There is little doubt but that the 1947 team of Augusta Tilghman High School, Paducah, is one of the great teams of the South. Paducah was rated by Dr. Litkenhouse as the No. 1 team in Kentucky this season. Tilghman's record is as follows: Paducah 48, Cairo (Illinois) 7; P. 21, Memphis Tech 6; P. 38, West Frankfort (Illinois) 19; P. 30, Louisville Manual 7; P. 32, Russellville (Alabama) 6; P. 68, Marion 19; P. 47, Jackson (Tennessee) 0; P. 38, St. Louis McKinley 6; P. 38, Henderson 12; P. 27, Hopkinsville 0; P. 54, Mayfield 6.

Pictures Missing

Pictures of the Prestonsburg and Pineville football teams, respective winners of the Big Sandy and Cumberland Valley conferences, were not available at the time this issue of the magazine went to press. These pictures, along with the pictures of the Bloomfield and Lebanon Junction teams, co-champions of the Salt River Valley Conference which sponsors six-man football, will appear in a forthcoming issue of the magazine. Some of the conferences had not announced their all-conference teams early in December, and this information will be made available to Athlete readers at a later date.

Commissioner's Message

DURING the past few weeks, it has been the unpleasant duty of the Commissioner to suspend from the Association two member schools, Paris and Somerset. Some facts bearing on these suspensions will be of interest to many Kentucky school men who are trying to play the game according to the rules but who might make the same mistakes which, in the opinion of the Commissioner, were made by the school officials of Paris and Somerset.

On the night of October 10, following the Mt. Sterling-Paris football game, Paris fans attacked two of the officials who worked in the game. The evidence shows that one of the officials was knocked to the ground and "worked over" while he was on the ground, and that the other was kicked repeatedly. This was one of the most disgraceful episodes in the long history of the K. H. S. A. A. It was held that the Paris High School did not give the officials adequate protection and that it was therefore in violation of By-Law 17 of the Association rules.

Paris school officials testified during the hearing that they had made every effort to secure adequate police protection prior to the game, and that they were unable to get this protection. As an actual fact, two law enforcement officers were at the game, but they had left the field a few minutes before the end of the contest in order to assist in the direction of traffic. One of the school officials of Paris asked this question: "In what way have I failed to do the job required of me under By-Law 17? I had law enforcement officers at the game, tried to secure the assistance of others and was unable to do so, and rushed to the scene of the fight, helping to stop it." The Commissioner stated that it was entirely probable that the school officials of Paris had done everything in their power to have the game policed properly and that individually no one of them was to blame; that the fact still remained, however, that two officials of the K. H. S. A. A. were treated shamefully at Paris, and that any school which could not devise a way to protect the officials during and following athletic contests should probably do away with its sports program. It was also pointed out that the law enforcement officers, who had left the field prior to the end of the game, were in effect traffic officers and not policemen at the time the officials were attacked. The fact that Paris school officials had made an effort to secure adequate police protection caused the Commissioner to give the school a comparatively light penalty, the period of suspension being approximately two months.

Somerset was suspended for an entirely different infraction of the rules. A returned veteran, who had played basketball prior to the war for two schools located in other districts, was supposed to have made a bona fide move into the Somerset school district. School officials were led to believe that the mother of the boy had actually changed her residence. It is possible that most principals in the state would have made the same mistake as was made by the Somerset principal. Especially is this true when it appears that some of the individuals most closely connected with the case made statements concerning the move which was supposed to have been made. The average principal just doesn't have the time to go around ringing doorbells and inquiring concerning the name of the person who lives there. However, the provisions of By-Law 1, Section 7, paragraph a, are very specific. All school men would do well to read this rule and to check carefully on the residence of their players, especially those who supposedly move into one district from another.

It is my fervent hope that the Paris and Somerset suspensions will serve as a warning to the school officials in our state, and will cause them to be even more careful than some of them have been in the past in their efforts to abide by the rules of the K. H. S. A. A.

Corrections for 1947-48 Basketball Publications

Rule Book: No serious errors but a couple of typographical slips. In second line, inside front cover, reference should be 2-11 (instead of 2-12). Section number of 1st paragraph under rule 7 should be 1 (instead of 7).

Play Situations: In Ruling for Play 176 omit "not". Play 217 is meant to cover the case where there are no eligible substitutes and where player is disqualified or injured before he attempts free throw.

Report by President Ginger

The National High School Athletic Federation meeting was held at Portland, Oregon, on July 22-25. Not only did the state associations of Idaho and Oregon prove to be excellent hosts, but the entire meeting was extremely profitable to those member states which had representatives there.

Seventeen states sent representatives to discuss common problems that are also of interest and concern to all people connected with inter-scholastic athletics. Some of the more interesting discussions centered about the topics discussed below.

Athletic Accident Insurance

There are as many different plans of athletic accident insurance as there are states participating in the insurance benefits. Some of the states insure pupils from the time they leave home at the beginning of their first grade until they return home as graduates from the senior high school. Others insure only their high school students. Some of the states—Kentucky belongs in this class—insure only the boys who participate in athletics or intramural sports and then only on a voluntary basis.

I would like to call this to the attention of our high school principals in Kentucky. Our athletic plan is voluntary. The rates are especially low for the coverage provided. Many of the schools do not participate at all. Is it advisable for the Kentucky High School Athletic Association to require participating athletes to be insured? Some states believe that it is. Is it advisable for our state association to require all participating athletes to have rigid physical examinations before practice begins? Some of the associations believe this to be true. Is the plan used by Kentucky a sound beginning for a more practical and worthwhile insurance plan that should be developed in our state? Many of our board members and school people believe that our plan should be expanded a great deal. May I suggest that you give this your serious thought so that the Board of Control may promote the kind of program that is progressive for member schools.

Eligibility

The question of eligibility was discussed at length. Most of the states have an eight-semester rule. Some of the states have a nineteen-year age rule. Kentucky, as you know, has a twenty-year age rule with a permissive eligibility for an extra year if the boy is a returned veteran and was eligible when he entered the service. Most of the states do not have this rule. Should Kentucky fall in line and revoke this rule at the next delegate assembly? Some arguments presented in other states against the twenty-first birthday age limit are: (1) The boys are too mature to compete against fourteen, fifteen, and sixteen year old boys; (2) They are not being deprived of a privilege they should have if it is definitely a hazard to have these mature men play against boys. Many other arguments were presented, but I hope each principal will think seriously about this extra permissive year for returned veterans.

Some of the states feel that scholarship requirements should be waived for athletes and that any boy who is a regular member of a high school should be permitted to participate even though he is not passing in three or more subjects. Most of the states represented did not agree with this argument, but at least it is food for thought.

Another question I should like to leave with you is, what eligibility rules are most commonly violated and which ones are reported to be commonly violated? This information would be helpful to your state association, for it is the belief of the Board of Control that, if we had accurate information as to which rules are reportedly violated most often, these rules could be clarified and strengthened.

Officials and Officiating

One of the greatest problems faced by the state associations in America today deals with the problem of uniform interpretation of rules, methods of improving officiating, and methods of handling school relationships when poor officiating happens.

May I suggest some of the things that you as school administrators could do to assist your high school associations. At the bottom of each contract there is a statement as to the length of time before each contest that the two schools should agree on officials. Are you as a school administrator following this contract and do you ask your neighbor for his approval of officials? Is this time far enough in advance to be sure that both schools are satisfied? Do you as a coach discuss with the official after the game in a free and constructive way where you think he made mistakes and what those mistakes are, or do you complain to the official and protest everything he did?

The 1947-48 Basketball Clinics

By Charlie Vettiner

As the nose of my worn-out Chevy turned toward Hartford, the first stop on my 1947-48 tour for the K. H. S. A. A., my mind turned back to the first clinic trip made for the purpose of interpreting basketball rules in 1942.

That was the year of the first gasoline rationing and your interpreter left for the 1500 mile jaunt with less than 40 gallons of coupons. By catching a ride with the Chevy in a giant moving van and by being towed by three different motorists for a total of almost 400 miles, we made it. The sum total attendance of coaches and officials that year was 96. Three schools, where meetings were being held, even forgot about the clinics being scheduled and didn't open up until your rambling interpreter routed the school men out of their easy chairs at home.

This is 1947, however, and each year since 1942 has seen a new attendance record made, and this year topped them all with 1283. Lexington had the largest attendance with 181, Louisville was next with 132, with Campbellsville coming third with 110. The other twelve clinics varied in attendance from 32 to 101. Couldn't help comparing the interest in basketball now with that of 1942. Just how large is this basketball mushroom going to grow?

Athletic men are pretty well agreed all over Kentucky that get-togethers for purposes of rules study and promotion of uniform officiating are an excellent means of drawing the whole state into a united front behind a common cause, better High School Athletics. At the same time, they are agreed that the afternoon clinics should be longer. This will not be possible under the present set-up of two clinics per day, since the clinic director must drive as many as 140 miles between the afternoon and night sessions.

Of one thing we are certain, that being that this year's clinics were successful. Everybody attending felt that officials who didn't come had missed a good chance to fraternize with the other boys as well as get together on uniform interpretation. Since Rome wasn't built in a day and since each year finds the clinics growing like "Topsy", there is little doubt that the registered officials who haven't warmed up yet to the value of the discussions will be lining up in one of next year's or the following year's sessions.

Funny thing about this year's tour. In 1942 I had a good Chevy and no gasoline; this year I drove a worn-out Chevy that had plenty of gasoline that for some worn-out reason wouldn't flow through my worn-out carburetor. It's a great life anyway as long as T-Bone steaks aren't too expensive. That's my report, gentlemen, "writ by hand".

The attitude of the schools toward the officials and of the officials toward the school will greatly improve if a free, courteous attitude is maintained during the game and after the game is over. It is impossible for the official to have respect for the coach and administrator who constantly quarrel about the decision. It is equally as destructive to have the official complain to the boys or to the coach about how they are playing. May I earnestly and sincerely request that you as coach, official, and administrator try to promote a better feeling within the district organization.

What are some of the things that would improve our officiating problems in Kentucky? I should like to suggest that every official be required to take an examination early; that the officials be assigned in different sections of the state by a person agreed upon by both the schools and officials; that officials receive a rating from the schools not only as to good, bad and average, but as to specific reasons as to how they were good and in what way they were bad. I would suggest also a more uniform schedule of fees for officials throughout the entire state. There probably are many other worthwhile suggestions that you have; if so, will you write either to me or to Ted Sanford, your Commissioner. We are interested in promoting better officiating and a better attitude toward officials throughout the state.

All Star Game

This problem was discussed only briefly, and it seems advisable for the Coaches' Association of Kentucky and the Kentucky High School Athletic Board of Control to meet together and work out plans for All Star games that will meet the need of our state and still promote a wholesome, worthwhile attitude toward All Star games. They have many advantages and many disadvantages. It is my sincere feeling that the coaches and Board of Control together can eliminate the disadvantages of All Star Games.

Referee's Corner

By Charlie Vettner

Another record-breaker for the 1947-48 Kentucky High School Basketball Rules Interpretation Clinics. 1283 officials, coaches, players and fans turned out.

1500 miles of driving by your ole Corner guardian renewed old friendships with such good "eggs" as Tom Ellis and his little brother Bub, Joe Mansfield, Ernie Chattin, Dick Tyler, Earle Jones and more than 1000 others.

It'll be of interest to know what outstanding leaders of high school athletics are thinking about, so here's some straight dope.

First crack off the bat genial "Teddy Boy" Sanford served notice on all would-be trouble makers for Kentucky officials that he would protect the official but that all of the "Whistlers" would have to cooperate by reporting immediately any abuse suffered at games.

That was at Henderson. The next afternoon, with Bill Utley, Sam Pollock et al. serving the stimulus for a tremendous turnout, we knew it was a cinch that the clinic attendance record of last year would be broken.

Collected a couple of Police Department tickets in Mayfield for forgetting to feed those hungry parking meters but good old Bill Hunt showed himself to be a man after ole Charlie's heart by paying them off.

Ernie Chattin down Ashland way had a constructive criticism to make of registration of officials. Said Ernie, "For two bucks any man can get a license to officiate, because most any good "Joe" will sign his application card Okaying him." According to some of the Ashland "Whistle Tooters", there should be a more fool-proof way of making officials prove themselves. Anybody got any suggestions?

Tom "Big Daddy" Ellis, famed football coach of Northern Kentucky and a top-notch in the realm of basketball officiating, gave out with the opinion that the K. H. S. A. A. should require all basketball officials to attend the rules interpretation clinics. The fellows are thinking some good thoughts out loud, but if they want some action the thing to do is to get a resolution drawn up to present to the next meeting of the K. H. S. A. A. delegates during K. E. A.

We're passing out an orchid right now to Lexington's Lyman Ginger. Lexington's clinics have always been well-attended, but it remained for personable Lyman to put his weight behind them to set an all-time attendance record for a single clinic, 181 souls.

JUNIE JONES

Another "plug" goes to Sully Jacobs and his Pikeville athletic enthusiasts

That new gymnasium that'll be built in Pikeville will be the "Pride of the Mountings".

While we are on the subject of Pikeville, let's recognize a coach, who graduated from the mountain school to Louisville's Xavier, Junie Jones.

Junie is given lots of credit, along with "Red" Hagan, by head coach, Ray Baer, for bringing the green and gold clad gridders "Out of the Woods".

It's been a great football season. You've got a brand new basketball season looking at you. Win or lose, are you gonna be proud of yourself and your school when it's over?

Ed Filbeck

In Memoriam

High School athletics in Kentucky lost a friend when Ed Filbeck of Murray died at his home November eighth.

Filbeck was one of the best known school men in the state. He was born in Marshall county, attended old Mc-

Tyer College at McKenzie, Tennessee, and later graduated from Vanderbilt. He received an M.A. degree from Peabody. He played baseball and football at both McTyer and Vanderbilt. He always referred to his football playing as scrub football, but he played on the team with Ray Morrison and Morrison was not considered a scrub. Mr. Filbeck taught and coached athletics from 1912 to 1917 at Marvin College, a prep school at Clinton, Kentucky, and came to Murray High School as an instructor and coach in 1918. He was a member of the original faculty of Murray Normal School, now Murray State, in 1923.

Mr. Filbeck served as cashier of the Bank of Murray from 1925 to 1932. During this time he served a four year term as mayor of the city. In 1932 he again returned to his first love, school work, and assumed a posi-

It's the Sport That Counts

The year is 1937. A gangling, good-looking kid with an eager look on his pleasant face reports to Fairdale's football coach, Charlie Bain, and says, "I wanta play on your football team". That kid played football the way it was meant to be played. He played hard, he played to win, but HE PLAYED IT CLEANLY.

The years pass and we find the kid "carrying on" for the Maroon and Gray of Western Teachers College. He had lots of tough breaks and an education came the hard way, but he was still calling his shots squarely the day they elected him to captain the "Hilltoppers".

The kid's a man now and the year is 1947. With service as a lieutenant in the U. S. Marines and a Purple Heart tucked away in his trunk, he returned to the scene of his former high school triumphs as coach. His first coaching assignment was with a squad of boys who had never played football before.

Sure he wanted a victorious season; what new coach doesn't? More than that, however, he wanted his boys to know that "IT'S THE SPORT THAT COUNTS". A tribute to the coaching ability of the "Kid Grown Into A Man" is the fact that he turned out a winner with green kids, but one of the greatest thrills he'll ever have is best told in this story:

The Fairdale eleven was squaring off with its ancient rival, Valley. If you never attended Fairdale, you don't know what that means, because Fairdalers cherish a victory over the Vikings more than they would over Notre Dame. However, their instructions from their brand-new-just-out-of-college coach was, "Hit 'em hard' but hit 'em clean".

It was near the end of the game that Valley's Art Seelye was tearing goalward at a mile-a-minute clip when Fairdale's Charlie Spears hit him with a tackle that had loads of T. N. T. packed in it, and Seelye crashed into the sod. It hurt. As the two kids got to their feet the Fairdale kid patted the Viking on his back and said, "Nice run, Art, you're a hard guy to stop".

A coach was reflected in his boy. Yes, Dallas Arnold, Fairdale's new coach lost that game but he had succeeded in teaching his kids the thing he always knew himself, "IT'S THE SPORT THAT COUNTS". As Coach Arnold took his eleven from the field he was met by Max Sanders, who had seen the play. The hand-shake Max gave Dallas and his remark, "That's the way to coach

DALLAS ARNOLD

'em", will be a thrill Dallas Arnold will always remember because coaches up this way would rather have Max say, "Well done!", than chalk up a questionable victory.

As a kid Dallas loved the sport. As a coach and a man he's teaching Future America "IT'S THE SPORT THAT COUNTS".

of control for junior high school athletics, or should we continue to permit seventeen year old boys in junior high school to play against twelve, thirteen and fourteen year old boys? Should their ages be controlled? Should the number of semesters of participation be controlled, or is it your feeling that there is not a problem with junior high athletics. As president of your association, I feel that this should be expanded and developed for more worthwhile competition between our junior high schools of the state.

tion on the faculty of Murray High School. He was elected principal when Ted Sanford resigned in 1934, the post he held with distinction until his death. He served from 1937 to 1941 as president of the Western Kentucky Athletic Conference.

Truly, the Profession in general and high school athletics in particular have lost one of their most illustrious and beloved leaders. The loss will be keenly felt for many years.

Something New Has Been Added

An innovation in athletic circles in Kentucky and something which can be provocative of much benefit to high school athletics has recently been contributed by a group of three young (?) school men in Kentucky.

Reference is made to a series of meetings planned and sponsored by J. B. Mansfield, Brad Mutchler and Bub Sidwell. These fellows, all of whom are vitally interested in high school basketball, have come up with a splendid idea to improve officiating in this sport. Early in October they sent letters to coaches, officials and prospective officials in their section, outlining the plan. Several meetings were to be held at the Cave City gymnasium during October and early November with the following purposes set forth:

(1) To assist and encourage the beginning official as well as to increase the number of competent officials.

(2) To interpret the rules together and to arrive at a more uniform and standardized type of officiating.

(3) To encourage a number of boys to get in the game of officiating in order to supplement the fast decreasing number of competent officials.

Members of the Cave City and Park City High School teams were present in uniform. Scrimmages were held and officials would alternate in calling the plays. Play was stopped frequently and various interpretations of situations and rulings were discussed. More than a hundred fellows evidenced interest and attended the meetings, and there is no question but that much was accomplished. The plan is strongly recommended to other school men who have a desire to contribute something of a constructive nature to high school athletics. These three fellows mentioned above are to be commended for their efforts.

An outline of the meetings held by this group is presented below in the hope that it may be of some value to others interested in sponsoring similar programs in their sections of the state. The ATHLETE will be glad to hear from other groups making such attempts.

I. Monday—October 13—First Meeting

(A) Officiating Demonstration—

In this first meeting Mr. Sidwell and Mr. Mutchler will point out a great number of officiating musts in the conduct of a game, including pre-game and half-time duties, positions on the floor, calling procedure, and items that will be of use for the beginner and at the same time will help standardize working among the experienced.

II. Monday—October 20—Second Meeting

(B) Officials' Laboratory and Discussion—

In this meeting as many officials as will to do so are to take turns calling scrimmages. Play is to be stopped often or on any occasion for discussion or helpful criticism. It is hoped that all new officials will want to take advantage of this practice and help by actually doing some work, and that you more experienced fellows will give freely of your knowledge and counsel.

III. Monday—October 27—Third Meeting—

(C) Officials' Laboratory and Discussion

This meeting will follow the same plan as the second in the belief that new officials will derive a greater benefit from this actual practice with helpful suggestions than from explanation alone; also coaches will see these boys working, and the discussions will certainly lead to a better uniformity of rules interpretation.

IV. Monday—November 3—Fourth Meeting

(D) Charging—Blocking, Screening, Technicalities—

The enigma of all officials, coaches and players, namely, charging and blocking, will be discussed with actual demonstrations of all situations possible. The problems of screening will be gone into as thoroughly as time will permit.

A portion of this program will be devoted to the "technicality" (that's a technicality in the spelling), those little things that are called by officials that could just as well be left uncalled for the good of both teams and for the betterment of the game.
