JANUARY

THE sun works an eight hour shift and ultra violet rays are rationed. Alcan Highway muskeg is rock ice, and ducks further the good neighbor policy under the Southern Cross. Minnesota deer dig beneath the snow for lichens. Wood smoke curls from Wisconsin cabins beside lakes which are now paved, and Escanaba fishes through the ice. Georgia, Louisiana and California still talk football and telescope the season into that of baseball and track as Sarasota and Tucson monopolize the heat waves. In Great Falls a frigid wind roars up the Missouri through the Gates of the Mountains and into Merriwether Lewis Canyon. Snowdrifts pile high in Helena, Coeur d'Alene, Rock Springs, Boulder and Grand Canyon. The air is electric and the fast moving streamliner's low waved whistle carries far. At night the air is crackling crisp and the stars are blue pin points in a bluer sky. The air liner above the roof sounds at hedge-hopping height.—Breakfast is by lamp light.

THE color has finally gone from the oak but the barberry fruit is red. The cypress and tamarack have shed last year's photosynthetic garb but the witch-hazel's posthumous fruit is green and thick coated. The pines of New England, New York and Pennsylvania are snow spotted where aspen and maple leaves are trapped in the axil whirls. The pepper trees of Pasadena drip beauty and the eucalyptus shows white under shredded bark ribbons.

FROM New Jersey to Oregon basketball is king. The game has acquired attributes of a serious business. There is grim determination in a program with each minute rationed, and basketball sessions are interrupted with sharp drill commands, commando tactics and practice in scaling balcony walls. Dressing and shower rooms, designed for dozens, now accommodate hundreds. The smell of sweat and dirty socks is in the air. The floor finish is scratched from heavy use and is streaked with burns from ersatz rubber soles. Juniors and Seniors are catapulted from boyhood to manhood.—The nation needs men.

GOOD resolutions adopted at leisure are tabled in haste as distractions grow with the long evenings. The study hall is a bedlam of clearing throats, and vitamins are taken in cough drops. The odor of formaldehyde seeps from the biology room as live specimens hibernate and sea urchins are lifted from shipping kegs. In the machine shop the whine of the circular saw is punctuated by the slap of leather belts. The band has substituted seated symphonics for discordant acrobatics. Drum majorettes walk sedately in dirndls. The geography teacher checks his lesson plan by radio before going to class. The basketball squad is angelic in English class as semester exams approach.—The coach bites his nails and carries aspirin.

JANUARY—the end of the beginning and the beginning of the end. A river Lethe into which past disappointments tumble and across which the horizon glows with new hopes and aspirations.

Excerpts With Vitamins A to Z

If we ever needed interscholastic sports, it is now. We know the value of intramural sports, but they are not sufficient to fully equip boys physically. Intramural programs should be stepped up but we must not sacrifice competitive athletics.—B. Floyd Smith, Principal at Benton, Illinois.

Children don't stop growing because of the war . . . not lively, creative ones!—Education for Free Men.

Time for the basketball game arrived and the Referee had not yet appeared. At the end of another 5 minutes, there was a flurry at the door as the Referee limped on the floor carrying an empty red gasoline can in one hand and a pair of roller skates in the other.

In Illinois, the Football and Basketball designation A-one (A1), is often read as if the one were an L. Thus, A1 does so and so—and Al Willis, the state secretary, is a busy man.

The sporting spirit is much akin to the spirit of liberty—it must be carefully nurtured from childhood up, so that almost unconsciously it become second nature. And—like liberty—if not zealously guarded, it is apt to be lost before the loss is realized.—Robert W. Henderson.

Those who build fitness in the high schools perform a double service—they build next year's war offense and preserve those national qualities which make that offense full of meaning.—Athletic Anthology.

In Oklahoma, coaches or athletic directors who skate close to the margin of the eligibility laws are constantly on the lookout for "Old Gum-Shoe" or "The Bloodhound"—none other than Secretary Lee Anderson. When the Oklahoma board is given the duty of enforcing a rule they ain't foolin'.

The tough top-sergeant scowled at the rookies not long out of high school and admonished: "You ain't on a high school team throwing forward passes. In this man's army when you throw a hand grenade, you got to hit him in the eye." An ex-halfback called back: "That's all right with us, Sir. Which eye?"

A rugged physical education and athletic program in school will work wonders with those students who have been accustomed to nothing more strenuous than volleyball, ping pong, shuffleboard and quoits. A real fitness program is one of the finest commodities the school has to sell. The public will provide facilities and transportation if it is sold on the value.—Sec. E. A. Thomas, Kansas.

The Utah High School Association endorses a wide program of physical education. It believes a coach should be rated on his knowledge of boys and girls and on his ability to put over a sound program of physical and health education, rather than on his ability to win games in competition.—Utah Handbook.

The Umpire had tire trouble and failed to arrive at the game. The coaches agreed to use a sideline salesman who wrote insurance in both towns. The Referee didn't get much help. Near the end of the game, with the score tied, Team A had the ball on B's 2 yard line and the Referee instructed the lame duck assistant to stay on the goal line to see whether the ball went over. After a pile-up the Referee frantically sought the Umpire's hidden signal but it didn't come. The Umpire backed away with the comment: "It was awful close. I refuse to commit myself."

There are a few coaches who claim that judgment rather than the rules of a sport comes first. It has been my observation that such coaches prefer judgment rather than rules because they have a chance to reach the official on his judgment.—A. L. Trester.

It is neither smart nor sportsmanlike to evade rules; it is merely deceitful. Evasion, subterfuge, deceit and misrepresentation have no place whatsoever in sports, and to condone such practices is neither a kindness to the player nor does it promote good sportsmanship.—Lawn Tennis Bulletin.

WAR-TIME BASKETBALL

A Basketball Jamboree

Designed by the National Federation To Encourage Mass Athletics

It is agreed that basketball is excellent for promoting the type of physical fitness which is currently needed. Some have voiced the objection that there is a tendency for school athletic leaders to devote too much time to a relatively few players and to neglect those who are not expert performers. There is no fundamental reason why this should be done. The game is probably better than any of the other major sports in its adaptability to a program which will interest and give training to great numbers. The benefits of the sport can be made available to a large percentage of high school students. One method is the basketball jamboree. The point system which is outlined here is designed for a specific number of groups and teams. A little originality on the part of the director will make it possible to modify the system in such a way as to accommodate almost any number.

NUMBER OF GROUPS AND TEAMS: This particular point system is designed for six schools or platoons with three teams in each group.

PURPOSES: To stimulate mass basketball and to insure attention being centered on the training of many players while at the same time retaining most of the desirable features of the usual interscholastic schedule.

METHOD: Each school or platoon enters three teams of ten players each. The teams are classified according to rank or ability. Each team plays only in its own class and against each of three opponents (three games per team and nine games for each group). All games are played in 5 seven-minute periods with two-minute intermissions between periods. No player may participate in consecutive periods.

FUNDAMENTALS: The point system is based on the following axioms:

1. The group winner should be determined by the accomplishments of all 30 players.
2. Ability to score as well as ability to win should receive credit.
3. The ideal team is one where all players have equal scoring ability.
4. More credit should be given for winning by 10 points than for winning by 1 point.
5. Proficiency in free throwing should be encouraged.

Point System

The point system may be modified if the number of participating groups or teams is greater or less than the number outlined.

You ask about the symbol V
 And what it means to you and me?
 It's viva—live—and vita—life;
 Return of peace; the end of strife;
 The end of want; the right to pray,—

To feel secure; the right to say
 The thoughts that keep the spirit
 free,—

All these are in the symbol V.

Beethoven's 5th, initial chord,
 Defies the tyrants bloody sword.
 The migrant ducks that wing their way
 Still mock the puny men who slay
 Our kin who will not bend and slave.—

Dead nations rise above the grave
 To chalk the sign on door and tree,—

All these are in the symbol V.

The Magna Charta's blood-bought boon;
 The Marseillaise, soul stirring tune;
 Joan of Arc and LaFayette;
 The Spanish Inquisition's threat;
 The brave of Concord; Valley
 Forge;

Those graves in Balaclava's gorge;
 The dead who died to set men
 free,—

All these are in the symbol V.

The famished men in China's hills
 And fettered slaves in powder
 mills;
 The Czechs and Poles who will not yield;
 That hate which poisons Flanders'
 field;

Those starving mouths of gallant
 Greece;
 The crazed who cannot die in peace;

Dunkirk, Dieppe and Coventry,—

All these are in the symbol V.

Three dots, a dash along a wire;
 The Underground's avenging fire;
 The echelon of ship and plane;
 Those stalwarts of El Alamein;
 Heroic Moscow's winter thrust
 And Stalingrad's immortal dust;
 Unconquered ghosts at Lidice,—
 All these are in the symbol V.

Bataan and Wake; Corregidor;
 Our ships that pave the ocean's
 floor;
 That Midway proof of bombing might;
 Tulagi and Alaska's night;
 This nurse who binds the broken
 bone;
 The girl who'll live her life alone;
 The grief that lives in memory.—
 All these are in the symbol V.

The man who pounds the white
 hot steel;
 The crew that shapes the cruiser
 keel;
 This girl who welds the bomber
 wing;
 The youth who makes the motor
 sing;
 The skill that tools the deadly
 shell;
 Or fills and seals the powder cell;
 Those men who guide our ships at sea;

All these are in the symbol V.

The child who fills a labor gap;
 To grow more food, collect more
 scrap;
 The hurt and danger brave men
 scorn
 To guard, for millions yet unborn,
 The heritage of liberty
 To live, to love, untrammelled,—
 free;
 To fight to death or victory,—
 All these are in the letter V.

ATHLETIC EQUIPMENT PROSPECTS FOR 1943

With our present well balanced inventory, plus the additional merchandise which we can still get, you are assured that your school and all other of our Kentucky schools and colleges will get their normal requirements.

Keep Our Catalog Handy

Our catalog now will be our Star Salesman. We urge you to order by mail. Gasoline rationing will prevent our men making their customary canvass of the state. Do you need a new catalog?

Best Wishes for 1943
