded to say that the most exercise some students got was "jumping to false conclusions," "running down the establishment," "side-stepping responsibilities," or throwing rocks at houses, cars, windows, and the like. I would suggest to you that very few athletes actually took part in the protest movement and the riots. They had other things to do, they were not taking part in that kind of thing, and they were not a party to it either in philosophy or participation. So I would say that instead of running down the youth of this country, let's build them up with a positive approach that physical skills are important, that a strong healthy body is an important kind of body, that school spirit is important in the lives of people, that the national spirit is also very important, and that all of our games can help contribute to this if we take the proper approach and work in the right way. There is still a place for the violent sports—football, hockey and the like—where young people who like contact can participate and really give vent to their feelings without having us lose our balance and our equilibrium over so-called "varsityitis."

It has been my great fortune to know three outstanding coaches in my life. The first is Blanton Collier, high school coach, University of Kentucky coach, and Cleveland Browns coach, one of the greatest football minds and one of the finest gentlemen I have ever had the opportunity of knowing. I have had many opportunities and experiences with him to see how he approached young people as well as the techniques of the game. It was his burning desire that every athlete complete college and get his degree and he took great pride in his athletes who were successful in many other ventures after they had completed college or the pro ranks. The second was Paul "Bear" Bryant, a different kind of person entirely. He was able to have a boy produce 110 per cent time after time. He was a great motivator, a fine recruiter, and a tremendous coach. While Blanton Collier was a different kind of individual, both in their own ways have made an outstanding contribution in college and pro football. The third is Coach Adolph Rupp. I have watched his teams play year after year and it was his belief that you break the game down into simple activities and that boys had to be in good condition to be able to run as hard in the last ten minutes as they did in the first ten. He believed that since the name of the game was to be able to shoot, that his boys had to practice shooting the right way, and since a part of the game was tough defense, they had to play it nose to nose and as hard as they could make it. He also believed that few simple plays would be much better than a lot of complicated plays. He, too, was a fine recruiter and a great motivator and the results produced by these three men, all with different personalities and attitudes, had made a great contribution. Again, it was my great good fortune to know them well and to see them operate and perform. Not all of our high school coaches could be this great but it seems to me that there are characteristics and qualifications that we can point to in the development of our interscholastic athletics programs and that the coach, his preparation and his attitude can be what the public wants it to be—a great contribution to the total educational venture in this nation.

I think one of the great things in this country has been the fact that our young people have been participants. I would like to see us have even more participants but under control, properly funded and financed, and well coached. I think the National Federation has faced a great challenge in this area and I challenge you as Federation members, both here and back home, to help make interscholastic athletics truly a part of the educational venture of this nation.
